Mrs. Pettibone's Unique Experience with the Housebreakers-They Offer to Divide the Plunder with Her-The Lady's Courage Causes Their Capture,

R. H. Pettibone's house at the corner of Eleventh street and Avenue G was entered by burgiars yesterday noon. The house was deserted during the morning, all the family being away from home. Mrs. Pettibone was the first to return. As she reached the bouse she met a couple of men coming out, who had a basket jonded with provisions of different kinds. She immediately jumped at he conclusion that they had been ransacking the house during her absence, and ordered them to lay the basket down. They refused to do so, but tried to effect a compromise by handing her a case of soap, a lost of bread and a pair of giores. About that time Mrs. Pettioone noticed that one of the fellows' shirt front buiged out ispiciously in front and she ordered him to give up her jewel case, which she suspected had gotten there in some way. The two men saw they were in for it and started to run. Mrs. Pettibone called for help, and her cries were heard by an engineer who happened to be passing and who started in pursuit. While running the two men threw away what jewelry they had taken, but they were finally caught and landed in the city jail. whore they gave their names as James Mur-phy and John Hennesy. When they were put behind the bars they were immediately recognized by Frank Williams, who was ar-rested for stending four pairs of shoes.

rested for stending four pairs of shoes.

An investigation showed that a necklace valued at $15 and a chain valued at $15 were taken, besides a number of small articles, including a lot of provisions. Mr. Pottibone called at the police station last evening and after examing the shoes were by one of the burglars, he pronounced them his. He made the burglar pull them off, and as the latter said he had left his own at the house hi broke into, the prosperts are good for his going barefooted for some time in the future.

Fined for a Technicality. Dave Thomas, a former member of the Bluffs police force, was tried yesterday in he federal court for bootlegging. He stated in his defense that he bought out a saloon at Missouri Valley a few days before the 1st of ast July and immediately sent off a postoffice money order for $25 to whom he supposed was the revenue collector in payment of his annual fee. He then opened up his place and ran it for five days. A day or two latter the letter he had sent away was re-turned to him with the money, and he then earned that he had sent it to the ex-revenue collector. In the meantime he had installed James Maher, also formerly of this city, as bartender. Maher decided to close out the bartender. Maher decided to close out the business, and got the money order cashed, it was mainly a technical offence, and the judge only fined him $35.70. Maher was also indicted by the grand jury and was fined $100 and given a juli sentence of thirty days, a part of which was remitted on condition that he pay the rest.

The case of the United States against H.

D. Marker, also of rhamburg, was tried in federal court yesterday, and the result of the trial is being quoted by Frank Trimble as a sample of the justice that follows men who do not pay their attorney fees. Marker was tried on the same charge at the last term of court, but was freed, all of the wit-nesses for the government being afflicted with a weakness of vision that made it imossible to tell whether the man who gave them the fiquor looked as though his name might be Marker or not. His discharge was principally due to the efforts of Trimble, who appeared as his attorney, but he was not filled with as much fraternal gratitude toward his benefactor as might have been expected, but announced that he would not pay Trimble anything whatever for his trouble. He was arrested again, but when he was tried yes-terday Trimbic with his sure cure for good oyesight was not there. The case was given to the jury, and after a long ub ence they returned, bringing in a verdict of guilty. The grand jury made its final report yesterday afternoon and was discharged. indictments were returned, but none of the parties are in custody and the names are therefore withheld from the public. Twenty-three persons who had been bound over to Pacts About the Briggs Case.

"The question is not one of defending Dr. Briggs," said a graduate of Union semmary today, "but it is simply this: 'Is there liberty within the Presoyterian church for freedom of thought? If Dr. Briggs is turned out of the Presbyterian church it will be simply on the question of verbal inspiration of the bible, and those who do not believe in that form of inspiration will have to go out too, if they are honest men. The whole inevenient is an attempt to commit the Presbyterian church to the Princeton theology.

On the other hand, those who favor the rial of the Union professor assert that it is not a question of Princeton against Union at all, but the matter is narrowed down to this: "Are the views which Dr. Briggs holds regarding the great questions fundamental to the Presbyterian system of doctrine and in Darmony with the standards of the church and the scriptures!" The question whether he is a safe teacher is wholly another matter, for no man can be tried for heresy because he has the unfortunate faculty of penny misunderstood by his friends. That question might determine whether or not the seminary directors would retain him in the faculty but not whether he is a

