Albert Treavor entertained twenty of his friends Saturday afternoon at his home on First avenue in honor of his 8th birthday. Arrangements have been partially made with Congressman Ben Butterworth of Ohio for a speech in this city on Tuesday, October 26.

The people's party will hold its township convention this evening at the headquarters on Main street in place of nomination candidates for justices of the peace, constables, township clerk and trustees.

The funeral of W. D. Thomas occurred yesterday afternoon from his late residence in the western part of the city. Rev. Dr. Phelps officiating. The Masonic order attended in a body and accompanied the remains to the cemetery.

The fire at the residence of W. H. James at 515 Fifth avenue Saturday afternoon did not originate as was reported to this city, but was caused by a door swinging back against a stove and setting from the heat. It was not the result of anybody's carelessness.

A meeting of the city council is to be held this evening, and it is stated that a petition will be presented by the Interstate Railway company asking for some additions to their charter so as to enable them to connect their lines which they have been building on paper for the last two years, with the different roads.

Dr. H. S. West was returning from a hunting trip north of Crescent last evening when his horse became frightened and started to run. The buggy was capsized and the doctor tipped out, but was saved the trouble of waiting to be taken to the hospital by some of his friends who happened to be following him in another buggy. He lost two guns in the affair, and the buggy wheels were badly smashed.

Two Men Disappear and Leave Several Creditors to Mour.

MR. MEAD'S MYTHICAL CORN CROP

He Secures Albums and Such Like from a Trusting Dealer and Then Vanishes from the Scene—Where is Frank Bogart.

W. A. Mead, a man living near Weston, is missing and the question of his whereabouts is one that G. S. Davis, who keeps a drug store on Upper Broadway, would like to have answered. Several months ago, he claims, Mead came to his store and bought goods whose aggregate value was about $40 on credit, saying that he would pay as soon as his crops were marketed. The goods consisted of albums and other things that a man could get along without.

About a month ago he left Weston and Mr. Davis began an investigation for the purpose of finding what the prospects for crops were. He found that Mr. Mead's crops had been mostly in his eye, and that he had been working for other men at killing potatoes and securing an honest nest in the hay field, instead of tilling his own soil. A warrant has been issued for Mead's arrest on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, and an effort is being made to locate him at a suburb where he is supposed to have gone.

Frank Bogart, a young man who has been employed at painting the O'Brien house, has also disappeared. The only person he is said to be the worse for having known him.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children's teething is the family benefactor. 25 cents a bottle.

All the ladies who visited Miss Sprink's millinery opening were delighted and those who call on this week will be still more pleased. She has the finest stock she has ever had, and the best trimmer and designer.

Special campaign whip sale on Monday. Four choices of a whole wagon full for $1.00. Also $2.00, $3.00 and $1.00 each, with campaign banners. Charles Probstie, 215 Broadway.

House cleaning time has come and so has the largest inventory of lace curtains and draperies ever received at the Council Bluffs Carpet company's.

Large invoice of new lace curtains at the Council Bluffs Carpet company's. Ladies, if you want overgaiters, 50 and 75c a pair, at Sargent's.

A PAPYRUS MANUSCRIPT. Discovery in Egypt of an Ancient Copy of the Old Testament.

At the International Orientalist Congress held in London a most interesting document was submitted by Prof. Hechler, chaplain of the British Embassy at Vienna, a distinguished orientalist. The document referred to is a papyrus manuscript discovered a few months ago in Egypt, and is supposed by some authorities to be the oldest copy extant of portions of the old testament books of Zachariah and Malachi. These pages of papyrus, when intact, were about 10 inches high and 7 inches wide, each containing twenty-eight lines of writing, both sides of the sheet being used. The complete line contains from fourteen to seventeen letters. The sheets are bound together in the form of a book, in primitive though careful manner, with Egyptian characters and signs of parchment. The Greek of the document is written without intervals between the words, a custom observed both in old Greek and old Hebrew manuscripts. The papyrus is in fair preservation and is believed to date from the third or fourth century. This ranks it in age with the oldest Greek manuscripts of the Septuagint version of the old testament in London, Rome and St. Petersburg.

