Enthůsiasm. MORRIS PARK RACE TRACK, N. Y., Oct. 13. -There was little about today's racing to enthuse the most spontaneous follower of the turf. The two stake features, the Essex and Hunter, were won in the hollowest style by Helen Nichols and Yoraville Belle, both being prohibitive favorites in the betting. Fairy (9 to 10), Garrison up, took the opening race cleverly. Mary Stone was looked upon as the best of those in the second and made favorite at 8 to 5. Major Daly (12 to 1), opened up a gap of eight lengths in the first half mile, and threatened to make a runa way match of it Doggett timed his run nicely with Slepper (5 to 1), and heat the Major out a head. Hydy was quoted a point shorter than Arab for the third race, but the latter won quite handily at 3 to 1. The following events, the two stakes, were then disposed of, after which the Moyne golding (1 to 2), won the race in a gallop. Track fast; attendance, 5,000; weather fair. Summaries:

A reporter was received by Mr. Blaine during the day. His health being the first topic touched, Mr. Blaine said: "I bave just recovered from the effects of long railroad ride, and as I have been all summer, I can't but regard with pleasure the ease with which I have traveled

His voice as he spoke was strong and steady, and his smile indicative of profound satisfaction. Turning to the subject of politics, he said:

"My friends know that I am no longer a public inam in any sense of the word, and any utterance from me would seem uncalled for. There is no reason why I should tell republicans to do their duty, nor to describe that duty for them, for they know it as well as I, and they will do it. And on all politi-cal subjects I have only to say what F have already said in my published letter to Man-ley. I see nothing to add, by health has prevented me so far from taking any active part in the campaign, and I have not consid-ered the subject of entering the field as a speaker at this time."

Delegates from Alabama Draw the Color

Line-Other Proceedings. MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 13 .- At the morning session of the Congregational council the publishing committee and various other auxiliary committees were appointed. The afternoon session was scarcely opened with prayer by Rev. David Beaton of fillnois when Roy. Dr. Ross again brought up the report of the committee on the relations of the bonevolent societies to the churches, and presented a resolution recommending a division of foreign and home missionary work into two departments-home and fo eign; that the American board of foreign missions be made the agent of the foreign department; that the board be brought into closer relations with the churches, and that the basis of representation, when deficiencies and vacancies, as they should occur, be filled by election by the state board.

A second resolution recommended the federation of the six missionary societies, each to hold its name and charter if so desired, and meet annually at the same time and place.

This, in substance, was the plan outlined in the original report presented at the carifer section. The sole motive, intent and purpose of the report was to bring about concentrated and authoritative opposition to the American board, the recognized financial head of the church in this country, there having existed for a long time a feeling pre-judicial to the older officers of the board and the method of administrating its affairs and runds.

Heated and earnest debate soon broke out again and continued until the day waved and the lights began to flicker, when the whole matter was referred to a committee.

When the matter had been temporarily disposed of by reference the committee on credentials submitted its report. A fight was precipitated over the first clause, the question of admitting delegates from Alabama, the old State association baving sent colored representatives, while anothe clation alleged to represent sixty-three churches, gave credentials to white breth-ren, Rev. Henry S. DeForrest and Mr. Berry, and with a statement from these genflemen defining their position, the color and race lines word drawn at the same time, and the matter went over until morning.

Chancellor Von Caprivi Accused of Cam paigning on Another Man's Brain.

opyrighted 1892 by James Gordon Bennett.] BERLIN, Oct. 13 .- | New York Herald Cable-Special to THE BEE, |-I can guarantee the absolute reliability of the following facts respecting the genesis of the new military bill: The project was originated by ex-Minister General von Verdy, who, with the entire approval of General Count von Waldersee, at that time chief general of the staff. drafted the measure while he was in office. In Verdy's scheme, however, no mention whatever was made of the reduction of the term of military service to two years, although he seemed to be of the opinion that in time such a reduction would become possible. Von Caprivi unearthed the bill and made in it a few modifications of secondary importance, but the honor of having first seen the necessity of the reform and of having been the first to undertake that reform belongs entirely to von Verdy.

When, during the famous 1890 session of the Reischstag, he referred to the bill, Caprivi disavowed any intention of supporting it, although as a matter of fact be had previously warmly advocated it.

I receive these details from an intimate friend of Verdy, who, I understand was staggered by the check with which you Caprivi, notwithstanding his disloyal and unchivalrous denial, now utilizes Verdy's name in order to capture the votes of the opposition. This is characteristic of the chancellor, who although of no political capacity, has carefully studied Machievelli's famous book. Although Bismarck did not know the full import or all the details of von Verdy's project, Caprivi is now introducing nim into the discussion. I am today assured by one of the chiefs of the center that that party will in no case grant the 60,000,000 to 70,000,000 marks required by the chancellor, and that his only way out of the dilemma will be either to withdraw the project, which he will probably do, or resign.
