WYMAN-ORCHARD WEDDING IN DETAIL

Functions That Have Occurred-Promise for the Future-Chat About Omaha People-Society Sapped by the Columbus Exercises.

Society, highly trained as it is, educated to repress emotion and interest, was compelled to throw off its hauteur and nil admirari manner to go into rhapsodies over the Wyman-Orchard wedding Wednesday evening at Trinity cathedral. There have been many beautiful wedgings in our swell circles in the bygone, but none were so beautiful, none upon which so much money was spent to make it an ideal picture, as the ceremony of Wednesday night. The fair, young bride, in her picturesque gown of heavy white satin, Directore in cut, the battlements out lined with beautiful pearl trimming, the neck very high, relieved by Irish point lace bertha-like in effect, with long revers trim-med with pearls and a girdle completing a perfect tout ensemble, terminating in short ends, made a never-to-be forgotten picture of loveliness, while supporting the bride were a double quarter of pretty girls, arrayed in gowns made precisely alike, the material in all of them being the same, brocaded taffeta trimmed with chrysanthe-mums of the same shade as the gowns, the skirts perfectly plain and bell shaped with a feeting of proceded chrysanthenums corre-sponding to the shade of the costume, the decollete empire waists being finished with large full seeves, puffed very high, extend-ing to the waist. Miss Dundy led the procession of vestal mains wearing green, Miss Belle Dewey and Miss Laura Hoagiand wore vellow, Miss Daisy Doane and Miss Mc-Kenna lavender, Miss Pomphrey of Knoxville, Tenn., and Miss Lizzie Hooker, pink. while pretty and piquant Helene Wyman, the ister of the groom, was arrayed in white silk mulie with valencienne lace, round rying a huge bunch of chrysanthemums was a dusty maid of honor. The scene at the altar was very chaste, withal very impressive, the bridesmands ranged on either side of the chancel, while the ushers were grouped on the steps below. And in the recessional the effect was greatly neightened as each britesmaid walked alone from the altar to the litany desk where she was met by an usber and the procession moved out of the church, the choir singing that tender old hymn, almost, as old as "Boyiston" and "Brattle Street," "On Our Way Rejoicing." Then to add to the beauty and effectiveness of it all, the chimes in old Trinity's tower in a pacan of praise over the mating of two well known society people took up the music and they rang justily an intermezzo of joy.

As to the music, that also was a feature of the number service, that also was a feature of the number service, the choir of boys and men supplemented by the ladies' chorus singing in its entirety Wagner's magnificent wedding march "Faithful and True" as it is Englished, better known as the Lohengrin march, sung at the wedding of Elsa of Bra-bant to Lohengrin, "who went upward with the flood." The fresh young voices of the boys, the voices of the women, all combined to make an effect that has never been paralleled in the church.

But the beauty did not all rest in the service, for the church was decked with chrys-anthemums brought all the way from Catfornia, 15,000 of them, for the event, and no more appropriate flower could have teen chosen, for it not only typities the fullness of love but the fullness of love but the fullness of the year as well. The symmetry of its shape well fits it to symbolize the completeness of perfection which the Missado, the Son of Heaven, munderely transactive the completeness. danely represents, and here it found its symbolism in the triumph of a love which were chariotwheels with pedals for spokes, balls of fire with lambent tongues of flame, buttons of some natural legion of honor and still others suggestive of pin wheels in nature's own day fireworks. There were paims in profusion about the pulpit, in the chancel, standing along the choir rail. But this garniture of flowers, these garlands from Pacific's sunny lands, had little symbol ism to the relic hunters present in the church who, after the wedding party had passed out, despoiled the church of its lestal character by carrying off the flowers and ribbons leaving it a sorry sight. It was like sucri-lege to have the sacred place so rudely treated by the scores of uninvited people who usurped the best seats by reason of being on band when the doors were opened and crowding into the edifice like cattle, foreing many invited guests to remain on the sidewalks until after the ceremony. But the crowd outside was even ruder than the crowd within, the bridesmaids having to run a gauntlet of coarse remarks and badinage in their efforts to gain admittance. Of course no one regrets these occurrences more than the bride, for sne is essentially democratic, and when asked to have cards of admission to the church printed quictly remarked that all the people could come who had a mind. The shows that her simplicity and modesty were most shabbily treated by the mob, who seemingly were looking upon a swell wedding for the first time. Hereafter the wise bride the ushers to rigidly adhere to their intent The scene in the care of the Paxton where

