IRVINE FOUND "NOT GUILTY"

Siven His Liberty by the Jury After a Brief Consultation.

HUNDREDS PLEASED WITH THE VERDICT

Closing Scenes of Lincoln's Sensational Marder Trial-How the Prisoner Acted When He Received the Joyful

LONCOLN, Neb., Oct. 24. - | Special to THE Den | - The Irvine trial was concluded today and at 3:45 this afternoon the jury returned a verdict of not guilty. The closing argument was made by County Attorney Snell this morning and his address was listened to with marked attention by the large audience

County Attorney Snell, in closing the case, emimed that, leaving out the question of the sanity or insanity of prisoner, it only remained for the jury to determine the degree of the promer's guilt. From the evidence that had open adduced Mr. Snell believed that Irvine was guilty of a deliberate and preme fitated murder; that he came from Chicare to Lincoln for the purpose of killing C. E. Montgomery; that he went to the hotel and wasted for his victim until the latter appeared. Mr. Snell dealed that the prisoner was laboring under temporary inensity, and contended that if Irvine had been a poor man, without means to employ from twelve to lifteen attorneys for the purpose of working up a sentiment in his favor, the jurors would not find it necessary to leave their seats to find a verticit of guilty.

Alluding to the elequent plea of Mr.
Stroce in behalf of the defense, for a verdict that was based upon a higher law than that found in the statutes, Mr. Snell asserted that in a few weeks that gentleman hoped to take a position on the beach, where he would have to take back all his fine sentiments about a higher law and the defense of the American

Mr. Suell further contended that even if the prisoner had caught Montgomery in the act of intimacy with his wife he would not have been justified in taking the law in his own hands. Having killed Montgomery, sune or insane, as one of the attorneys for the defense had claimed Irvine should be willing to stand up to the rack and take the same kind of punishment that he gave the man who is now in his grave. If Irvine had the right to shoot Montgomery, then some relative of the latter had the right to shoot irvine if he were acquitted.

Mr. Shell made by far the ablest argument on behalf of the state. It was eloquent, logical, even if it was not convincing enough to influence the jury against the prisoner.

Instructing the Jury.

In giving the case to the jurers Judge Hall instructed them that after satisfying them-selves that Montgomery was shot and killed by Irvine, they must next inquire, was the prisoner of sound mind when he perpetrated the act, the established principle being that it is the reason of man that makes him ac countable for his actions. The law, however, said the judge, presumes every man sane The prisoner claimed to have proved that by reason of his wife's statement in regard to her intimacy with Montgomery, together with loss of sieep, lack of food and great mental agony, he had become temporarily insane. The invers were instructed that they had nothing whatever to do with the truth or falsehood of the statements made by the wife to the husband. Such statements were only material as boaring on the con-dition of the prisoner's mind. The law recognizes such a condition of mind as par-tial insanity, and all symptoms of insanity are purely matters of fact to be determined by the jury, but the court ad-monished the jury that neith r depression of spirits nor distraction of mind from prooding over misfortunes, nor the most tense mental excitement from sentiments of jealousy, anger or revenge, not producing the mental disease of insanity, will excuse crime. Insanity is not innocence unless it produced the criminal act complained of. It he prisoner had an insane impulse to kill Montgomery, and could have successfully resisted it, he is responsible for the act of killing, but if such impulse was irresistable, then he is not guilty. The jury must be satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant fired the fatal shot with deliberate and premeditated malice before pringing in a verdict of guilty; and if, after taking into consideration all the facts and circumstances, the jury entertains a reasonable doubt of any matter necessary to constitute the crime charged it was the duty of the jury to give the accused the benefit of such doubt nd pronounce him not guilty. It was twenty minutes of 12 o'clock when

Judge Hall began his instructions to the jury, and fifteen minutes later the balliff conducted the jurors to their room,

Waiting for the Verdict.

After the jury had retired the court ar nounced a recess until 2 o'clock; but it was quite evident that the large audience expected a verdict within a few minutes, for cores of men and women lingered until the judge was seen to leave the court house. Aithough court was not to convene o'clock, the court room was half filled before o'clock. When 2 o'clock came the court room was packed to suffocation, a large proportion of the audience being worsen. As the time passed and nothing from the jury room gave indication that any progress was being made in the direction of an agree ment, some of the attorneys for the defense began to show signs of nervousness. Shortly after 2 o'clock the indge announced his intention of going down town and as the fact became known the audience settled down for a long wait. A few mo-ments after 3 o'clock, however, the word was passed along the corridors that the jury had reached an agreement. In a moment everybody was on the qui vive, and the court room, already crowded, was packed until there wasn't a foot of standing room. The attorneys were telephoned for and a carriage sent for Judge Hall.

