

GOT THE DIAMONDS

Ealesman Pollock Held Up by a Lone Train Robber Last Night.

DESPERATE DEED OF THE BANDIT

Single Handed He Attacked and Plucked His Victim and Escaped.

MADE A DARING LEAP FOR LIBERTY

Jumped from a Swiftly Moving Passenger Train Into the Darkness.

POLLOCK WAS DANGEROUSLY INJURED

Shot Through Each Arm and Beaten Over the Head by His Assailant—Fifteen Thousand Dollars in Spark-ling Hoop Secured.

W. G. Pollock, a New York diamond importer, was eluded almost into insensibility and robbed of $15,000 worth of diamonds on the St. Paul express on the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railroad, just this side of California Junction, last evening.

The robbery was one of the most deliberately planned and successfully executed crimes ever committed in this country. It was a bold and daring feat, and one without precedent in the criminal annals of the country.

The whole affair was the work of one man who had evidently followed his victim until the time selected for the consummation of his daring scheme. To carry it into execution was but the work of a moment, and before the bewildered passengers could fully comprehend the enormity of the crime that had been perpetrated before their eyes or lift a finger to aid the victim the daring criminal had leaped from the swiftly moving train and disappeared, with the glittering motive for the deed safely in his possession.

Followed Him from Omaha. Mr. Pollock arrived in Omaha Thursday evening and registered at the Millard hotel. He called for his oil restorative afternoon and took the 6:30 train for Sioux City. There were perhaps a dozen passengers in the car when the train left Council Bluffs and nearly as many witnessed the brutal crime.

Among the passengers who took the train at Omaha was a slight, well dressed fellow with full black beard who took a seat some distance behind Pollock and seemed to keep his eyes on his movements.

The conductor in charge of the train was "Dad" Ashmore, one of the oldest conductors on the road, and it was not long before his attention was attracted to the stranger's actions. He did not think anything of it, however, except to notice that he appeared nervous and seemed to pay a good deal of attention to Pollock.

Got in His Work Quietly. After leaving Missouri Valley Ashmore went forward into the baggage car. The dark bearded stranger got up and paced restlessly up and down the aisle. When the train was about two miles this side of California Junction he went deliberately forward and sat down beside Pollock. Hardly a minute elapsed before the sound of four pistol shots in rapid succession was heard above the roar and rumble of the train. The stranger had suddenly risen in his seat, drawn a large revolver from his pocket and blazed away at point blank range. It would seem that the robber wished to carry out his purpose without adding murder to his crimes, if possible, for the first two shots penetrated each of Pollock's arms above the hand and the diamond merchant was taken at a disadvantage, but notwithstanding the painful wounds in his arms grappled with his assailant. Two more shots followed and this time the robber, rendered desperate by his victim's resistance, directed his aim full at Pollock's head. In this struggle he shot wild, neither bullet taking effect.

Pollock took him to take his money and spare his life. "D-n your money," retorted the robber, "give me the diamonds."

He tore Pollock's coat and vest open and took the pocketbook containing the jewels from the inside pocket of his vest. He snatched the diamonds which were loose in one compartment of the wallet and started for the door.

Pollock, though nearly insensible, retained his grasp on the clothing of the thief, who dragged him with him in his flight.

Jumped from the Train. The whole affair hardly occupied a minute, and the passengers had not time to recover their presence of mind to come to Pollock's assistance. Most of them had broke for the door as soon as the shooting commenced and as the robber shook off Pollock's grip Conductor Ashmore entered the car. He took in the situation in an instant and darted in pursuit of the thief. The latter had reached the end of the car and pulled the cord that released the air brakes. Ashmore was close upon his heels as he reached the platform.

The train was running nearly forty miles an hour. To wait for the brakes to have effect was to be captured. The robber was game. He did not hesitate an instant but as Ashmore reached out to grasp him he sprang from the platform and alighted on his feet. Over and over he rolled, propelled by the impetus of his fall, then sprang to his feet and darted away, apparently unharmed.

Caring for Pollock. In the meantime the passengers had taken care of the wounded man, who was transferred to the Sioux City & Pacific evening express and brought back to Council Bluffs. There he was put into a private car, and across the bridge to the Millard and driven to room 119 and Dr. Jones summoned to dress his injuries.

It was believed that he was fatally injured, but the surgeon's examination showed that while he was terribly bruised about the head he would recover unless some unforeseen complication sets in.

A bullet had passed completely through the fleshy part of each arm and a third had grazed his skull. The most serious wounds were those inflicted by the butt of the desperado's revolver, which had laid open the scalp in half a dozen places. It was a tough head, however, and as far as could be ascertained the skull was not fractured. The wounded man received every attention and

ROUSED MRS. LEASE'S DANDER

Studied Attempt at Topeka to Snub the Fiery Populist Moll Pitcher.

