The sociable entertained by Mesdames Rhodes and Stevenson last night at the corner of Twenty-first and Avenue C was a great success, and a neat sum was realized for the Temple Baptist church. A good musical and literary program, and games of various kinds were indulged.

Rev. S. B. Barnitz, D.D., who superin-tends the Lutheran mission work from Ohlo to California, will preach for St. John's English Lutherap church in the Young Men's Christian association chapel next Sun day at 11 a. m. He is said to be highly in-teresting in his address, and will delight all who hear him.

While E. F. Watts was returning from the fire at the institute yesterday afternoon in a rig with Emil Schurz the horse undertook to make too quick a turn, and one of the wheels collapsed. Both the occupants were thrown to the ground, and Watts was badly bruised. Schurz happened to light on top of him and he was consequently uninjured.

It will be remembered that Mrs. Mary C. Long furnished a bail bond of $1,000 for the appearance of Joe McDermott and Charles F. Wilson, the two men who were caught while outglarizing the Boston Store and indicted for the offence. The two men at once disappeared, and it was surmised that they would never show up again. The truth of this surmise was afterwards shown. McDermott is now serving a term in the penitentiary in California for an offense simliar to the one he committed here, and Wil-son is supposed to be somewhere in the same state. Yesterday a suit was commenced in the district court in the name of the state of lowa, as plaintiff, to recover from Mrs. Long the amount of the bond.

Death of an Early Settler.

Mr. T. L. Smith has returned from Kansas, where he was called by the sickness and death of his father, W. T. Smith. The old centleman was 75 years of ago. Ho was an Englishman by birth and came to this country in 1850, first settling in Council Bluffs, then known as Kanesville. Dangerous Work of the Volunteers-How the Fire Started-Estimate of the Loss.

At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon an alarm of fire was raised at the Iowa school for the deaf just southeast of the city. A telephone message was sent in to the Council Bluffs fire department and the hose companies were soon on the scene.

A fire had started in one corner of the drying room in the laundry at the south end of the main building; how, no one so far has been able to explain. The dry woodwork of the laundry burned like tinder and the flames could be seen for miles around. When the firemen arrived they planted the nescue steamer at a convenient distance from the building and began to get ready to fight the flames with it. But before it had gotten up steam one of the coils suddonly collapsed and the engine was powerless. An effort was made to repair the mischief, but it soon became evident that more would be lost than gained by spending time in this way. To add to the confusion, the reservoir from which the institution gets it water supply had been allowed to run low, as it was the intention of the managerment to clean it and repair it in a day or two, so as to be ready for the opening of the new school vear.

Meager Facilities for Fighting Fire.

The facilities for fighting firs at the school were found to be of the measurest description. A few small hydrants scattered about the ground, with a few sections of small hose, more suitable for watering a grass plat than for saving a burning building, were all that could be found. The water from the reservoir was soon exhausted, and the firamen had to fall back on a water supply from an artesian well. The most rigid economy had to be used in the matter of water, and, although handicapped in almost every conceivable direc-tion, the Council Blaffs Fire department, under the direction of Chief Nicholson, did most heroic and effective work. The fire in the laundry was finally extin guished and then the most strenuous efforts were put forth to keep the flames from being communicated to the rest of the building. The ice house, which was of wood and stood adjoining the laundry, soon caught fire and the cinders which filled the air and alighted on the root of the surrounding buildings made it necessary that a force of men bo kept constantly at work to prevent the demolition of the whole structure. By this time a large number of people had come out from the city and they were organized into a fire-fighting force to assist the firemen and the employes of the institution. A line of men with buckets was formed and water handed along from a neighboring well to the men on the roofs, who used it in extinguishing the small patches of flame that started here and there, Heroic Efforts of the Firemen.

It was not until nearly 5 o'clock that the two-story frame icehouse that stood in angle form by the south wing of the main building and the burned annex fell to the ground and removed the probability of the destruc-tion of the entire institution. It was a tail building with but little ice in it and the timber of which it was composed was thoroughly scorched and dried out by the burned with a fierce heat, blistering and scorching the wooden cornice and window frames of the south wing and the main building.

Only the heroic efforts of the members of the city fire department and some of the emout of the door: ployes of the institution kept the fire from the main building. The exposed windows were covered with blankets and these were by the bu partment prevented complete destruction as it was.

Estimate of the Loss, It is difficult to estimate the loss, as no one could be found who seemed competent to fix the value of the destroyed machinery. The annex, which was completely destroyed, con-tained the laundry, the engine rooom, boiler rooms, coal houses and electric lighting plant. Only the ragged walls were left standing, and they will have to be pulled down. The whole structure was filled with expensive machinery and not a thing was saved. The loss will probably reach $20,000 or $25,000. Rothert could give no informa-tion about anything or be induced to answer civilly a single question.