The differences in this papyrus tend to the conclusion that it was copied from some original Septuagint bible, which was first translated about the year 280 B. C. for the use of the Hellenistic Jews in Egypt, who having gradually forgotten the Hebrew tongue had learned to speak the Greek. The first examination has shown that it has several new readings which surpass some of the other Septuagint texts in clearness of expression and simplicity of grammar. It would also appear that it was copied from a different Septuagint bible and was not written, as was frequently the case, from dictation. A second scribe has occasionally corrected some mistakes of orthography made by the original copyist. These are still to be distinguished by the different color of the ink. This manuscript is deemed of such importance that the London Times devoted three-quarters of a full page to printing fac-similes of two of the ancient sheets, and a translation of their contents. The pages presented were from Zachariah, xii, 2-6, and as printed in the Times read as follows, the subject matter becoming divided in verses, as does not appear in the original.

2. Nations roundabout, and in Juda there shall be a seige against Jerusalem.

3. And it shall come pass in that day I will make Jerusalem a stone trodden down, as at the nations, every one tramples on it, mocking, and mocked, and there shall be gathered together against it all the nations of the earth.

4. In that day, saith the Lord Almighty, I will smite every horse with amazement; and his rider with madness; but upon the house of Judah I will open mine eyes and all the (the) horses of the nation I will smite with blindness.

5. And the captains of thousands of Judah shall say in their hearts, 'We do not see for ourselves the inhabitants of Jerusalem in the Lord Almighty their God.'

(In that day I will make the captains of thousands of Judah a herd and among wood, as a torch of fire, so stubble, and they devour on the right hand and on the left all the nations roundabout, and Jerusalem shall dwell again by herself.

7. And the Lord shall save the tents of Judah as at the beginning, that the boast at the House of David may not magnify itself and the pride of the inhabitants of Jerusalem against Judah.

8. And it shall come to pass in that day the Lord shall defend the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and the weak ones among them in that day shall be as David.

A comparison of these verses with the version in the latest version of the old testament will show considerable divergence of language. Prof. Hechler, in his remarks upon this invaluable manuscript, said it was sincerely to be hoped that this most valuable papyrus of the bible, probably the oldest now known to exist, would soon be published in fac-simile for the careful examination of biblical scholars. He added, in conclusion, that it was the pressing duty of the British government to institute an organized and scientific search for papyrus in Egypt. It was impossible to forecast what surprises might be in store or what treasures might be placed at the disposal of modern scholarship.

CENSUS OFFICE ROMANCE. A Young Widower and a Clerk Engaged to Wed.

The census office is the scene of the latest department romance. The bulk of the work in connection with the eleventh census was completed last winter, and a large reduction of the force was necessary. In selecting those who were to be retained to finish up the work, Superintendent Porter managed to choose a goodly number of bright, intelligent, and good-looking young women to do the light clerical service. In one of the divisions now in operation there are a number of attractive young women employed as typewriters. One day last June a good-looking widower from New Jersey had some business at the census office, and it so happened that he was directed to the room in which the attractive typewriters were at work. The chief of the division was absent at the time, and the widower was furnished with the information by the chief of the division. Fully 6,000 people lived Twenty-fourth street as the procession passed by. Chief Heckett and the police force led, followed by the department of the Seventh of the Military band came next, followed by fully 300 citizens on foot, 100 members of the Junior Order of American Mechanics, 125 Old Fellows, the officers of the regiment of Knights of Pythias, Lily Division No. 8 of South Omaha, Division No. 12 and Black Eagle Division of Omaha, Enterprise lodge of south Omaha and the lodge of Omaha. There was 175 knights in line. Then came the funeral carriage, Mrs. Miller and other relatives of the deceased, the city officials and 125 other carriages bearing friends.

At the grave the services of the Knights of Pythias were carried out.

Dedicated a Church. The new First Baptist church at Twenty-fifth and H streets was dedicated yesterday, services being held both morning and evening.

Rev. Thomas Stephenson, the pastor, was assisted at the morning services by Rev. W. P. Hellings, D.D., Rev. J. W. Harris, Rev. E. A. Russell and Rev. J. J. Keeler. The dedicatory sermon was preached by Rev. W. P. Hellings, D.D., and it was a masterly paper effort. The musical part of the program was excellent. The choir, the Glee Club of Red Oak, Ia., and J. K. Cook of Omaha lending their talents.

The evening services, as at the morning, were well attended. The interior of the handsome little house of worship looked very pretty under the bright glare of many electric lamps. Rev. E. A. Russell, J. W. Harris and E. E. Womertley each made a short address, and the musical part of the program was carried out.

The new two-story frame structure cost $5,500. Its dimensions are not so large, having a seating capacity for about 400 people. From the small vestibule on H street, entrance is made either to the large audience room or to the small class room. The walls and ceilings are frescoed in colors delicate and pleasing. The seats are of the latest pattern and of fine leather. The other furnishings of the church are good and the Baptist people now have one of the best and most comfortable houses of worship in the city. A pleasing feature is that all indebtedness has been wiped out and there was no encumbrance on the property when dedicated.