THEY TRIED HARD TO SHUT HER OFF

Omitted from the Program and Overlooked in the Hall-She Denounces Fusion and Democratic Patronizing Tactics in the South and North.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 4.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—The deliberate attempt of the democrats to snub Mrs. Lease because of her interviews scoring the democracy of the south has resulted in a clash between the Kansas democrats and a populist which may break up the fusion arrangements in this state. The trouble culminated in a row at General Weaver's meeting at the Grand opera house last evening, which turned out to be the richest night of the campaign. It was advertised jointly by the democrats and populists. The opera house was crowded.

Chairman W. C. Jones, of the democratic central committee, was introduced as the chairman of the meeting. Two other democrats, John A. Eaton of Winfield and John H. Atwood of Leavenworth walked on the platform to keep Jones company. A dozen other fusion democrats had agreed to be there also, but they failed to show up.

With them on the platform were Senator Peter Geyer, Weaver, Mrs. Lease, Judge W. C. Webb, Walter Allen, Jim Lopez, and a few more distinguished populists, as well as about 125 other populists, not quite so distinguished.

The opera house was crowded with over 2,000 people, but it soon became apparent that democrats were scarce. About 1,000 republicans were present and the others were mainly democrats.

Chairman Jones opened by introducing General James B. Weaver, who spoke nearly an hour. He devoted almost half his speech to an argument in favor of the government ownership of railroads, and Jones and Atwood backed it up.

General Weaver, in closing, paid a high compliment to Mrs. Lease and said he would now introduce her, but Chairman Jones seemed to think there had been enough railing and ranting already and would not permit her to speak.

Mr. Geyer, now out of office, introduced General Weaver, in closing, paid a high compliment to Mrs. Lease and said he would now introduce her, but Chairman Jones seemed to think there had been enough railing and ranting already and would not permit her to speak.

Chief Seavey received a message from the editor of the Kansas Valley Record conveying the news of the assault and the robbery. The chief rose called in his trusty men and put them on the case. Sergeant Sigward telephoned the few facts known to the authorities at Council Bluffs, South Omaha and Blair.

About midnight sergeant Sigward visited the night man in his room at the Millard hotel and inquired about the robbery. A description of the manner of the robbery was given and a sort of description of the robber. Sergeant Sigward returned to the jail after the interview and telephoned the chief's description to all of the surrounding towns and to all of the local police. Every effort was made by the Omaha police department to locate the nature of his business. He is very quiet and his habits are those of a man who is not under the influence of any man.

All approaches to the city have been ordered guarded and it will be a hard matter for the daring thief to enter or remain long in this section of the country without being arrested.

SHORT TEN THOUSAND

EX-TREASURER McPEAK OF FURNAS COUNTY SAID TO BE A DEFRAUDER.

BEAVER CITY, Neb., Nov. 4.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—A. J. McPeak, ex-treasurer of Furnas county, was today found to be a defaulter to the sum of $10,000. It was alleged that he had been at work for the past three months and today he submitted his report to the Board of Commissioners.

It shows that the books are short over $10,000 and have been in the hands of the Board of Commissioners since January. The reputation of being an upright and honest treasurer, and until this occurrence there was not a citizen of the county who would have vouched for his integrity. Mr. McPeak was in the city today to be present at the hearing of the report. He had no explanation to make. As his attorney was not present he agreed to transfer his property to his bondsmen, who will reimburse the county. It is not known whether any arrests will be made or not.

ANXIOUS TO HEAR MANDERSON

NEBRASKANS TO BEAR MANDERSON

NEBRASKA, Neb., Nov. 4.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—The Young Men's Republican club, squares and citizens, accompanied by the band, left for Syracuse this evening to hear Senator Manderson.

The campaign will be closed in this city tomorrow night by Hon. Allen W. Field and John C. Watson.

STUDIED ATTEMPT AT TOPEKA TO SNUB THE FIERY POPULIST MOLL PITCHER

THEY TRIED HARD TO SHUT HER OFF

FROM REPUBLICAN HEADQUARTERS.

Words of Caution from the National Committee.

New York, Nov. 4.—The following circular has been issued from republican national headquarters:

"There have come to the republican committee from various sources intimations that the reserve crop of campaign lies for issuance the day before election is very prolific and unusually sensational articles are to be published, presenting what purport to be facts from all western states for publication in the east, and the reverse for publication in the west, when too late to be contradicted, that shall have the effect of leading to the last moment of influencing a large number of men who are always willing and anxious to be on the winning side. They are to be distributed by the republican party, give over the west to the Weaver vote."

