OMAHA LIVE STOCK MARKET

Cattle and Hogs Fearce, Strong and Higher on All Grades.

RECEIPTS WERE UNUSUALLY LIGHT

Offerings of Beef Cattle Were Decidedly Limited and With a Very Active General Demand—Cows Sold Quite Freely.

OMAHA, Nov. 8.—The expected light election day receipts came, making for the two days 8,2 0 cattle, 4,290 hogs and 1,481 sheep, against 6,023 cattle, 6,631 hogs and 236 sheep Monday and Tuesday of last week.

Offerings of beef cattle were decidedly limited, and with a very active general demand and favorable reports from eastern markets the trade was brisk and the supply soon exhausted. The market was anywhere from strong to 10c higher than Monday on anything killers could possibly use. Common to fair native grassers brought $3.00 to $3.45 and some pretty fair cornfed steers brought $4.35. There were absolutely no good western Leef steers here, but a big string of Texans brought $3.85, generally considered a strong price. Ten o'clock found trading over and the pens deserted.

Cows and mixed stock sold freely at steady to strong prices. Extreme sales of good to prime cows and heifers were at from $3.00 to $3.90, the bulk of the decent stock selling at from $2.00 upwards. Bulls, oxen and stags were in very moderate supply, active demand and firm at from $1.35 to $2.35. Common to choice veal calves were good sellers at from $2.50 to $5.00.

The stocker and feeder trade felt the depressing influence of the election excitement and the very limited supply of good cattle. Prices, however, ruled firm on anything that dealers wanted. The country demand was very light and the volume of trading correspondingly restricted. Representative sales:

HOGS.—The supply on sale was the smallest for a Tuesday in several months. The market was all of 10c higher than Monday from start to finish, all buyers taking hold freely and clearing the pens by the middle of the forenoon. Extreme sales were at from $5.50 to $5.65, but the bulk of the hogs, regardless of weight, sold at from $5.55 to $5.60, against $5.45 to $5.50 yesterday and $5.35 to $5.40 last Tuesday. ANNOUNCEMENTS.

There is a force and charm about the stage work of Gus Williams, who will appear here at the Farnam Street Sunday matinee in a new musical comedy, for which one vainly looks among the army of boisterous and noisy funny men of the present day. From the days when Gus Williams was a merry, singing, dancing drummer boy in a federal regiment, lightening and cheering the dreary marches of his regiment, the sunshine of his nature has never, even to this day, been dimmed or obscured. He is a natural poet and singer, simple but mirthful and sympathetic, and one goes away from the clean, wholesome and homely performances he gives refreshed and bettered. "April Fool," the farce comedy he is now presenting, is said to be unique, novel and brimful of ludicrous situations, giving Mr. Williams all the scope necessary to display his peculiar and pleasing talent.

At Boyd's theater November 21, 22 and 23 and matinee 23 Clark & Cox's company appears in the supero spectacular entitled "Ben Hur," for the benefit of the Associated Charities of Omaha. The Columbus, O., State Journal says of "Ben Hur:" The climax of scenic grandeur is reached in the closing tableau, "Iras' Story of the Nile." Words can hardly picture its beauty. A novelty is introduced in the unfolding of the water lily and the shells.

"Yon Yonson" presents American life in an aspect not commonly understood and seldom seen, the scenes and incidents being of the lumber regions of the northwest, and it seems to have made quite as favorable impression on Boston "cult" as it did in the far west. Character plays are always more or less favorably received by intelligent and cultured audiences, the favor being graduated by the cleverness of the characterization, and such plays have a wider range of patronage than the ordinary drama or farce-comedy. The well rounded characterization does not easily wear out. It can be seen again and again, each time with added pleasure. Mr. Gus Heege, the author of "Yon Yonson," has opened up a new field in his study of the Swede, and in an artistic sense the success of that piece must must rest upon his delineation of the Scandinavian character. The play, however, is said to possess strong points as to plot and situation, and the scenery and effects to be novel, spectacular and thrilling. "Yon Yonson" will open a three nights engagement at Boyd's Theater on Friday evening next.

Even Court Rooms Were Deserted.

The several divisions of the district court found but little to do yesterday, the litigants, jurors, lawyers, bailiffs and officers being out gazing upon the battle of ballots. With this condition of affairs existing the wearers of the ermine sat around their respective rooms for an hour or two this morning and then went away, adjourning court until tomorrow.

NEW YORK VALUES.

A Batch of Big Figures from Gotham's Tax Roll.

