THEY SECURED VERY LITTLE CASH

Indications That the Gang Was not Well Provided with Tools of the Craft-Garnishee Cases Attracting Attention at Plattsmouth.

TABLE ROOK, Neb., Dec. 22.-[Special Telegram to Tue BEE. ]-Burglars did considerable work here last night. They first entered the blacksmith shop of James Karas and from Robertson's wagon department took a brace, screwdriver and chisel, and proceeding to the postofilce they knocked the lock off the safe. They secured only 60 cents, and becoming disgusted tore down the money drawer, likewise empty.

Later they went through W. L. Taylor's merchandise store. Getting general in a back window they gathered up overcoats, mufflers and silk handkerchiefs, and the pennics and nickels the cash drawer. They got probably $150 worth of property. Matches strewn over the floor showed that they were not provided with a full kit of burgiar implements.

The next store visited was Wilson's drug house, full of holiday goods, and Couldin's jewelry store. The lock was smashed off the front door, and chains and other jewelry to the amount of $150 taken. Dr. Wilson's to the amount of $150 taken. Dr. winsut s loss appears to be only some candy and a few cigars. There was some appearance of haste in their leaving, and it is supposed that they were frightened away, as their depredations went no further. Robertson's brace and screwdriver were found where they had been used.

GARNISHEE CASES.

More Trouble Growing Out of the Council Bluffs Cost Mills.

PLATTSMOUTH, Neb., Dec. 22 .- [Special to Tun Ban.]-Deputy Sheriff John Lighe has served papers on George E. Dovey, Oliver Dovey and H. N. Dovey, of the firm of E. G. Dovey & Son, and E. A. Oliver and Fred Ramge, of the firm of Oliver & Ramge, ordering them to appear before Judge Chapman in the district court and show cause why they should not be fined for contempt of court. The above is another turn in the garnishee cases. A temporary injunction preventing the merchants going to Council Bluffs and giving testimony in the cases there was granted by Judge Chapman a short time ago. The plaintiffs claim that the bookkeepers for the above named firms went up contrary to the orders of the court. The garnishee cases are creating consider able feeling at this point.

IN THE SECOND DEGREE.

George Fauss Found Guilty by the Patient and Long Pondering Jury. After being out two days and nights the jury in the Fauss case returned a verdict of murder in the second degree. At 8:30 o'clock last night the foreman notified Sheriff Bennett that the jury had reached a decision and was ready to make its report. Judge Davis was sent for and the prisoner diage Litris was sent for and the prisoner was brought over from the Jail. As the twelve men marched into the court room Fauss appeared very nervous and scanned the faces of the incore closely. The court then asked for the verdict and it was read. Fauss brightened up considerably when he found that he would not have to hang for his commendiatements.

It is reported that on the first ballot the inry stood eight for first degree murder and four for second. Later on every one switched around and several voted for manslaughter. Then the details of the crime were talked over and at last the verdict as given above was agreed upon

WEDDING BELLS. Offutt-Yost.

It would be difficult to imagine a more favorable time to assume the marriage vows than during the season that is upon us, a season of festivity and good cheer, when all the world seems to echo the words of Tiny Tim. "God bless us every one."

It was a Christmas wedding that was celebrated last evening in the First Presbyterian church: holly and mistletoe and evergreens decking the interior, while the fair coung girls who participated in the ceremony, instead of the usual boquets of flowers, carried holly and mistletoe arranged in graceful bunches and tied with broad satin ribbons of white, while the bride wore mistletos in her hair, and in the prayer book she carried there was a tiny sprig of mistletoe peeping over the edges.

peeping over the edges. Throughout the church, along the gallery rail, at the ends of the pews and about the chancel the season's red berides and white were effectively arranged. Tall palms and feathery ferns atood on the raised dats be-low the pulpit, while an exquisite rug of white for correct the data mathematic rug of white fur covered the dais, making an altar fitting for the nuptial ceremony.

Society has attended a number of beauti-ful weddings during the pre-Christmas sea-son, but not one brought together so many representative people as did the marriage has evening of Miss Bertha Clarke Yost and Ma Claudes Official et the First Preserve Mr. Charles Offatt, at the First Presby-terian church, Rev. Dr. Duryea officiating. It was a picturesque wedding and so complete was every detail that there was not a single jar. In the arrangements and everythiog was done with pre-cision. A pretty feature, and one that will commond itself to future brides, was the arrangement of the wedding procession, the party, with the exception of the bride and her father. Mr. C. E. Yost, entering from the side entrance nearest the pulpit and walking down the center aisle, met the fair bride and Mr. Yost. First came the ushers, Mr. Robert Patrick and Judge Herbert J. Davis, Captain Crowder, U. S. A., and Mr. Luther Drake. Then came the maid of honor, Miss Sadie Nash, walking alone, followed by the bridesmaids, Miss Clarz Brown and Miss Bessie Yates, Miss Mary Sherman and Miss Mary Poppleton, any lastly by two more ushers, Mr. Henry Wy-man and Mr. Netherton Hall. At the rear of the church the wedding party reversed, and with the wedding march of Mendelssohn to lend interest to the occasion, beautifully nents and everything was done with pro to lend interest to the occasion, beautifully played by Mr. Taber, the procession walked up the aisle to the chancel, where the groom and his best man, Mr, Claude Thomas of Middletown, and the officiating clergyman awaited the coming of the bride It was such a pleasing innovation, for wed ding processions must be more or less upon set lines, that it excited general comment among those who were fortunate to be there.

The bridesmalds, all long time friends of the bride and representative society girls, were costumed alike, their gowns being of white satin covered with white silk mule, large sleeves and belts of white brocaded satu, lace berthas completing simple but exceedingly lovely costumes, and they all carried bouquets of holly and mistletoe tied together by white satin ribbons. The bride, who has long been considered one of the beauties of Omaha society, and an intellectual one as well, having many grace of mind and heart, wore an extremely simpl gown of white corded silk, made in the En pire style, big sleeves with revers of slik effectively edged with pearls, the reversending in a white bow of lace in front, with the ends falling to the bottom of the dress, her beautiful veil being fastened to the hair by a wreath of mistletoe. At the conclusion of the ceremony the

"Nora Machrea" at the Boyd. The Irish drama generally is interesting in inverse ratio to its accuracy as interpretive of real Irish life and character; it is somewhat analogous to those dyspeptic silvered storks, azure pools and emerald palms that libel nature on Japanese Christmaspresent screens. Conventional forms in the higher arts have their uses, and the conventional Irish drama is not only tolerated but its admirers are many.

"Nora Machree," seen for the first time in Omaha at the Boyd last evening, is an Irish drama not much better or worse than the average play of its class. The wicked squireen, the "young master" in trouble, the beautiful high-spirited Irish girl, the lovely beautiful high-spirited Irish girl, the lovely fluent colleen, the bright-cycd, hig-hearted "broth of a bhoy," the "dirty blackguard" who serves the squire and the processes— they are all in the play and in the same old relations as of yore.
