Some Fast Bievele Riding. Howard Hattenhauer of this city and Laster E. Holden of Omaba made a "century run" yesterday and succeeded in making some of the best time that has ever been made by wheelmen in this section of the country. They left Omaha, accompanied by about forty wheelmen from Councit Bluffs and Omaha, at 5:05 a.m. and rode to Elk City and back, a distance of fifty-two miles, in three hours and forty minutes. They then rode to Glenwood, a distance of twenty n wood, a distance of five miles, in one hour and twenty-nine minutes, returning, in the face of a strong wind, in two hours and twelve minutes. Most of those who had started out in the morning fell by the wayside before the day was over, but Holden and Hattenhauer stuck together and reached home at 5:12 o'clock vesterday afternoon.

BEEMER'S NARROW MISS OF FREEDOM

Captured by Deputy Sheriff O'Brien, Who Took Him Because He Was Acting Queerly-Mr. Bevell's Costly Attempt to Secure Credit.

Two more of the parties indicted by the grand jury on Saturday are now occupying cells in the county jail.

Beemer, who shot a man in the neck at his saloon on lower Broadway a few weeks ago was corralled yesterday afternoon. Deputy Sheriff O'Brien ran across him at a house at the lower end of Sixth street while driving, but did not recognize him. After he had left, however, he remembered that the fellow had acted a little strangely, and he determined to go back and get him. When he arrived at the house where he had seen the man he found that Beemer had become suspicious and had disappeared. A woman who was at the bouse told O'Brien that she had seen the man go into the barn at the rear end of the lot. O'Brien thereupon went to the barn and after a search found Beemer lying in the hay-mow, snugly covered up with the hay. L. E. Bevell was arrested late Saturday night, the grand jury having indicted him for obtaining money under false pretenses. According to the story told by Bevell, he represented to a storskeeper that he was em-ployed on one of the railroads, and on the strongth of the representation he succeeded in getting trusted for a small bill of goods. It afterwards turned out that he had been discharged by the company on the same evening when the things were purchased. As he refused to pay for the stuff he had bought the storekeeper had him indicted in order to force him to settle.

NEW, BUT NOT STRANGE.

Rev. H. P. Dudley's First Sermon at the Broadway Metholist Church. Rev. H. P. Dudley, the new pastor of the Broadway Methodist church, preached his first sermon in Council Bluffs yesterday morning to an audience that filled the large auditorium comfortably. He is a young man of prepossessing appearance, and his effort of yesterday made a favorable impression on his audience. By way of introsection he said: "I have the feeling that I am a stranger this moraing as I look around and see so many strange faces. But we all belong to the same brotherhood, and let us forget that we are strangers in the thought of a subject in which we all have a common

His text was taken from I. Timothy, ii., 5 "For there is one Gos, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus." He referred at considerable length to the meaning of the word mediator and the character of Christ as being the one standing between God and men, who by standing between God and men, who by nature were at variance.

"As the painter leaves his name in one corner of his pictures, so inspiration puts the name of Christ," he continued, "on every flower, tree, rock, star and every other work of God, proclaiming Jesus Christ the lord of ail creation. In Plato we find the highest point that uninspired reason has attached. Puto says that human nature has attained. Plato says that human nature is not able to comprehend God unless aided by God himself. If we shut out Jesus Christ we stand on the grave of all our hones, shut out the only light that is given to illuminate our pathway, and doom ourselves to walk in darkness There is an infinite distance between the holy God and the sinful man. Christ is the one mediator referred to in the text; he is the one who places one hand on the sunner and the other on the throne. The cross is and the other on the throne. The cross is the place where God and man meet. Wo come to the throne of God, not with the first fruits of our flocks and fleads, but pleading the name of Christ and his merits. We hold up holy hands without wrath or doubting, not because of our interent goodess, but because there is a fountain that washes our sins away; there is faith in one that lives to pray for us.

It lies on the summits of submarine mountains and the wrecks of snips that lie rotting on the floor of the ocean, 4,000 fathoms from daylight, jostling the remains of hose who were lost, but it tells none of the secrets of the fathomiess deep. But it connects the two continents together into one, and en-ables us to know what is going on beyond the thousands of miles that intervene. So with the mediation of Christ. Row in a Saloon Resulted in a Broken Arm for George Cleveland.