Over a Girl's Wages. F. Powelitt, who lives at Twenty-first and L streets, was arrested Saturday night upon complaint of Rud Hartz, who resides at Twenty-fourth and K streets, and is charged with disturbing the peace. Mr. Hartz employs as a steward a German girl, who recently came from the fatherland. Powelitt induced the girl to leave the house of her employer and to come to his home, and considers that gives him the right to 'raw her salary for her. In the role of a self-appointed guardian he called on Hartz and demanded the wages the girl had paid to him. Hartz was of a different mind, and told Powelitt to leave the place. He did so, but not until he had applied vile epithets and hurled abuse upon the head of the employer of the girl. For this Judge Fowler will be asked to punish Powelitt.

Boy Badly Hurt. A distressing accident occurred at Albright yesterday afternoon while the funeral cortege of Mayor Miller was passing. A boy 10 years of age named John Kratky was standing in the street observing the dazzling uniforms of the Knights of Pythias. A horse driven by J. Kane of Omaha knocked the boy down and the light vehicle passed over his body as he lay outstretched upon the ground. The scalp on the back of the boy's head for several inches was torn loose and he was otherwise bruised about the body. His parents reside at Twenty-first and Milroy streets.

Work for the Council. Several important city contracts will be awarded at the meeting of the city council this evening. One job is the grading of the alley between Twenty-third and Twenty-first streets, from L to M streets. The engineer's estimate is the removal of 30,000 cubic yards of earth, which will cost $6,000.

The contract will also be awarded for grading of streets from Twenty-second to Twenty-third and the alley between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth streets, from N to O streets. This work will require the removal of 10,000 cubic yards of dirt, and the estimated cost is $1,500.

Notes and Personal. Miss Ada Hudson of Gothenburg arrived in the city yesterday and is visiting with friends.

Mrs. Josephine Miller, living at Nineteenth and M streets, fainted yesterday afternoon at Twenty-fourth and N streets, while the Alder funeral procession was passing.

The Third ward remembrance will meet tomorrow evening at Evans' hall, Twenty-eighth and K streets, for the purpose of completing the organization of the ward club. The council will meet this evening. The members have before them the accumulation of two weeks' business. They will endeavor to bring order out of the chaos caused by Mayor Miller's death.

Mayor Miller's Funeral Draws Out a Large Concourse of People.

CANON WHITMARSH'S FAITH IN THE DEAD

He Refutes the Asperations Cast on the Character of the Deceased—Knights of Pythias Join Other Societies in Line.

The funeral of Mayor Charles P. Miller occurred yesterday afternoon. The entire populace turned out to pay the last tribute to his memory, and the streets were crowded with thousands of people. Many business houses and residences were draped and during the funeral hour the doors of each business house within the city were closed.

At 2 o'clock the start was made from the deceased home at Twenty-fourth and N streets and a few minutes later the procession reached the First Presbyterian church at Twenty-fifth and J streets, where the services were to be held. Lily division No. 8 uniformed rank Knights of Pythias had the funeral in charge. The church was crowded to its utmost capacity and hundreds were turned away while thousands realized the uselessness of attempting to gain entrance and remained upon the streets. The floral offerings were profuse, and of an elaborate nature.

The services at the church were short and impressive. Canon Whitmarsh of St. Martin's Episcopal church preached the funeral sermon. He paid a touching and noble tribute in language forcible and eloquent the calamities heaped upon his name, saying that it was a sad and a heavy burden upon the whole community. The death of Mayor Miller was a great loss to the city, and he hoped the council would continue the good work started by the mayor by eradicating the city from the many evils existing.

The romans were taken outside the church and viewed by 3,000 people. They were then taken to the cemetery, and the procession started for Laurel Hill cemetery. The funeral cortege was the largest and most impressive ever seen in South Omaha. Fully 6,000 people lined Twenty-fourth street as the procession passed by. Chief Heckett and the police force led, followed by the department of the Seventh of the Military band came next, followed by fully 300 citizens on foot, 100 members of the Junior Order of American Mechanics, 125 Old Fellows, the officers of the regiment of Knights of Pythias, Lily Division No. 8 of South Omaha, Division No. 12 and Black Eagle Division of Omaha, Enterprise lodge of south Omaha and the lodge of Omaha.
