How the Populist Platform Would Fit on a Prosperous Commonwealth.

THEIR SUBTERFUGES AND EVASIONS

Promises the Independents Have Made and How They Were Ignored—Record of the Last Legislature's Extraneousness.

[Following is the conclusion of the speech delivered by Mr. Howsater at Stromsburg, Nebraska, last week.]

What interest has a Nebraska farmer in common with the millionaire who owns the silver mines of Colorado, Montana and Nevada? Just as much as he has in his own pocket.

Let us now talk about those farm mortgages. We all know that the mortgage in Nebraska is mortgaged. But if you look into the matter carefully you will find that these mortgages were chiefly incurred in the latter part of the year 1891.

to have them kept up from year to year so as to have the people in revolt. So far as I am concerned, and I believe you will bear me out in this, the fact is that the people are revolted against railroad domination because of interference with our public affairs, had gone on as we could have had just such candidates and such legislation as the farmers wanted, but they started a new party and left the anti-monopoly republicans in the minority.

Would it not have been much better for you to have had the Shubway treaty bill passed, which reduced the rate of interest on 2 per cent and increased the penalty for usury, than to pass laws on this subject? But the independents said that they would have their own way, and they passed the bill.

Now, let us examine the reform legislation and see what good Nebraska has got out of it. The reform legislation was chiefly based upon the idea that the republicans had been very extravagant, had voted thousands of dollars of the people's money away on junketing trips, and had burdened the people with needless taxation.

REID AND MCKINLEY AWAKEN ENTHUSIASM

Stirring Speech by the Vice Presidential Candidate—Other Distinguished Speakers Plead a Good Cause with Much Earnestness.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 4.—Music hall and Faneuil hall were both filled to overflowing tonight when the republicans ratified their state and national nominations with ringing speeches by Hon. Whitelaw Reid, Governor William McKinley, Lieutenant Governor Hale and Hon. Roger Wolcott, the two latter being the nominees for governor and lieutenant governor respectively.

After acknowledging the flattering reception given him Mr. Reid said he proposed to address his remarks particularly to the solid business men of Boston.

"The republican party," he continued, "is now in power. The country is peaceful, contented and prosperous beyond precedent. Shall we make a sweeping change? If so, why? This is the question for the solid men of this town. Up to last Thursday it was a question of not doing anything, but now we are called upon to do something without delay and without exception, wanted a change as abrupt and as important as can well be conceived.

"Our opponents denounce as a sham the reciprocity treaties by which we have secured new markets for our products in Central America, the West Indies, the East Indies and the Philippines.

"I mean to speak of Mr. Cleveland with the same respect and admiration as you do, but I mean to show for one who has passed our supreme ordeal and has been once declared by a majority of American voters to be the best man for the job of president of the nation.
