FAIR WORLD OF WOMEN. Society Takes a Back Seat on Account of the Weather.

SMALL DOINGS IN SWELL CIRCLES. Dancing Party at the Guards Army—Opening Musicale at the Lingerer Gallery—Movements and Whereabouts of Well Known People.

The Nancy Hanks gait which society struck week before last was entirely too warm to be kept up for any length of time, and last week the swells were quite content to get back into the summer dress which has prevailed for weeks. October, however, promises well, the windings now announced giving zest and interest to the chat in club, parlor and boudoir. But until this October weather comes society will remain without even so much as a mission, without a shirring at which its votaries may bow in humble adoration.

The Opening Musicale. Notwithstanding that balmy fall is a very strong attraction at Boyd's theater Friday evening, the Lingerer gallery was crowded by a critical musical audience to listen to the program as arranged by Mme. Muensterfer and her pupils. It was a model program in the first place, just long enough to hold the close attention of the listeners, and then there were no unfortunate waifs, but everything went swimmingly along, "like a painted lute upon a summer sea."

Mrs. Thomas and Miss Muensterfer opened the program by playing the somewhat worn "Marche Triomphale," by Goria, a bright catchy study with lots of opportunity for delicate shading, they played very acceptably. Miss Morley, a young woman with a poetic light in her eye, surprised the audience by her rendition of "Schalkowski's 'Chant sans Paroles' written by Xavier Schalkowski's 'Police Dance No. 13.'" The latter was delightfully phrased, the young artist showing a thorough appreciation of Schalkowski's intricate music. In fact, the young lady played so well that Mme. Muensterfer came in for great praise from her friends for shaping Miss Morley's musical education so well.

The "Dance Orlean tale," by Satter, for two pianos, Mrs. Frank Johnson and Miss Muensterfer at the first. Mme. Muensterfer and Mrs. Thomas at the second, was a musical gem, very new to nine tenths of the audience. Written in a florid style, with strong dramatic endings, it was a positive treat to listen to its being played by so proficient a quartet.

The Faust Fantasia, the bete noir of every piano beginner, was given by Miss Sullivan and Miss Foster, who played very creditably, considering their time at the piano. While playing somewhat slow, the young lady played so well that Mme. Muensterfer came in for great praise from her friends for shaping Miss Morley's musical education so well.

An Early Morning Marriage. One of the prettiest weddings of the season was solemnized at Holy Family church Monday morning at 9 o'clock, when Mr. Edward John McVann of Sioux City and Miss Laura Albina Longpre were united in "the bonds that last forever." Rev. J. G. Hillman was the celebrant, and promptly at the hour named the wedding procession entered the church, the bride being attended by Miss Katharine Whitney, the groom by Mr. George Thorp of Sioux City, Messrs. Oscar Goodsell and Arthur Longpre officiating as ushers. Miss Longpre, who is a beautiful and lovely girl, appeared as an ideal bride in a gown of cream silk crepe, with blue roses, while the bridesmaid wore a pretty costume of gray crepe with a French rose.

After the conclusion of the service a wedding breakfast was given at the residence of the bride's parents, the guests being: Rev. J. G. Hillman; Mesdames A. Lyon, Detroit, Mich.; and Louis Longpre, Detroit, Mich.; Messrs. P. J. Connor and George Thorp of Sioux City; Mr. and Mrs. Estelle, Mrs. Blaise, Misses Leibel, Flaherty, McVann, George Messers, Gustave Longpre and an ideal bride in a gown of cream silk crepe, with blue roses, while the bridesmaid wore a pretty costume of gray crepe with a French rose.

Mr. James McVann was formerly a resident of Omaha, having been connected with the Omaha stock exchange for a number of years or more, but during the past year or more he has been in Sioux City. He is an excellent railroad man, and much thought of by his employers.

An Army Day. Although the Army has often been the scene of gay festivities, the claim is justly made that never were its doors opened to a more thoroughly enjoyable dance by such a jolly crowd as assembled there on Wednesday evening. Notwithstanding the weather was slightly warmer than is consistent with modern ideas of ball room comfort, many very handsome couples were present, and the frequent adjustments to the corner, in which a very tempting and very large bowl of punch was served, gave evidence of the fact that the evening was a very successful one. The program consisted of the following numbers: "The Merry Widow," by Franz Lehár, which was danced in their attempts at enjoyment by the condition of the temperature. Celebrated Their Fifteenth Anniversary. John Block, one of the best known farmers of Douglas county, celebrated his golden wedding anniversary Wednesday.