At 3:30 the jurors were conducted to their seats by the bailiff in attendance and at the same moment Judge Hall took his seat on the bench. The judge spoke a few carnest words of admonition to the audience, re-minding that they were in a temple of justice and not in a theater for entertainment. stration, so matter what the verdict migght

The prisoner had come in attended by his uncle, Henry Irvine, white the judge was concluding his remarks. He took his place among his attorneys, and with a face slightly flushed looked anxiously into the faces of

The stillness in the court room was almost asked: Goutlemen of the jury, have you agreed

"We have," the reply came from Walter Hoge, who had been selected foreman of the jury. The verdict was passed to Clerk Baker and that official opened it, the audience still maintaining a painful sitence. The verdict was short, but it was enough. 'We, clet was short, but it was enough. "We, the jury, find the prisoner at the bar pol guilty." As the clerk in reading the verdict came to the word "bar," he hesitated slightly. The face of the prisoner was a study as he glanced from jury to clerk, and everyone in the court room seemed to open their lines for the shout of approval which went up from hundreds of throats as the clerk continued with the woods, "not guilty."

As the words which made him a free man

As the words which made him a free man were pronounced Irvine dropped back in his chair and his unce, an old man with snowy hair and heard, clasped him in his arms. For a moment frame bulled his face in his hands and then shood up to receive the congratulaand then stood up to receive the congratula-tions of his attorneys and friends. Everybody seemed to be in a congratula-tory mood. People shoes hands with the jurors, with the balliffs, with the attorneys and with each other. Mr. Irvine's attorneys walked with him through the crowds to Juage Hall's private office, where for ten or afteen minutes he was besieged with those who waited to shake hands with him. Finally a way was forced through the mass of people in the corridors and Irvine walked through on the arm of Mr. Whedon. As he passed slong one middle aged lady grasped him by both hands, and while crying and langhing at the same moment said: "Mr. Irvine, now ask Judes McCullough who Iropped his wad." The remark created a general laugh. Finally Irvine succeeded in reaching the street, where a carriage was in waiting, and he was driven rapidly to the home of his friend and attorney, N. C. Abbott, where his little daughter Flossie, who figured so prominently in the trial,

How the Jury Stood.

When the jury retired it selected Walter Poge foreman and then deferred further proceedings until after dunier. When the jury room was reached again it was decided to vote on the guilt or innocence of the defendant as to murder in the first degree. On this ballot the rote was unanimously "not gulity." On the second ballot, for murder in the second de-gree, the vote was also unanimously "not guilty." On the question of manslaughter, guitty." On the question of mansiaughter, the vote stood eleven to one. A fourth ballot was taken, this time on the question of acquittal. This vote also stood eleven to one. On the fifth ballot the jury voted unanimously for acquittal.

Irvine will remain quietly at the home of his friend, Abbott, until Wednesday evening, when he will start for Salt Lake City, in company with the gentlemen from that city who have been with him during the trial. His little daughter, Flossie, will return to her mother for the present. Mrs. Irvine has been at Omana during the trial. Irvine received a large number of telegrams this evening congratunumber of telegrams this evening congratu-lating him over his acquittal. The messages were from Satt Lake, Chicago and other points, and all were sent from warm personal friends. One telegram received stated that his friends in Salt Lake City were preparing to give him a big reception on his arrival home, and he would be met at the depot with seventeen brass bands and 5,000 torches.

Must Have Their Oli Inspected. Eversince the passage of the oil inspection aw a number of the corporations doing business in the state have been using oil bought in other states and have not submitted to the Nebraska inspection, claiming that the oil was for their own use and was not subject to the inspection laws of the state. The matter was recently brought before Chief Oil Inspector Heimred, who referred the matter to the attorney general for a ruling. If the opinion of the state's legal adviser is carried out the parties in question will have to comply with the Neuraska inspection requirements. In reply to Mr. Heimrod's re-quest for a ruling Attorney General Hastings wrote as follows "Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 20.—Louis Heimrod Esq., Chief Inspector of Olis: Dear Sir—I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your favor of recent date in which you state that certain parties are in the habit of purchasing fluminating oils outside of this state for their own use which has not been inspected as provided by law.

"Section 1999, consolidated statutes of Ne-oraska, page 439, among other things pro-vides that any person who knowingly uses for illuminating purposes oils before the same have been legally inspected shall be fined, etc. This statute I have no doubt was passed for the purpose of preventing any person fromusing oil for illuminating purcose a this state which has not been inspected. M'KINLEY'S TRIUMPHANT TOUR.

