Important Discussion at the Nebraska Underwriters' Annual Meeting.

MEPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Interesting Suggestions for the Good of the Craft-Measures That Will Build Up the State Organization and Assist Individuals,

Besides electing officers at their annual meeting yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, in the private office of the Millard, the members of the Nebraska Life Undertakers' association fixed the date of their annual banquet, heard the new anti-rebate bill read, admitted nine new members and attended to a variety of other interesting matters.

When President Roeder called the meeting to order about thirty members were present F. E. McMullen filled the vacant post of secretary. The association first transacted a number of business matters in executive

The nomination and election of officers fol-The officers selected were M. L. Roeder, National Life, president; H. D. Neely, Equitable, first vice president; Charles J. Bell, State Mutual, second vice president; F. E. McMullen, Provident Savings, secretary; H. F. Lunback, Pacific Mutual, treasurer, and William Henry Brown, Equitable, corresponding secretary.

The executive committee chosen was composed of Messrs. O. H. Jeffries, Massachusetts Mutual, chairman; Oscar Wasson, Manhattan; H. D. Neely, Equitable; W. F. Allen, Mutual Life, and W. J. Hawks.

The proposed anti-rebate bill was read and then referred to the executive committee. The time and place of the annual banquet was then discussed. The executive committee made a report changing the date already set to January 27, but this in turn, was changed and the date finally settled upon was February 21. The banquet will be given at the Murray hotel. About 250 plates will be laid. The tables will be arranged in Delmonico order. The table at which the speakers will be seated will be placed at the east end of the dining hall and the four other tables will extend westwardly from it, so that all the guests can see and hear the addresses without turning in their chairs.

An orchestra will furnish the music and the menu will be selected by a committee from the association. There will be ten speakers. A special meeting was debe ten speakers. A special meeting was decided upon, to be held in the offices of the Equitable Life, in Tim Ber building, Satur-day afternoon at 4 o'clock for the purpose of selecting the speakers and arranging the list of toasts. All the members will propose favorite speakers and these will be balloted upon. The ten receiving the highest number of votes will be chosen. The reception committee for the banquet will also be announced at the special meeting.

Secretary McMullen was instructed to send out notices requesting all members to signify how many seats they will want at

Executive Committee's Report. Chairman Jeffries of the executive committee submitted the following report:

"As chairman of the executive committee, it is, perhaps, due me to make some kind of a report—at least, to say something of the progress and benefits of the Life Underwriters' association for the past year of 1892. While I have no detailed report to make I shall make a few suggestions in reference to this year's work before us. We now have thirty members in good standing. The Nebraska Life Underwriters association can be made one of the strongest institutions in Nebraska if the life insurance agents will stand together as a unit. In all other classes of business, we find some kind of an organization, all classes of working-men are organized, and even the newsboys and beathlasts have an organization but and bootblacks have an organization, but there seems to be in Nebraska a lack of in-terest among the insurance men to make themselves felt, and to build up an institu-tion that would not only add dignity to the business, but would be the means of commanding the respect from patrons or wouldbe patrons, and to receive one hundred cents on the dollar for our insurance sold.

"I sincerely trust that any little petty jealousy that there may be among the mem-bers will be dismissed from their minds and have only in mind the success of our association. Let it not be object to see how much we can hinder another, but rather let us put our shoulders together as strong men and build up our asso-ciation. Let us make our monthly meetings of interest, where all the members will feel alike, and then we can gain something by attending, and unless you attend regularly you cannot be interested in the work that the Nebraska Life Underwriters' association is determined to accomplish.

How They Are Interested.

"There is no doubt that each member who takes an insurance journal always reads with pride the meeting of some other state association, and especially the one located at Boston. Now, I wonder if each agent who reads the accounts of the meetings of the Nebraska Life Underwriters' association is equally as well pleased, or whether he thinks the account of it was prepared by some one especially, who wants his name kept before the public. If any of you feel that way, I should dismiss such thoughts from my mind and step upon a higher plane. That think of what the insurance means and the plane and the plane are the plane and the plane are the plane and the plane are the plane. Just think of what the insurance men can do if they will, and I again beg of you to start the new year with renewed interest in the success of our association. Let the year of 1893 bring the Nebraska Life Underwriters' association nearer the top notch than any other association belonging to the National association. It was a very pleasing event to me during the month of September last to have the pleasure of attending, as a delegate, the National Life Underwriters' association meeting in New York, and I want to add that the Nebraska association was the only one present having a full delegation from a distance. Mr. Wilson, our worthy ex-secretary, who was chairman of the delegation, made a hard fight in the committee on nominations in behalf of Nebraska, and I am pleased to say was successful in baying the hydroxy changed so that ful in having the by-laws changed so that each association was entitled to a vice preseach association was entitled to a vice president, and our worthy president, Mr. M. L. Roeder, was chosen as the vice president for Nebraska, and, by the records of the National association, you will find one of the most able addresses made at the meeting, and one which commanded more attention. save and alone my personal friend, Colonel Carpenter, was the speech made by Mr.