Between four hundred and five hundred friends of himself and his family surrounded the well kept grounds surrounding his handsome residence during the afternoon and evening, dancing and making merry in a variety of ways, but no one more active or more thoroughly enjoyed the occasion than Mr. Block and the faithful partner who was going by his side for the last fifty years. Between four hundred and five hundred friends of himself and his family surrounded the well kept grounds surrounding his hand-

Mr. Block was born near Berlin, Prussia, and in his infancy he accompanied his life companion. He came to America in 1856 and across the plains to Omaha in September, 1856, and has since resided here. He has seen the old days and to an appreciative listener he never weary of recounting the adventures and misadventures of the days when money and no ground rent. The establishment boasted of only two rooms and an addition was necessary. To build this the Omaha stock exchange was built on the sawmill, Omaha's first manufacturing institution near at hand, at $15 a thousand. They had dry weather in the summer which drank the houses and blizzards in winter made use of the cracks. The roof was of straw and after a heavy fall of snow the cracks were half starved, chewed holes in the thatch.

In 1857 Mr. Block embarked in the express business with two ox teams and they were only two horse teams in Omaha at that time and Mr. Block says they were such miserable specimens that his oxen could run away from them.

In 1858 he bought his first horse and from that time until 1861 he did nearly all the express business of the city.

At the silver wedding, which was celebrated at his home at Fourteenth and Webster, in the little house still standing there, the mayor and all the city officials were present and the occasion was a red letter day in the social history of the city.

At the anniversary Wednesday the old couple had with them their son Adolph, his wife and three children; Frank, the old bachelor of the family; Albert, his wife and six children, and their daughter Emma, the wife of Morris Cronweaver. Among the guests were: Mrs. L. Clark, Beatrice, Neb.; Mrs. Frank Hart and wife, Rao Worthing and wife, Mrs. Veltzel and son, Mrs. Schraberg and children, August Schraberg and wife and Alvin Schraberg and wife.

Numerous costly and appropriate presents testified to the esteem in which the family is held throughout the county.

A Dancing Party. A very enjoyable dancing party was given at the residence of Mrs. Ward, 1107 Pacific street, Monday evening. Until 12 o'clock the guests enjoyed the dancing, after which several vocal selections were served by Miss Rose Rooney. Afterwards Miss Rose Rooney sang several vocal selections and the happy company dispersed.

A Winter's Tale. Mr. Locke Richardson, who has won the unique distinction of having made a complete circuit of the globe reciting the plays of Shakespeare, will inaugurate a series of readings Tuesday evening at the Lingerer gallery, choosing for his initial reading a "Winter's Tale." Mr. Richardson made such a genuine hit last Tuesday evening at St. Charles church by his rendition of "Dickens' 'Christmas Carol'" that the admirers and students of Avon's bard are on the qui vive to hear this talented gentleman read from Shakespeare's plays. Mr. William Winter said "It is a luxury to hear the poetry of Shakespeare read by Mr. Richardson—no imparts its sweetness as well as its meaning in a manner of such charm and with the grace of adequate art."

BLASTS FROM LEAM'S HORN. Hurry is the handmaid of worry. The fish that gets away always looks the biggest. A lie in business is as black as it is anywhere else. The devil knows man too well to be seen with a long face.

Nothing in the world grows any faster than a trouble that is nursed. Many a man has won a boy's heart by letting him to make a kite. The man who is running for office has no such word in his dictionary as rest. There isn't one man in a dozen who will take the word of a preacher in a horse trade.

People are going to hell who might be saved if they had not made an idol of their own opinions. As tobacco-chewing deacon or class leader generally feels the best on a back seat in a car of revival. As a general thing the more money we put in the bank the harder it is to lay up treasure.

It is only now and then that the Lord ever succeeds in making much of a Christian out of a stingy man. As long as prize fighting pays better than preaching the devil will appear to be having his own way in some sections.

Power of the Police. Texas Siftings: Mr. Murray Hill—You can do me a favor, captain, if you will. Police Captain—Cheerfully. What is it? "I'd like to have a good dinner at my house tomorrow, properly cooked. I'd like fried oysters."

Avoiding a Duplicate. Tit-Bits: Nicco (showing the wedding presents to Uncle George)—I wanted you to see them all, dear Uncle George, so that you won't send a duplicate. Duplicate wedding presents are so very annoying, you know. Uncle George—H'm! What's this? Nicco—That's papa's check for $500. Is it lovely? Uncle George—Very. I intended to send the same thing; but rather than annoy you with a duplicate present I'll send you $100.
