Searchers Succeed in Recovering Hiram Brotherton's Body.

DANGERS TO INEXPERIENCED SWIMMERS

Safeguards That Should Be Placed at the Beach—Testimony Before the Coroner's Jury—Alleged Elopers Are Released from Jail.

At 1 o'clock word was received in the city that the body of Hiram Brotherton, the young man who was drowned in Lake Manawa Monday afternoon, had been found. The coroner and undertaker at once started for the lake, and an hour or so later the body was brought to W. C. Estep's undertaking rooms where an inquest was held at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

The body was lying on a stretcher, but few facts were brought out upon the inquest, although considerable interesting information was given by the witnesses as to the manner in which the search for the body was carried on during Monday evening, and as to the life-saving appliances, or rather the lack of them, that are afforded by the management.

Searching for the Body.

Plate Overton, who owns the Rescue pleasure steamer, was one of the leaders in the search. He arrived at the beach about half an hour after the drowning was reported, and found that nothing whatever was being done toward recovering the body.

Crowds of swimmers were in the water, and the merry laughter of the women, as well as the men, showed that they cared little for the unbecoming object that lay at the bottom of the lake, so long as it staid there.

He commenced to dive for the body, and kept at it an hour and a half, without success.

At 9 o'clock he went out again, this time with John Bailey and a man named Snyder, and dragged the bottom of the lake with grappling hooks. In this way the body was located, and the hook caught on it several times, but each time it slipped off before the body was brought to the surface.

The Lake Gives Up Its Dead.

About midnight the three men rig up a line ninety feet long, and attached to it an about sixteen inches apart, a thorough job of dragging the lake with this was done, and shortly after midnight O. C. Scherwin, a well known diver, was lowered into the water to one of the supports of the toboggan slide.

In addition to Overton those who testified before the coroner's jury were G. M. Washburn, the foreman of the Manhattan Beach company; W. H. Sampson, Mike Purcell, Edward Zimmerman, Marshal E. H. Noyes of Manawa, O. C. Scherwin, F. A. Beckman, E. H. Odell, Harry Brown, Bart Wright and U. Thomas.

Washburn, the foreman of the Manhattan Beach company, was the first to testify. He testified that he had been on duty at the beach when the accident occurred, and that he saw the body of the young man being dragged to the surface.

He testified that he saw the body of the young man being dragged to the surface, and that he saw the body of the young man being dragged to the surface.

Evans farm yesterday morning. When he arrived at the Evans farm he noticed a young man, whom he took for Southwell, working in a berry patch. He called to him, and where he stopped his horse. As he drew rein Southwell, for it was he, looked up, drew a gun from his pocket, and glanced nervously around, as if trying to decide whether to fight or run. He finally decided upon the latter course, and as the sheriff left his buggy Southwell started off like a shot.

OPPOSED THE BURLINGTON. Western Freight Association Lines Not Expected to Carry Their Point at the Meeting of the Western Freight Association Today.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 9.—Burlington officials failed to carry their point at the meeting of the Western Freight Association today. Their amendments which proposed to strengthen the agreement were defeated. The roads that voted against them were the Chicago & Alton, the Chicago & Great Western, and the Chicago & North Western.

The Burlington, having decided to withdraw from the former association, was anxious to strengthen the latter so it would recover every purpose as fully as the president's agreement.

An official said: "In my opinion both the Western Traffic and Western Freight association will go to pieces. The Burlington roads will be next year with an entirely new agreement. One result of the meeting of the Western Freight Association."

Today was a severe disappointment to some of the interested parties. Chairman McDonald's proposition to ask for a rechartering of the Eau Claire rate question was not adopted. This means that the 3-cent reduction from Eau Claire to the Mississippi river as ordered by the interstate commerce commission will be put into effect by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road August 15, and that on the same date other roads will make corresponding reductions on all affected points. The agreement will extend over the entire territory of the Western Freight association.
