While the winner stood at the post, before the race had started, saliva flowed from his nostrils to the track in profuse quantities, and the fifty or a hundred people that had journeyed to the post to . see the seven contestants for the Futurity struggle thought that Frainer Frank Vanness must be crazy to send his colt to the post in such condition. They were astonished beyond description to learn on their return to the judges' stand that the same colt had won the $75,000 by two open lengths from Lady Violet.

Morello's victory demonstrates two startling facts: first, that he is an exceptionall v game animal; secondly, that this year's 2year-olds are worse than a bad lot.

After a ten minutes' delay in getting the field bunched, Starter Rowe dropped his flag on a good start with Lovelace in first place. He was outspeeded in the opening sixteenth by Belladenna coit, on which Hamilton was by Dehadoing cont, on which Hamilton was endeavoring to make a runaway race. At the bend into the home stretch proper, or at the end of three furlongs, Morelio was seen to be breaking through from the bunch, while of the holf much and how may at the Bollo at the half mile post he was at the Beila-donna colt's neck, and Hamilton began to whip Keene's colt in a desperate but futile effort to obtain first place.

Riding for the Money.

Nearing the last furiong post Hayward's feet went up in the air and came down with vicious severity on Morello's sides. He then took a live in each hand and began to ride the game son of Eolus, who was right at home in the mud his daddy loved so well. From that point to the finish it was no race at all, Morello outspeeding his opponents and winning, eased up in the last dozen strides, by two lengths in 1:121-5, corking good time, considering the heavy condition of the track.

Garrison rode one of his old time finishes on Ludy Violet, but she had met her master and could only struggle in second, beating the Belladonna colt a neck for second money. As a great horse race it was a failure, all the glory going to the winner for his gamoness in running such a grand race in the face af his severe attack of influenza.

Two Jockeys in the Dumps.

There were two vory angry jockies at the track when the veteran rider, W. A. Hay-ward, was lifted into the floral chair adoraed with a horse's shoe bearing the letters "Futurity" in pinks. They were Jockies Fitzpatrick and Isaac Murphy. Fitzpatrick has ridden Morello in nearly all of his races, and it was his great desire to throw his leg over him and win the Futurity. Besides, he as to receive a fee of $7,000 if Morello won. Gideon & Daly, who have first call on Fitzpatrick, gave him to understand that he could ride the colt, and he knew nothing to the contrary until this morning, when the firm notified him that he would have to re-main on the ground, as they would start the Annie colt and did not propose to allow Fitzpatrick to ride any other horse in the race. Fitzpatrick was too heavy to make Annie colt's weight and Simma was given the mount. This explains Fitzpatrick not riding Morello, also his loss of $7,000 that surely would have been his had Gizeon & Daly given him permission to ride Morelio to

The other aggrieved jockey is Isaac Murphy. Murphy is under contract to the Ehret stable, which started two candidates in Sir Francis un'i Ledgerwood. Mr. Ehret lurphy ride either on colts and allo declined to let him ride Morello. By this action Marphy lost all chances of receiving the $7,000. The trainer of Morello was in a state of mind. Both Filzpatrick and Murphy had promised to ride the colt, but at the last moment neither could obtain the necessary permission from their respective trainers. Fortune's y Billy Hayward was disengaged and he accepted the mount, for which ha will receive the $7,000. The friends of Fitzpatrick and Murphy are tonight denouncing the Ehret and Daly & Gldcor people in vers strong terms, while Fitzpatrick and I're are mai clean through.

vantage of the gain of two days time at the end of the line the tickets for the Corbett special train are in great demand, and there is some talk of making these excursion tickets good on the regular trains in order to If there was any proof required at this late day that Cripple Creek, Col., is a model of good order it could be surnished by an incident a few nights ago. The camp was excited, there is no doubt about it. Everybody was on the street, and everybody had an opinion to express, but notwithstanding all these abnormal conditions the acting marshal of the camp was given the alternative of leaving the town within twelve hours by the stage or besent across the range by the rope route? Could anything be more satisfactory or fair to all parties? Such an incident of logical application of native jurisprudence at a trying moment is without parallel since Black-stone wrote and the Code Napoleon went into effect.