"Carefully prepared tables will be published to prove their assertions and demagogues will be allowed to make the most of the campaign and a republican all over the land should be prepared for just this line of attack. It would discredit all claims not based upon sure information, and the more sensational the stories the more they should be discredited. The Irish-American vote is to be worked for all it is worth, and every effort should be made to secure the Irish-American vote as the head of the ticket himself, will be quoted as having at the last moment secured the support of English interests and deserting the republican cause, and a wilder currency.

Believe only that which is consonant with common sense or accompanied by unimpeachable testimony, and do not change the conviction that has come to you as a result of your own conscience dictates and as you believe to be right.

"We have the assurance of this committee, based upon confidential and reliable information all over the country, that the nominees of the republican party will be elected by a large majority that shall be beyond all question."

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 4.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—The State Democratic Secretary Cook contradicts the telegram sent out that the state committee had completed the work of polling the state and that Colonel Stone would have a majority of 21,000 in the state.

"Our returns from polling the state show that the republican party has a majority of 21,000 in the state, and while the republican party has given out no figures whatever, our returns show that the republican party will be elected by a large majority that shall be beyond all question."

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 4.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—The State Democratic Secretary Cook contradicts the telegram sent out that the state committee had completed the work of polling the state and that Colonel Stone would have a majority of 21,000 in the state.

"Our returns from polling the state show that the republican party has a majority of 21,000 in the state, and while the republican party has given out no figures whatever, our returns show that the republican party will be elected by a large majority that shall be beyond all question."

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 4.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—The State Democratic Secretary Cook contradicts the telegram sent out that the state committee had completed the work of polling the state and that Colonel Stone would have a majority of 21,000 in the state.

"Our returns from polling the state show that the republican party has a majority of 21,000 in the state, and while the republican party has given out no figures whatever, our returns show that the republican party will be elected by a large majority that shall be beyond all question."

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 4.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—The State Democratic Secretary Cook contradicts the telegram sent out that the state committee had completed the work of polling the state and that Colonel Stone would have a majority of 21,000 in the state.

"Our returns from polling the state show that the republican party has a majority of 21,000 in the state, and while the republican party has given out no figures whatever, our returns show that the republican party will be elected by a large majority that shall be beyond all question."

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 4.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—The State Democratic Secretary Cook contradicts the telegram sent out that the state committee had completed the work of polling the state and that Colonel Stone would have a majority of 21,000 in the state.

"Our returns from polling the state show that the republican party has a majority of 21,000 in the state, and while the republican party has given out no figures whatever, our returns show that the republican party will be elected by a large majority that shall be beyond all question."

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 4.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—The State Democratic Secretary Cook contradicts the telegram sent out that the state committee had completed the work of polling the state and that Colonel Stone would have a majority of 21,000 in the state.

"Our returns from polling the state show that the republican party has a majority of 21,000 in the state, and while the republican party has given out no figures whatever, our returns show that the republican party will be elected by a large majority that shall be beyond all question."

GIVEN A GRAND WELCOME

Manderion Creates Much Enthusiasm Among Otago County Republicans.

STANDING ROOM WAS AT A PREMIUM

Flags and Bunting in Profusion Covered the Residences Along the Line of March—How the Democrats Received the Demonstration.

STRAZBURG, Neb., Nov. 4.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—Syracuse was decorated to the fullest extent tonight to welcome General Manderion. Flags hung across the street at every crossing and every business house was fully decorated, besides many residences. The republican league club of Syracuse was out in full force and at 7 p. m. a special train from Nebraska City arrived bringing the republican Zouave club, uniformed in "hobby suits" and headed by Manderion's band. The procession, headed by the Syracuse band, was formed at the depot and marched through the principal streets of the city to the opera house, which did not begin to hold the people. Roman candles were fired along the line of march, and the colored lights, presented a fine appearance.

The transparency alluding to Boyd's confidential letter attracted considerable attention. When General Manderion began his speech standing room was at a premium. The general held his audience spellbound for two hours, and his speech was the best of the campaign and was repeatedly cheered to the echo. Never in the history of Syracuse was such a rally held by any party. Enthusiasm was at its height and the crowd was ordered in a measure that attracted general praise even from democrats and independents. At the close of the speech the republican Zouave club, headed by Manderion and Reid, then for the entire state and finally three rousing cheers and a tiger for General Manderion.

No Faith in Cleveland. PENDER, Neb., Nov. 4.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—H. A. Pillsbury, a traveling boot and shoe man, struck Pender today and proceeded to bluff every one out of town by wanting to get a few hundred dollars on Cleveland. He finally ran across D. N. Wheeler, the cattle man, who told him to plunk up any amount he wanted and it would be promptly covered. The boot and shoe man withdrew and took the first train out of town.