A fight took place yesterday afternoon in salcon on Thirtceuth street between avenues A and B. Two of the men concerned in it were George and Henry Cleveland, and as they came out from the fray on the underside they were the ones to be pulled by the police, who had been notified of the trouble. George Cleveland was completely disabled police, who had been notified of the trouble. George Cleveland was completely disabled when the officers got hold of him. He stated that one of the men in the saloon had struck him twice on the right arm and once in the face, with a heavy piece of timber. When he arrived at the station Dr. Jennings was called and it was found that the arm was broken between the wrist and elbow. wrist and elbow What caused the row could not be learned. Cleveland refused to tell who his assailant was and claimed that the attack was entirely without provocation, as he had merely gone and Baile's "Bohomian Girl," into the saloon for a drink.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

"Niobe," a "fantastic comedy," as the managers see proper to designate it, may be witnessed at Boyd's theater this evening and for the two successive evenings, "Niobe all tears" is claimed by the same management to be "Niobe all laughs," and the hundreds of audiences who have shaken their sides over its witty lines and absurd complications would seem to have unanimously alowed the claims. Rip Van Winkle slept only twenty years to awake and find things on this mundane sphere very much changed. "Niobe," in the play, has had a nap of over 3.000 years and wakes up on contact with a modern electric wire. Naturally, therefore, she can give Old Rip points as to her exper-lences and then leave him at the post, as it were.

At the Parnam street theater on next Sun day, October 2, the Joannie Winston Opera company will begin an engagement of a week, opening in Offenbach's exquisite com-position "La Perichole." Miss Winston has no rival in America in the role of Piquillo, the male street singer, she being the only woman who has ever presented in English the great French composer's chef d'oeuvre. the great French composer's chef d'ocuvre.
Her performance is said to be equal to that of the French artists, Capoul and Juteau, both renowned interpretors of Offenhach's tenor roles. Miss Winston bears a sobriquet —the "Tom Karl of female tenors," and during the week here will sing the parts which are ordinarily placed, by male artists which are ordinarily played by male artists, Miss Alice Johnson tings La Perichele. Mr. A. H. Bell, who has a reputation must-cally and dramatically for his performance of the old prisoner, will sing his original part, while the balance of the cast, with a chorus of thirty voices, will complete the ensemble. Following "Pericholo" during the week will be performed Von Suope's "San Sepastian," Strauss' "Prince Methus

A Missouri man who helped lynch a married man some years ago has had an attack of conscience and is going to repair damages by marrying the widow. The angels will smile at this union, and some of them will have to stuff their haloes into their mouths to keep from laughing.

Richard Manafield, the well known the atrical star who is now playing the part of Rev. Arthur Dimmesdale in Joseph Hatton's dramatization of Hawthorae's romance, "The Scarlet Letter." was quietly married to Miss Reatrice Cameron, leading lady in the play, in New York city recently. A young man about town was asked which he considered most attractive in the fair sex, face or figure. He replied in the following epigram: Quoth Tom. "Though fair her features be, It is her figure pleases me." "What may her figure be?" I cried. "One hundred thousand," he replied.

A propitious omen of republican success in the coming presidential election is found in the announcement that Miss Elia Spencer Reid, a nicce of the Hon. According to statistics, of the 328,000 divorces granted in the United States dur ng tnelast twenty years 316,000 were granted at the request of wives. This may indicate, as one woman commentator on the figures assumes, that man has been the offender in 96 per cent of the cases. But on the other hand it may indicate that man has more patience than woman in the endurance of matrimonial crosses.

A divorce just granted by the superior court of San Diego, Cau, adds the closing chapter to a strange story of a bride of but twenty minutes. About ten months ago the American ship invincible sailed into San Diego bay coal-ladened from Newcastle, Australia. She decked, and when being un-loaded by longshoresmen the craw was given shore leave. On board was one D. Rampaz. He left the ship for shore, and secured lodg-ings at the Paige bouse in San Diego and while there became infatuated with the land-indy's daughter. Annie V. Paige. To her he told fabulous stories of his wealth and family and claimed to be the son of a french count, styling himself. Baron de Rampaz. The dream lasted but twenty minutes, when the bride learned that she had married not a traveler, but the ship's cook. He was not a french count, but a West Indian negro who was plessed with a little better color and considerably better address than most of his fellows. The girl fled and sought shelter with friends and was kept in concealment until the bridegroom sailed from port.