The fire leaves the institution in pretty bad shape, with the autumn term almost ready to commence and the whole working part of the structure totally destroyed. All the pupils, teachers and employes of the institution, who were living in the main building and dormitories, carried their ef-fects out and the bandsome lawn was covered with trunks and household goods.

POTTAWATTAMIE DEMOCRATS.

They Hold Their County Convention and Select Delegates. The Pottawattamie county democrats held their convention vesterday afternoon. There were no candidates to put in nomination and only one candidate that was thought enough of by the local democracy to give instructions for, and no political questions to cause resolutions. Almost the only thing before the convention was the election of delegates to attend the state, judicial and congressional conventions. Consequently, the convention was a quiet affair, barring a few times, when the natural democratic tendency for all to talk at once and get as mixed up as possible on parsiamentary usage insisted on crouping out.

Temporary Officers Selected. The convention was called to order by Chairman S. B. Wadsworth of the county central committee, and J. R. Dietrich was elected temporary chairman and O. H.

Marsh of Oakland temporary scoretary. The following committee on credentials was then appointed: Dr. Harvey of Neoia, C. D. Walters, W. A. Groneweg, G. Died-rich of Avoca, J. B. Johansen of Walnut. As soon as the committee had retired from the room W. H. Ware moved that the chairman appoint a committee consisting of one member from each voting precinct in the county, whose duty it should be to select delegates to attend the state, congressional and judicial conventions. Some discussion was caused by this, and amendments to the amendment were made until the question before the house became a matter of some uncertainty. The difficulty was finally overcome by Ware's motion to was many overcome by ware's motion to table all the amendments, which was carried. The committee was: O. H. Marsh, Bel-knap township; George Thomas, Booner; George Dye, Carson; William Currie, Cress court, Lick B. Kooner, Carner, Orige For dinner, or only take a recess, and on this great question amendments, substitutes, points of order, and other devices for killing time were thrown in for about fifteen min-utes. By the end of that time the chairman and the members were in a bag confusion Atlast some one remembered that a motion to adjourn was always in order. The con-vention seized the idea engerly and drifted

SOUTH OMAHA. Probability That the Talked Of School Levy Will Yet Be Made.

That much discussed school levy of 1214 milis is liable to be made yet this year. The Board of Elucation, at the June meeting, declared it necessary to have more buildings and reported to the county commissioners that a levy of 1214 mills would be required to erect buildings and purchase sites. Upon an opinion from County Attorney Manoney the commissioners refused to make the levy, holding that the city council of South Omaha is the proper body to make the levy. Attorney Farnsworth of the school board held a different view and began mandamus proceedings to compel the commissioners to make the levy. Judge Irvine heard the arguments in the case and has handed down his decision. The judge bolds that the school board of South Omaha is working under the charter of a city of the second-class and that the county commissioners shall make the levy for school poses and not the city council. He refused the application for a mandamus to compet the commissioners to make the levy on the ground that the report of the Board of Edu-cation to the commissioners was irregular. The report was faulty in that it did not state the amount in dollars and cents, and instead named a 1214 mills levy as the amount re-quired. The judge also held that the school board could file an amended report with the commissioners and they could make the levy yet this year. The amended report has been field.

Property Owners Object.

At a recent meeting of the city council an ordinanco was introduced granting to the Rock Island the right of way over Orleans street in Jetter's addition, from Twentysixth to Twenty-eighth streets. The ordinance was referred to the ordinance committee and that committee has been looking into the matter. The railroad company wants the use of that street to put in a switch to Jetter's brewery, but has said nothing about paying any damages to the property owners. The citizens who own property on that street are not anxious to have the right of way granted without receiving damages and claim that instead of one track being placed there, three or four will be put down and that the commany's will be put down and that the company' scheme is to gain entrance to the Union stock yards. The ordinance will be reported upon by the committee at Monday evening's session of the council and the report will probab'y not be favorable to the ordinance.

Arrest of a Wife Beater.

A sad-faced little woman with tear-dimmed eyes came into the police station last evening, and related a story that, if true, shows her husband to be more of a prute than a man. The woman's name, is Mrs. John Grogan and she resides with her husband at Thirty-second and I streets. She says her husband is employed a portion of the time at the ('udahy packing house and that the rest of his time is occupied in drinking and abus-ing her. Last night he came home and by way of amusement broke three chairs over her head and shoulders. The poor woman's head and face were badly bruised and swollen, Grogan was arrested and will ap-pear before Judge Fowler today.

Mr. DeLong Hurt.