INDIANOLA, Neb., Nov. 4.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—There is still considerable money being raised at republican headquarters in Indianola. The republican party is doing well in this county and is expected to carry it by a large majority.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 4.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—The State Democratic Secretary Cook contradicts the telegram sent out that the state committee had completed the work of polling the state and that Colonel Stone would have a majority of 21,000 in the state.

"Our returns from polling the state show that the republican party has a majority of 21,000 in the state, and while the republican party has given out no figures whatever, our returns show that the republican party will be elected by a large majority that shall be beyond all question."

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 4.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—The State Democratic Secretary Cook contradicts the telegram sent out that the state committee had completed the work of polling the state and that Colonel Stone would have a majority of 21,000 in the state.

"Our returns from polling the state show that the republican party has a majority of 21,000 in the state, and while the republican party has given out no figures whatever, our returns show that the republican party will be elected by a large majority that shall be beyond all question."

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 4.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—The State Democratic Secretary Cook contradicts the telegram sent out that the state committee had completed the work of polling the state and that Colonel Stone would have a majority of 21,000 in the state.

"Our returns from polling the state show that the republican party has a majority of 21,000 in the state, and while the republican party has given out no figures whatever, our returns show that the republican party will be elected by a large majority that shall be beyond all question."

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 4.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—The State Democratic Secretary Cook contradicts the telegram sent out that the state committee had completed the work of polling the state and that Colonel Stone would have a majority of 21,000 in the state.

"Our returns from polling the state show that the republican party has a majority of 21,000 in the state, and while the republican party has given out no figures whatever, our returns show that the republican party will be elected by a large majority that shall be beyond all question."

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 4.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—The State Democratic Secretary Cook contradicts the telegram sent out that the state committee had completed the work of polling the state and that Colonel Stone would have a majority of 21,000 in the state.

"Our returns from polling the state show that the republican party has a majority of 21,000 in the state, and while the republican party has given out no figures whatever, our returns show that the republican party will be elected by a large majority that shall be beyond all question."

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 4.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—The State Democratic Secretary Cook contradicts the telegram sent out that the state committee had completed the work of polling the state and that Colonel Stone would have a majority of 21,000 in the state.

"Our returns from polling the state show that the republican party has a majority of 21,000 in the state, and while the republican party has given out no figures whatever, our returns show that the republican party will be elected by a large majority that shall be beyond all question."

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 4.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—The State Democratic Secretary Cook contradicts the telegram sent out that the state committee had completed the work of polling the state and that Colonel Stone would have a majority of 21,000 in the state.

"Our returns from polling the state show that the republican party has a majority of 21,000 in the state, and while the republican party has given out no figures whatever, our returns show that the republican party will be elected by a large majority that shall be beyond all question."

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 4.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—The State Democratic Secretary Cook contradicts the telegram sent out that the state committee had completed the work of polling the state and that Colonel Stone would have a majority of 21,000 in the state.

WHY REPUBLICANS WILL WIN

Hon. John M. Thurston Explains the Situation to Hastings Citizens.

WHY REPUBLICANS WILL WIN

HASTINGS, Neb., Nov. 4.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—The most successful rallies ever held in Nebraska were conducted this evening in Hastings under the auspices of the republican club of this city, John M. Thurston speaking. After a long and interesting address, in which he expounded the principles of the republican party, he said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people.

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

IRISH-AMERICANS IN LINE

Cooper Union in New York Filled with Enthusiastic Republicans.

PATRICK EGAN'S ELOQUENT ADDRESS

His Remarks Meet with the Approval of a Large Audience. He Pays His Compliments to the Marquess—Other Speakers Make Remarks.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The Irish-American club meeting in Cooper union tonight brought forth a plenty of enthusiasm. Patrick Egan, the minister to Chile, was the drawing card, but besides him ex-Congressman John F. Finerty of Chicago and John W. Brown of Iowa were advertised. The meeting was opened by General Dennis Burke.

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

WHY REPUBLICANS WILL WIN

Hon. John M. Thurston Explains the Situation to Hastings Citizens.

WHY REPUBLICANS WILL WIN

HASTINGS, Neb., Nov. 4.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—The most successful rallies ever held in Nebraska were conducted this evening in Hastings under the auspices of the republican club of this city, John M. Thurston speaking. After a long and interesting address, in which he expounded the principles of the republican party, he said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people.

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."

"There are many here tonight," said he, "who will tell you that when on the field of a rebel war, the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people. He said that the republican party was the only party that stood for the interests of the people."