The decoration of the bride and groom's table, heart shaped, with a pyramid of the confectioner's art in the center, was the subject of much favorable comment, it being very much doubted if the famous Sherry could in anywise improve upon its beauty. Everything was upon a lavish scale. The in dividual case boxes were also heart shaped, with the monogram "O. W." on them, while cupids, hearts and arrows entered largely into the preamentation of the sweets. The tables were lighted with many bracketed candelabra, shaded by chrysanthemum col ors, matching the gowns of the bridesmands. A band of music was stationed in the south corridor, opening into the parler, and the young people were privileged to dance if so minded, or else seek quiet alcoves to talk over the radiance of the scene and wonder who next would traverse the primrose path To the bridesmaids the bride gave beau tiful pips of enumeted chrysanthemums set with diamonds, while the groom pre sented the usbers, Mr. Frank Hamilton Bartlett Richards of Chadron, Mr. Henry Barnes of Minneapolis, Mr. Vecile of Moline Ill., Mr. Pierro Garneau, Mr. K. C. Barton, Mr. Charles Saunders, Mr. Dan Morgan of St. Paul, Mr. W. J. Cartan and his best man, Mr. Henry Wyman, with that sleeve buttons with the luitial of the groom on the one, the initial of the usher on the other. And the people who were at the reception were quite keeping with the brilliant entourage. They were representative of the life and thought of the metropolis, many of them having known the bride from childhood, and had seen her emerge from her chryslis a sweet, gentle minded woman. At 11:30 the bride and groom quietly departed from the scene of reveiry, and taking a train left for Kansas City, later leaving for Colorado Springs, where, it is understood, the honey-Springs, where, it is understood, the honey-moon will be bassed. The destination of of Mr. and Mrs. Wyman was kept a profound secret, not even the intimes of the happy couple knowing whither they were bound. After November 15 they will be at home, at 1913 Pacific street. Before leaving the bride did a very gracious act in sending to Miss Emma H agland her wedding bonquer, and also one of her slippers, as gentle reminders that in the midst of her happiness the bride had not forgotten one of her dear-st friends, who was to have been one of her both have known but never admitted until quite recently. ing account of the wedding is taken from the Des Moines Register:

"The house was decorated in an extremely pretty and effective manner. The hall was adorned with autumn leaves and flowers and the chandeliers were trimmed with smilax. Large ropes of smilax were stretched from the chandellers to the corners of the rooms and cut flowers were scattered about the parlors. The bay-window in the sitting room was draped with smilax and banked with roses, and it was there that the cere mony was performed.
"Thaver & Kromer's orchestra was pres ent and promptly at 7 o'clock the tuneful trains of the wedding march announced th approach of the bridal party. Mr. Will Chase and Mr. Frank Whitworth preceded the party and formed an aisle by the stretching of white ribbons. They were followed by the little flower girls, Misses Frances Wost and Greta Chase: the groom and his best man, Mr. John Roobins of Omaha; the maid of honor, Miss Mary Wilkinson of Keokuk, and the bride. The beautiful Episcopatian service was used and the ceremony was impressively pronounced by Dr. Sooy of the Methodist church. "The ceremony was witnessed by about sixty of the relatives and intimate friends of the family, and after its close their heartiest congratulations were showered on the young The bride never looked more lovely than she did in her lovely bridal gown of white watered silk, with pearl and lace triomings, and made with a court train. The bridal bouquet and a long voil caught with pearls completed the costumes. The maid of honor's gown was of white silk dainty empire gowns of cream siik and car

South Omaha swell Wedding.

The event of the week in South Omaha social circles was the marriage of Miss Maude Hayward, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hayward, to John B. Watkins of this city at 2 o'clock Wednesday after-noon. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's parents, at 1307 North Twenty-fifth street, in the presence of about fifty guests. The house was tastefully decorated with potttd plants and smilax and the marriage cere-mony was pronounced under a pendant arch of smilax. Dr. T. A. Berwick played the wedding march and Rev. Caron Whitmarsh performed the ceremony according to the beautiful ritual of the Episcopal church. The bride was becomingly attired in a white crepe trimmed with pearls and lace, which set off to advantage the classic beauty of her features. After the ceremony the her features. After the caremony the young couple received the congratulations of heir friends and thep sat down to a delicious repast. The wedding presents were numerous and expensive, testifying to the esteem in which the bride and groom are held by a large circle of friends. > Hutchinson and Cochrane. The following from the Evening Journal of St. Thomas, Outario, to ils the story of Mr. Albert Hutchinson's wad ding to Miss Cochrane: "A quiet welding was solemnized this afternoon (October 12) the residence of Mr. Adam Cochrane, Wellin gton street, when his youngest daughter, Miss Grace, and Mr. Albert Hutchinson plighted their troth, Rev. I. A. Macdonald of Knox church officiated the interesting ceremony being performed in the presence only of the near relatives of the happy couple. The groom, who is a brother of Mr. Thomas H. Hutchinson of this city, was formerly a resident of St. Thomas and is one of the young men who have gone forth from the city to find their fortune in the far west. In Mr. Hutchinson's case the quest has evidently been successful, as he occupie the responsible position of stationery agenfor the Union Pacific railway, with head quarters at Omana. He now has returned to his former home to claim as his bride oue of St. Thomas' fairest daughters. Mrs Hutchinson, in both social and musical cir cles, has many warm friends, who will unite in wishing her much happiness, while they regret that fate has fixed her new home a such a distance from her old one. Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson leave on the afternoon train for New York. On their return they will probably spend a few days in the city.