Trip Through Missouri an Ovatio from Beginning to Ending. Kans is City, Mo., Oct. 24.-Governor Mc Kinley of Ohio is taking a political tour of Missouri in the interest of the republican state and national tickets. The tour began at Macon. The governor arrived there from Chicago early this morning and was met by General George S. Shields, S. G. Brock, Colones D. P. Dyer, President J. H. Hark less of the state republican league and other prominent Missouri republicans. He was accompanied on his trip from Chicago by National Committeeman Kerens of St. Louis. Colonel F. W. Schaurte, Colonel Herman Bothwell, of the state republican committee, and Colonel A. C. Dawes. The train arrived at Macon at 6:59 and even that early a great throng was at the station to meet the dislinguished traveler.

After a hearty breakfast McKinley made a brief speech of only ten minutes in length, which was listened to by fully 5,000 people, which was listened to by fully 5,000 people, when the trip through Missouri was begun. At St. Joe a tremendous crowd was assem-oled at the union depot, and the train, as it steamed into the yards, made a lane for itself, backed humanity giving way grudg-ingly on either side. Against the east side of the depot a large stand had been erected, and to this Governor Mcivilley was escorted, the police opening a way with difficulty. The governor was introduced by George C. Crowther, and spoke for thirty minutes. He was given a most enthusiastic reception. He was followed by Thomas McChesney, a

A brief-step was made at the Burlington railway shops, where the governor ad-dressed the employes for five minutes. The train then proceeded without further stops ntil it reached Kansas City at 3 o'clock Phere was a tremendous crowd to welcome the governor, and he was met by a repub-lican committee and escorted to the Auditorium, where an audience had been waiting an hour to hear him. He was given a flattering reception by the crowd and spoke for an hour on the issues of the campaign, devoting particular attention to the tariff. His remarks were frequently and loudly applauded. From here party went to Leavenworth, Kan., where the governor made a speech of two hours' duration. An enormous crowd was present, and the speech was received with marked enthusiasm. The return trip will be made tomorrow, stops being made at the following places: Warrensburg, Sedans, Tipton, California, Jefferson City, Chamois, Hogan, Warren, Pacific, St. Louis.

WEEPING WATER, Neb., Oct. 28, '90.—Dr. Moore: My Dear Sir—I have just bought the third bottle of your Tree of Life. It is indeed a "Tree of Life." Doctor, when you so kindly gave me that first bottle my right side was so lame and sore and my liver enlarged so much that I could not lie upon my larged so much that I could not lie upon my right side at all. There was a soreness over my kidneys all of the time, but now that trouble is all over. I sleep just as well on one side as on the other, and my sleep rests and refreshes me, and I feel the best I've feit in fifteen years, and I know that it is all due to your Tree of Life. Yours very truly.

EGAN'S REPLY TO M'VEAGH

Recent Attack of the Pennsylvania Deserter Met with Calm Consideration.

EVERY DIRECT CHARGE FULLY REFUTED

United States Minister to Chill Carefully Reviews His Political Past and Answers the Criticisms of His Conduct.

New York, Oct. 24.-Minister Patrick Egan has made his reply to the speech of Wayne MacVeagh in this city which reflected on the moral character and official fitness of Mr. Egan. The reply is in the form of an open setter addressed to Mr. MacVeagh, which has been placed in the hands of the Press bureau of the national republican committee

The statement that Mr. Egan would make a reply to Mr. MacVeugh's appeach had the effect of drawing from Mr. MacVeagh an open letter to Mr. Egan of rather a caustic nature, which was published today. At the Gilsey house, this morning, Minister Egan said: "Mr. MacVeagh acts like a man with a bad conscience and as soon as the fact is published that I am to reply to his rescally attacks on me he rushes into print in an open letter, wit out waiting to see what I would say in reply to his charges. His tactics are those of a ponce court lawyer and will not injure me."

The following is the full text of Mr Egan's reply to Mr. MacVeagh's unwarranted attacks:

Gilser House, New York, Oct. 21.— Mr. Wayne MacVengh, Philadelphia: Sir— I perceive by the daily press that at a meet-ing held in Cooper Union, under the auspices of the Democratic club of New York, that you, a renegace from your party, as you are said to be from your people and your creed attempt to palliate your abostacy by under-taking to do that which the London Times. with its battation of testimony, chief among which was the notorious Pigott, failed to accomplish—to besmirch my good name. With the auroltness of a police court bettifogger you, under the protext of referring to something that somebody else said, assail me: First, as a "swindler" who "failed to account for a very large trust fund placed in his charge:" second, you say "it was well known at Washington when he was appointed what the charges were and that he had fied the country to avoid arrest and trial on a serious criminal charge:" third, you describe me as "a sham patriot and a fugitive from criminal justice" to which you are pleased to add that you were "greatly surprised and disgusted to find such a man selected to represent the country in a high diplomatic position, and that you not only reasserted your statement "that my appointment was an insult to Chili" but that you considered it "also an insult to every selfrespecting Irishman in the United States."