The two men who figure most prominently in the two men who ngure most prominently in the trial are Dr. Briggs and his chief prosecutor or 'persecutor' as he is called, Dr. G. W. F. Birch. Dr. Briggs was born in this city fifty years ago. When he was 16 years old he entered the University of Virginia, and Union seminary three years later. He was a member of the famous Seventh regiment of New York and marched to the front. He was engaged in mercantic life after the rebellion for some time, and then went to Germanic the second of many, where he had the privilege of studying under Dorner and Rodiger. After a brief pastorate at Roseile, N. J., he was called to a professorship in Union seminary eighteen years ago, occupying the Hebrew chair until last year, when Charle Butler, the president of the board of director .gave $100,000 found a chair of biblical theology and requested that his friend, Dr. Briggs, should a trausforred to that chair

Few writers of the present day have been able to accomplish more than Dr. Briggs, He is an indefatigable worker. He became one of the founders and managing editor of the Presbyterian Review and has written numerous articles for periodicals besides several books, including "Biblical Study," "Messianic Prophecy," "American Presby-terianism," "Whither!" and a new one just issued, "The Bible, the Church and the Rea-It was "Whither!" that called special attention to his advanced views in regard to the bible. From the first he was bitterly opposed to the revised version of the bible and has taken frequent occasion to speak against it.

From a college annual this sketch of Dr. Birch is taken: "The first linkling we have of Birch was when, 230 years ago, the Protestant, William III., moved on the works of the Catholic James, at the battle of the Boyne. Birch was there. I see his characteristics. He crossed the channel, first, a decided Protestant; second, to conquer; and, third, to stay. In this spirit he came to college. He stayed with every lesson until he mastered it and led the class. Passing over a century and a naif, we meet him again, on the morning of the 26th of March, 1837, in thaywite, Pa., delighting the hearts of his nd parents, John and Harriet Reed Birch. Like all the rest of us, he made no history in his early life. He entered the preparatory department of Washington college in November, 1854, and in February, 1855, the freshman class. George came with a quiet but fixed determination to stand at the head of the class, and he did it. The reason why he took the first honor was simply that he forgot nothing, answered every question and solved every problem that was given to him during the whole course. Entering the Western Theological seminary on graduation, he con-tinued there, as much as his health would allow, until January, 186!. On the 19th of April, 1860, he was licensed to preach. February, 1851, he was called to the Th Presbyterian church of Springfield, Ill After several other pastorates he, in April, 878, accepted a call to the Bethany church, New York city, where he was installed pastor. German Riders Were Hardly in the Great Long Distance Race.

COUNT STARHEMBERG'S QUICK TIME

He Made the Distance Three Hours Soone Than His Nearest Competitor -- Emperor William Rewards One of the German Racers.

Bertin, Oct. 5 .- Count Starhemberg, Austrian long distance rider, arrived here at 7 o'clock this morning, making the distance in seventy-one hours, thirty-four minutes, or three hours better time than that of Lieuteaant Miklos, the first rider to finish. He finished in a galtop. Both horse and 'rider are in wonderfully good condition.

Up to 2 o'clock this afternoon twenty-five Austrians have arrived. Some of the Germans who started on the second day are making be ter time than those who started on the first day. Up to wo clock this morning nine Germans had arrived at Vienna, their time ranging from eighty four to ainety

TENNYSON DYING.

His Physiciaus State That the Poet Can Live for But a Few Hours. London, Oct. 5 .- Lord Tennyson failed to rally during the night. A dispatch from Haslemere at 2 p. m. says the poet is in the last stage of his filness and is passing slowly away, and it would not occasion sur prise if the next announcement brought news of his death. So many people call for news of his condition that special precautions have been taken to prevent intrusion. Ropes are stretched across the gates and only members of the family are admitted.
At 3:30 this afternoon the poet's physicians report that he is dying, passing away quietly, slowly, and may linger for some hours.

London, Oct. 5.—In an interview at Hazelmere : t + p. m. Dr. Dabbs said he had just left Dr. Clark at the bedside of Lord Tenny-son, who was then quite conscious and who did not seem to suffer in the least. Throughout the afternoon the patient's intellect was quite clear, he said, and occasionally be conversed with his son, Hallam, and others who were near him. Several times he inquired as to the time of day, and he made frequent allusions to his illness.

Boing asked whether there was not a slight chance of the poet's recovery Dr. Dabbs replied decisively; "There is absolutely no hope. Lord Tennyson has always enjoyed a vigorous constitution, which enables him to make a prolonged struggle with death. He has slept a good deal during these final hours, but only for short periods. He is nourished with beef tea, brandy and

On being questioned as to whether Lord Tennyson appeared to know that his end was near, Dabbs replied: "I cannot say for certain, but I think he does."

At 9 o'clock the poet still showed signs of life, but he was unconscious.

Lady Tennyson is nearly heartbroken over her husband's dangerous condition. She visited his bedside at a late hour last night, She bears her deep sorrow with admirable fortitude. Sir Andrew Clarke intended to leave, but the patient's condition grew so critical, that the doctor finally decided to re-main in attendance on him all night. Bulletin-Lord Tennyson died at 1:35 this