It is hardly necessary to state that the town was dumfounded, bamboozled, paralyzed and senseless when both propositions were related. The marshal is still in town, and the people are trying to recover from the shock. Two miners were desirous of settling the timeworn grudge with nature's weapons and were repairing to a suitable spot when the marshal stepped up and arrested one of them. He objected

Ten bodies were recovered of men who did not have a second's warning of their late. The boules of two men were discovered, however, who had apparently made a frantic attempt to escape. At noon, while the band of rescuers were working in the pit, a sound was heard which caused the men to suddenly suspend. Soon a repetition of the sound was heard, low and weak, but indicating a life beyond the great wall of rock and debris. The work of res-cue was now prassed with herculcan energy, and at half-past 1 this afternoon the drift was finally penetrated and thirty-nine imprisoned miners rescued. The scene when they reached the surface was indescribable. Wives, sweethearts, sis-ters, brothers, and in some cases fathers and mothers, were in waiting, frantic to see if their loved ones were among the saved.

The east might hear of an encounter in a Colorado mining camp without six-shooters, and withdraw investments, The marshal was somewhat rough with his prisoner and struck him with a revolver in the face. Friends of the man interfered and threatened to take the prisoner away. The marshal drew his gun. The people fell back and no one attempted to argue with the acting representative of law, if not of order. A block further on, and the marshal, for some reason, found it necessary to assert his right to the prisoner's jawbone again. Things McCoy had slightly the best of the contest. He broke a cone in the wrist of began to look serious and the crowd. which was quickly increasing, began to his right arm near the close of the light. Another match may be arranged and the noot and hiss and yell at the marshal, who made a forced march to the jail, a little log cabin.

> On his return uptown the marshal was followed by the throng, which was still increasing. He stopped opposite the Continental hotel and addressed his enemies.

He challenged anyone to come forward and fight him a la Queensberry or a la Millbank, and if the would-be fighter had not a revolver for the latter style he would gladly furnish one. This was pretty strong to a crowd of 1,000 people, but there were no takers. The marshal seemed to own the town. He marched up and down the streets and into all the "tough joints" in town, looking for a scrap. He had his gun handy, while at scrap. a respectable distance the crowd jeered and hissed.

There was nothing else talked of about town all night, and the more the affair was talked of the more did the crowd get excited. Something had to be done. A gathering was held at the Flagstaff at 10:20 p. m. Several mining men of importance were in attendance. The action of the marshal was dealt with in class way of the floorwalker near the scathing terms. door the direction to the men's fixings "Let's lynch him!" shouted a tender-from a hund ed throats. "Don't do anything that would reflect on the town," sind Captain Farrish. "Send a deputation to give him notice to leave the town or be hanged." This wiser coursel partially prevailed, but somehow a committee could not be got together to approach the marshal. In the meantime the more excited and determined uppearing were getting ready for supreme action. "Bridle Hill" had been giving exhibitions by lassoing an urchin paid to be lassoed, bear at hand, and his rope was secured. The lasseer was only loo giad to give it up, although his belt was stuck iull of pistols.

"Here's the repe! Here's the rope! Let's hang him "to" the flagpole!" eried the leaders of the detachment.

A roar went un that could be heard on Mount Pisgah, now it began to look dark for the marsHal. The more peaceably inclined hoped that he could not be found

'Who's the blankety blanked blank. blank --- that's speaking of lynching?' demanded the marshal, as he walked up to the center, the crowd cleaving a wide passageway. He had a sixshooter in each hand.

"Now, come and hang me, you roared the officer, as he brandished the evolvers.

The crowd consulted a very short time, and it was announced that a lynching bee would not be beneficial to the town, and further, that it was not hospitable to insist upon an immediate departure from any one in a new town.