Uncle Henry DeLong, the good Samaritan whom everybody knows, narrowly escaped a tragic death yesterday. He was digging a well for a farmer five miles out of town and when at its bottom, twenty feet from the surface, the heavy oaken tub used to carry up the earth and holding about half a barrel slipped from the book on the rope just as it was started down. His son was working the windiass and he shouled a warning dow the shaft. The old man realized what was coming and stood close to the wall with his hands over his head. The heavy tub struck him a glancing blow on the right arm and crushed his foot. The tub was heavily ironed and weighed nearly 100 pounds His escape from instant death was miraculous.

passed water through the chapel to the men who endured the intense beat in the building and threw the water from the inside. Other and still more daring men stoed on the roo of the south wing enveloped in wet blankets and noured water on the cornice. They were in a heat so intense that the woodwork at their feet would ignite and blaze, and the water they would pour upon it would flash up into steam. They would climb up the sharp ridge of the slate roof, get a breath of cooler air and return with another bucket, constantly in imminent danger of being stricken down by the awful heat or making stricken down by the awful heat or making a misstep and failing headlong to death on the pavement below. These men were the real herces of the day, and deserve the thanks of the people of Jowa more than all others that the magnificent building is not now a mass of blackened runs. All of their names could not be ascertained, but three of them were members of the Council Bluffs fire department-Robert Huntington, Charles Watts and Charlie Jonley. One of the others was F. W. Balluf, the engineer at the institution. They are the men who saved the building. But they did not escape unscathed. Hurtington is baily burned about the head and face. His hair, eyebrows and mustache were burned and his neck and hands severely blistered. Mr. Watts suf-fered the same fate, but although he remained at the dangerous post longer than anybody else he was not quite as badly burned as Huntington. Of all the men he, perbaps, deserves the greatest praise for his coolness and bravery, although the other men did not flinch even when the avalanche of flame swept down upon them. The Supreme Moment of Danger.

Near the icebouse stood a tall, partially completed derrick to be used in the con struction of another artesian well. This was blazing from tob to bottom and was sending showers of sparks over the build-ings. When it fell it crushed down the greater part of the icehouse, and then was the supreme moment of danger to the main building. The flames leaped up a hundred feet above the roof and were carried by the south wind over the south wing and the main tuilding. It drove the firemen and the men at the south end of the rool temporarily from their posts and when they returned covered with their wet they returned covered with their wet blankets the window frames and cornices were ablaze, but they bravely fought out the fire as they had been doing for an hour. In a few moments the blaze died down and the wind could no longer carry the flames to-ward the buildings, and the exhausted heroes came down from their perilous station and bathed their blistered hands and faces and bathed their blistered hands and faces The woolen suits of every one of them were scorched, and their blackened faces and crisped hair indicated the condition of the awful furnace in which they had been staying.

On the roof of the main building was another party of equally brave men headed by J. A. Murphy, Jobn Cappin and A. B. Mair. They were not exposed to such a terrific heat out they were on a steeper and more dangerous roof, five stories above the pavement. It was a tin roof, but it had been coated with inflammable tar, and this was coated with inflammable tar, and, Murphy ablaze in a dozen places at once. Murphy stood on the cornice in the smoke ninety feat from the ground and pulled up pail after pail of water with a long rope. The buckets would catch on these stone copings and window caps as he drew them up, and no one but a man with iron nerves and a clear brain could have kept his balance a moment. Many times their clothes were on fire, and the little water they could get up went but little way toward suppressing the blazing tar. They did the most execution by biazing tar. They did the most execution by beating and stamping out the little patches of fire with their coats and feet. The question of the adequacy of the fire protection furnished by the institution itself was carefully inquired into by many of the people there, and the absurd inadequacy, so people there, and the absurd inadequacy, so apparent to all, caused the management to be severely criticised. The worst rattled man on the grounds was Superintendent Rothert himself, and unless some one more competent to manage a fire had been present the entire structure would have been destroyed, no imatter what means the state had provided to protect the building. New Factories.

That is what Council Bluffs is to have within the next six manths, according to the agreement which has been entered into between William Maloney of Essex, Ia., and a number of the citizens of the city. Mr. Maloney has been in the agricultural implement business at Essex for some time past, but he has found that place not adapted for any large institution, and he has consequently been casting about for some piace to move to where he can carry on the manufacture of what is known in the implement business as "spring goods." A committee of the busi-ness men of the city has been carrying on negotiation with him for some time past, and Mr. Maloney has been greatly taken with the city as a location for the kind of business in which he expected to embark. A contract has been entered into whereby the citizens agree to pay him a small bonus, to be used in purchasing a business site, in con-sideration for his building a three-story brick building, 95x150 in size, and organize a company with a capital stock of $50,000 to operate the factory.