The tax commissioners of New York city have presented a detailed report to the mayor, says the World, covering the operations of their department for the present year. The report shows that in 1892, 186 banks were assessed; that their capital was $67,122,800 at par; actual value, $112,619,248; assessed for $98,642,958; sworn off, $20,462,938; net assessed value, $78,180,000.

The number of pieces of real estate assessed were 161,946; names remaining on personal tax book, 16,676; shareholders of banks, 21,989; corporations, 1,412.

Under the law allowing clergymen to hold $1,500 worth of real estate exempt from taxation $56,900 was sworn off.

The Trinity church corporation has $4,000,000 worth of property exempt from taxation in the First ward alone. These are some of the other large items in the exempt list: Battery park, $9,000,000; Castle Garden and sea wall, $1,000,000; subtreasury, $2,000,000; custom house, $2,600,000; Governor's Island, $3,500,000; St. Paul's church, $1,750,000; New York and Brooklyn bridge, $4,000,000; City Hall park and buildings therein, $22,000,000; postoffice, $9,000,000; Ward's island, $3,000,000; Randall's island, $2,000,000; Riverside park and drive, $4,154,900; Washington square, $1,750,000; Union Theological seminary, $650,000; Tompkins square, $2,000,000; Cooper institute, $850,000; Union square, $2,800,000; Madison square, $1,500,000; Young Men's Christian association building, $600,000; St. Luke's hospital, $1,250,000; Columbia college, $800,000; Lenox library, $750,000; St. Patrick's cathedral, $2,500,000; Blackwell's Island, $6,000,000; Reservoir park, $2,000,000; Central park, $87,000,000; Bellevue hospital and college, $1,500,000.

The total value of property in this city exempt from taxation is $302,174,670; divided as follows: City, $202,833,470; United States, $18,863,000; state, $5,000,000; churches, $53,632,700; hospitals, schools, etc., $26,345,500.

Owing mostly to special legislation the assessment against trust companies showed a falling off of $1,362,928; railroad companies, $8,074,351, and other companies, $2,360,936.

Upon the subject of the unjust exemption of corporations the report says:

"In the case of express companies we were this year compelled to strike off our books $3,670,000, and in that of railroads reduce assessments to the extent of $8,083,354. Foreign corporations reap the benefits and claim all the privileges of resident corporations, and because they elect to be known as 'foreign,' they claim exemption."

Piles of people have piles, but DeWitt's Witch Hazel salve will cure them.

ARNOLD'S HOUSE.

A Famous Philadelphia Mansion Torn Down.

One of the most interesting structures in Philadelphia, located at 632 Market street, has just been demolished, says the Philadelphia Press. It was the last of the old frame buildings on the whole length of Market street from the Delaware to the Schuylkill, and its history covers a period of a century and a quarter and teems with names of famous men and the details of famous events. A great warehouse is to occupy the site, its present owner, a clothing merchant, having acquired title to it very recently.

In 1776 the property, not however in the condition it afterwards assumed, passed into the hands of Jacob Hilztheimer. When Benedict Arnold planned his famous and infamous treason he wrote to Clinton in New York suggesting that an emissary be sent to Philadelphia for a conference. Clinton was given papers and details that his agent might gain admittance to the city, and Arnold engaged to meet him in disguise outside the Hiltzheimer property. For some nights the traitor loitered around the house, paying occasional visits to a tavern around the corner on Seventh street.

Clinton was too suspicious to send any one, however, and Arnold went down Market street to his house in disgust. When his carriage was pursued in the street by a mob in consequence of unpopular enactments Arnold took refuge from the malcontents in this building. The hotheads wanted to burn it down, but the troops interfered. The great procession on the occasion of the hanging of the traitor in effigy after the consummation of his Iscariotlike act in 1780 was reviewed from the windows of this house, and speeches were made by the city's celebrities.

The tavern around the corner from the little house was the center of such wild revelry that Washington felt bound to finally refrain from going there. He had no objection to the three-story cottage, however, and it was the scene of the interviews he had successively with Jefferson and with Hamilton in endeavoring to patch up the disagreement of these two statesmen. During Hamilton's intrigue with Mrs Reynolds the lovers agreed to meet outside this house, as the pamphlet now in the Ridgway library shows, and it was watching here that the husband claimed to have found out what was going on.

The next famous man to visit the little house was Washington Irving. He called to verify some anecdotes connecting the father of his country with the building, and found many valuable letters and papers stored in its attic, of which he made use in "The Life of Washington." Like all houses which have passed their prime and relapsed quietly into old age, the structure was utilized by tenants for various purposes, and it ceased to be conspicuously interesting until 1875. In that year it first became the resort of the city's scene painters, and so continued for many years. The Bohemian club, composed of members of the painting fraternity and kindred spirits, met there every Monday night until a year or two since.