> Johnson and Ostergard. Wednesday evening at the residence of Mrs. S. J. Lawson, 1218 Jackson street, aunt o the bride, occurred the marriage of Mr. George C. Johnson and Miss Anna Ostergard, both of Newman Grove, Neb., Rev. J. W. Jennings of Norfolk officiating. Mrs. Johnson is the daughter of Thomas Ostergard, one of the leading business men of Newman Grove. She was formerly a teacher in the schools of that town and is one of the most accomplished and highly respected young teachers of Madison county, where she has a host of friends as well as in Fremont, her former home, and in this city. Mr. lohnson was for years one of the most popul lar and successful traveling representatives of some of the leading implement houses of this city and of Council Bluffs, and on September I was elected cashier of the Citizen State bank of Newman Grove, where he ha the confidence of the entire community. The happy couple left on the 7 o'clock North western train for a two weeks trip to Chi ago and other eastern points, from which they will return to their newly furnished home in Newman Grove.

Heafey and McDermott. Mr. P. C. Heafey and Miss Katie McDernott were married at the convent chapel Wednesday evening. Rev. Father Natinia officiated, assisted by Rev. Father McNalley of South Dakota. The wedging was a quiet one, only friends of the young couple being present. The bride is a charming lady with host of warm friends in Council Biuffs,

There were two or three hundred of them and they had an old-fashioned good time with no frills and furbelows on it. Mr.

Post's house is fittingly furnished for the stateliest and stiffest of receptions, but he does not believe in that sort of misery. There were tables loaded with good things to eat, and those who went hungry had thomselves to blame. There was beer for the beer-drinkers, whoe for the wind-lovers and tea and coffee for those who took neither There were lots of quiet corners for the gossipers, there was "dancing in the bara," and above all there was Mr. Post himself, in every place at once, fussing around for fear omeone was not having a good time.
If one might judge from the faces of the dancers who kept time to the strains of a fine orchestra, from the shouts of laughter and the singing of the singers, his amoition to give everybody a jolly time was gratified, Everybody was happy and left hoping to be able to attend "Post's birthday parties" The following is the program for Carrie Mand Pennock's concert at Boyd's Wednestay evening:

Death of Mrs. Clouser. To the many friends of Mrs. George

Clouser her sudden death on Tucsday was great shock. Hardly had they heard of her illness when "God's finger touched her and she slept." Forty-nine years ago Macgaretta Crockett was born in Quincy, Ill. An unusually happy maidenhood was passed in that city, and in 1868, when she was married to George Clouser, then a rising attorney, and went to Kansas to make her home, she left behind her many loving friends, some of whom are living here and stood by her Thursday. For twenty-four years Mrs. Clouser has made her home in the west, first in Kansas, then in Minneapolis and the last four year: then in Minneapolis and the last four years in Omaha. Her genial disposition and many lovable qualities won for her a large circle of friends, not least among whom are the members of the Cleofan, over which literary circle she presided as president for two years. An open book, with the word 'Finis,' was among the many testimonnais of affec-tion land upon her casket, and its mute sug-cestion touched the hearts of many. Her ove of books amounted to a passion. was a fine German scholar, and her choice library testifies to her excellent literary tastes. Her lonely and sorrowing sister and

Dr. Snields, the new pastor of the South west Presbyterian church, was tendered a reception by the members of the church and their friends at the church parlors or Friday evening. More than 200 Presby terians were present to welcome the new churches in Omaha. The Prasbyterian clergy of the city was well represented. Drs. Gordon, Leard and Wilson and their wives being among the guests. The pretty church was handsomely decorated with paims and chrysanthemums, each visitor being supmised with a bouttoniero upon entering the caurch. Dr. Shields is very highly pleased with his new charge and the members of the church are equally well satisfied with their new pastor. satisfied with their new pastor.
