A Grave Social Problem Considered—Marvellous Patience of Mothers—Fropose About of Sick Rooms—Gossip About Women—The Latest Fashions.

These things, says the New York Tribune, abundance of fresh air and sunshine is the most important factor in the physician's treatment. There is far more danger of the patient breathing the air of a sick room than there is of him breathing the air of an open fire.

Oh, would the gods the little girl see, To see ourselves in others' place, we know, This quotation is a little ancient, perhaps, but it fits into our mind quite naturally.

The little girl is like the spokes of a wagon when trying to get a spirited and beautiful girl. It is wonderfully amusing to note the different styles of gait in which so many people carry themselves.

Very strong efforts have been made to bring that very handsome material, Irish poplin, back into favor, and in these days of ruffled and corded fabrics it is quite likely to succeed.

Collars at the moment are of the low, turn-down variety or nonexistent and an arrangement of lace, chiffon or embroidered fabric which, like a variety of ribbons, appears on one of the fashionable gowns.

A slender woman who wishes to arrange her dress skirt in picturesque and her hips, or to wear dresses of lace or net from the shoulders or her belt, can do so with the knowledge that her gown will be strictly an art.

Grenadine, gauze and barège are all fashionable and effective summer materials. The newest of these grenadines have a different twist on a clear ground in a different color.

A fact worth noting in connection with this season's wools are that many of the office, quite apart from the general economy, the German cheviot and pop goods were varied and beautiful, the latter having a variety of shades not seen in either the Scotch or English fabrics.

The military cloak of last year is here again, which is to be expected when remembering the immense stocks of this garment which were sent to the front by the winter sales last spring.