How Soldiers Got Tobacco.

S. T. Merrill of Lake Crystal, Minn., who was a soldier and did service fighting Indians in '62, says: "At one time the men had to march to Fort Ridgely, a distance of several miles; and after they arrived there they suffered for several days for something to eat; but the greatest hardship they had to endure was to do without their tobacco. Nothing takes the place of tobacco with the soldier. In the course of time they left camp equipage, sutler's goods, etc., behind and moved to new quarters. As soon as it was known that the sutler wagons were coming and that one of them contained a good supply of the weed, a number of the soldier boys went back to intercept the train. Several miles out from camp they discovered the wagons coming; a piece of underbrush and timber was selected as the place where they would meet them. Each man took along his blanket, and after the wagons had passed the boys put their blankets over their heads and crossed and recrossed the trail. As soon as the drivers saw these figures, and supposing them to be Indians, they put the whip to their teams and away they went. The boys kept up and closed in on them. The drivers stopped, threw out goods of various kinds in boxes to lighten their loads, and this was just what they wanted. Among the boxes thrown out was the tobacco, and what they all wanted, but on went the wagons to camp. The boys got the tobacco, divided it, and went into camp by a roundabout way. After the teams reached camp a cavalry company was sent back to drive off the Indians. The goods were soon recovered, except the tobacco, and from that day to this no one but the boys knew but that the Indians raided the wagons and got the tobacco."

The latest machine designed for use in electric spark photography gives remarkable results. Articles moving at the rate of 1,000 miles an hour can be photographed, and, by the introduction of a revolving mirror, a speed of 480,000 miles an hour can be coped with. The mirror is worked by electricity, which is about 150 times as fast as a rifle bullet travels.

Dr. J. L. Gebhart of Hot Springs, Ark., is reported to have solved the problem of generating with a primary battery a continuous electric current of sufficient power to supply light and small motor power for dwelling houses.

The Hygienic Treatment of Constipation and Ordinary Dyspepsia.

Sir John Andrews, the English professor, believes that in the vast majority of cases constipation may be successfully overcome by taking a teaspoonful of the genuine imported Carlsbad Sprudel Salt dissolved in a tumblerful of water (half a pint), cold or hot, early in the morning, and, if necessary, on going to bed.

GRADE ORDINANCE NO. 185.

An ordinance changing the grade of Decatur street from 27th street to 29th street, and the intersecting street, in the city of Omaha, and repealing so much of Grade Ordinance No. 833 and so much of all ordinances in conflict herewith:

Be it ordained by the city council of the city of Omaha:

Section 1. Whereas, it has been declared necessary to change the grade of Decatur street from 27th street to 29th street, and certain parts of the intersecting streets hereinafter specified;

And whereas, three disinterested freeholders have been appointed by the mayor and confirmed by the city council to appraise the damages arising by reason of the change of grade herein mentioned, and

Whereas, said appraisers after duly qualifying according to law and examining the property affected have reported no damages, and the city council has adopted said report;

Therefore, the grade of said parts of Decatur street, and intersecting streets is hereby changed and established so that the elevations shall be as follows, the grade between the points cited being uniform straight lines:

Section 2. Grade of Decatur street—

	Elevation of South Curb.	Elevation of North Curb.
East curb of 29th street, as established	160.0	160.5
West curb of 28th street	140.5	140.5
East curb of 28th street	140.0	140.0
West curb of 27th street, as established	105.5	105.5

Section 3. Grade of 28th street—

	Elevation of West Curb	Elevation of East Curb
South curb of Parker street as established	138.0	137.5
North curb of Decatur st	140.5	140.0
South curb of Decatur st	142.5	140.0
North curb of Franklin street, as established	128.0	127.5

Section 4. So much of Ordinance No. 833 and so much of all other ordinances defining the grades of the above streets, as conflicts with the provisions of this ordinance, is hereby repealed.

Section 5. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Passed November 1st, 1892.

JOHN GROVES,
City Clerk.

E. P. DAVIS,
President City Council.

Approved November 4th, 1892.

Which will you have, sickness, suffering and despair, or health, strength, and spirit? You can take your choice. All chronic diseases and derangements peculiar to women are permanently cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It restores the female functions to healthy action. It removes the obstructions and suppressions which cause trouble and misery. For periodical pains, internal inflammation, ulceration and kindred ailments, it is a positive remedy. The system is invigorated, the blood enriched, digestion improved, melancholy and nervousness dispelled. It's a legitimate medicine, the only one that's guaranteed to give satisfaction in the cure of all "female complaints."

If it fails to give satisfaction, in any case, the money paid for it is returned.