Not Surprised at His Course. I should have treated those coarse and cowardly insults, coming as they do from one of the last stragglers of the retreating knownothings, who found there is no place for them in the republican party, with the same contempt that I have shown for all at tacks made in the English and American press were it not that they were spoken at a meeting at which figured as vice presidents such names as T. F. Gilrov, William R. Grace, J. J. O'Donoghue, John D. Crimmins, John Sheehan and others, and that it is re ported that your words were received with load cheering."

I would neither be surprised nor annoyed that you should launch out into those ignorant calumnies, on the contrary, under ordi-nary circumstances, I should feel greatly restrained, but I am amezed and pained to hink that the Gliroys, the Graces, the D'Donoghues, the Crimminses and the Sheeians should have meanly sat in Cooper nion and patiently listened to you. convinced that in the entire ranks of the republican party there could not be found a single man who would make upon the character of any Irish-American so wanton, foul and unfounded an attack as you have made upon me, but if such a one could be found, and he should, under similar circumstances, there Governor McKiniey addressed 2,000 city any ball sufficiently large to contain people. order, and either he or I should leave the

In your great desire to assail me you have been found, I perceive, to fall back entirely upon my connection with the national move ment in Ireland.

True to His Stewardship.

To the Irish race here and in the old land my course of conduct in that connection needs no vindication; to my maligners on either side of the Atlantic I make no explan tions. In my connection with Irish affairs there was not one single act that I would take back, not one that I have to apologize for. For information of my American friends who may not be an courant with the matters to which your slanderous at-tacks refer I will say first: The "very large trust fund" that you mention, and in condection with which you dare to apply to me the term "swindler," was the land league fund, which amounted to $1,250,000, of whic from 1879 to the end of 1882 I had the distinction of being the treasurer. Upon resigning the position and turning over to my successor the balance of the fund the auditors. Mr. John Dillon, M.P., Rev. Eugene Sheeney and Mr. Mathu Harris, M.P., in their journal report, after stating particulars of the accounts, said: "We certify that every the accounts and the said and the said." item of said expenditure has been fully and satisfactorily vouched for, and we take pleasure in bearing testimony to the system-atic and strictly businessiike manner in which the accounts and record of said fund have been kept by Mr. Egan."

In addition to the balance of principal, I turned over to my successors the sum of 24,400 and 15 shillings, sterling, about $23 00, which I had realized as interest and profits on investments, while giving my whole time for two years freely to the eague.

Those Charges of the London Times. Second: There never was a formal charge ade, or a warrant issued against me, by the English government, the only "oriminal charges" being those made by the hostile press, based upon the Pigott forgeries. Those "criminal charges" were fully inves-tigated by the Pa nell-Times committee in 1888-9, with the result that Pirott confessed to the forgeries and committed suicide; an accomplice of his, the next day, when he learned of the fate of his pai, dropped dead in the streets of London; the attorney gen eral of England, Sir Richard Webster, as leading couosel for the Times, on the 27th of February, 1889, withdraw the charges and apologized for the forg-eries, and the Times the next day, in the course of a leading article apologized for their charge in the following terms: "Mr. Parnell, in the witness box, having stated that the letters attributed to be from him were forgeries, we accept in every respect the truth of that statement. In these communications we deem it right to express our regret most fully and sincerely for having been induced to publish the letters in question as Mr. Parnell's, or to use them in evi-dence against him. These expressions of regret, we need hardly say, include all the letters falsely attributed to Mr. Egan, Mr. Davitt and Mr. O'Kelly." The London Times lost by this entire transaction in damages and costs, the enormous sum of £216,000 ($1,200,000). Soon afterwards Mr. McDonald, the proprietor of the Times, died from worrying, and for two years the

Many a life has been lost because of the taste of codliver oil.

If Scott's Emulsion did nothing more than take that taste away, it would save the lives of some at least of those that put off too long the means of recovery.

It does more. It is halfdigested already. It slips through the stomach as if by stealth. It goes to make strength when cod-liver oil would be a burden.

Scorr & Bowns, Chemists, 130 South 5th Avenue, New York. Your druggist keeps Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver all druggist everywhere do. $1.