Where Nebraska Comes In.

"Now, right in this line, let me add that Nebraska can secure the meeting for 1894 of the National Life Underwriters' association, and I for one, am determined to have them meet here. The more prominence the association gains the more each individual solicitor is benefited; and I wish to add here that, for myself, I want no office in the association—I want to be on the ground floor, where I canswork and help the association to

"I have no enmity towards any member of the association, no ill felling, no jealousy. I am simply a solicitor, and as such I expect to remain, and all I ask is for each member to push for the success of our association, and in so doing we will train curselves to be fair competitors. I would recommend at each meeting that we always lunch together, and that we invite different members of the medical staff of each company to read us a paper or deliver a short address, and that each member be permitted to have a friend of his to read a paper or deliver an

"I would also recommend that the asse tion publish a monthly paper, and with that in view, I have investigated the price, number of papers issued, etc., and find we can get 4,000 capies printed monthly for $25 per month. Now, each agency can, through their business relations with firms and banks, get a small 'ad' taken for the year on the last page of the paper, and, I am very confident we can sell $200 to $250 worth of 'ads.' leaving possibly $50 to $75 for the association t ing possibly $50 to $75 for the association to pay, then each agency can contribute to the reading matter of the paper, and appoint some one to whom this reading matter will be turned over, and that person will then proof-read the paper, and make it up in form for the printer, and, for this place, I would suggest the name of William Henry Brown, but do not desire to make this as a motion, simply as a suggestion. "I feel that we owe our most sincere thanks to THE OMARA BEE for its many courtesies shown us, and especially do I want the association to extend at least a hearty vote of thanks to that bright, gentlemanly young reporter, Mr. Kirby, who has been the means of life insurance taking a place in THE BEE bulletin, which bulletin indicates the place where the most valuable news can be found in that great paper."

The matter of starting an insurance publication was favorably discussed, but not acted upon.

After admitting nine new members, the meeting adjourned.

There was a look of sadness passed over the faces of the people from Valley, but Mr. Solomon was equal to the occasion, and with the hopes of changing the mind of the judge he exhibited a roll of wealth and taking a twenty from the middle thereof, passed it toward the court with the ing a twenty from the middle thereof, passed it toward the court with the remark, "Take this and mend up your old mill and do it as quick as you can, for Helen and me will not wait another day before having the papers that will give us the right to have the ceremony performed. The judge looked at the long green for a minute. He hesitated, but all at once he realized that to hesitate was to lose himself, and pushing it from him urged Mr. Solomon to come back another day.

Mr. Solomon was not in a waiting mood, and it did not take him long to say so. He declared that he would file charges against the court, in which he said that he would allege a neglect of duty.

The ordinary man cannot bulldoze Judge Eller, and the man from Valley soon learned that he belonged to the ordinary class, for when the court arose in its dignity and got behind the holiday clause in the state law the spectators were willing to bet three to one that the wedding permit would not be is-sued in Douglas county before today, at least. "Come here to intimidate the court, will you, you measles son of the hunch grasse die. you, you measley son of the bunch grass dis-trict, will you? BOARD OF TRADE ELECTION

Martinism Turned Down by the Progessive Members of the Organisation.

ENTIRE BABCOCK TICKET SUCCESSFUL

Outcome of a Lively Afternoon's Hustling on Part of the Interested Ones-What the Result Signifies to the Board.

New blood has been infused into the directory of the Board of Trade. The demand for a change in the management was so general that the result of yesterday's election is no surprise. Reform in the management of the affairs of the board is what brought about the change and resulted in the election of four new men to the directory. A complete change was what the opposition to the present management wanted.

Yesterday's contest resulted in the election of W. N. Babecck, W. A. L. Gibbon, H. F. Cady and F. C. Ayers to the directory of the board. The defeated aspirants are Euclid Martin, D. H. Wheeler, A. T. Rector and C. F. Goodman.

There is not a parallel within the history of Omaha's Board of Trade for the interest manifest in the contest of yesterday afternoon. It was a spirited fight between determined factions, but was carried on with perfect good humor and friendliness. The election was held between the hours of 3 and 5 o'clock, 137 votes being east. The ludges were J. B. Cooney and Henry Pundt.

Every Man Was Interested.

As early as 2 o'clock the members began gathering in the Chamber of Commerce and the electioneering and buttonholing began in earnest. From the moment the first voting member landed on the second floor until the ballot box was closed at 5 o'clock. the friends of each ticket labored hard for the success of their friends. Prominent business men left their personal interests for the time and joined the crowd on the floor of the board's room, working hard for their friends and putting in a lick wherever opportunity af-forded. It was a great contest from begining to end and some tall hustling was done by each side. Fully seventy-five members were on the floor all the time during the election and not one of them was idle, but moved from one place to another, continually agitating the questions presented and earnestly urging the selection of their preferences. The buzz of voices drowned all other sounds, and the theme of conversation was not the weather, nor crops, nor polities, but the present con-dition of affairs in the Board of Trade and the prospect of improvement in the future. Every branch of commercial life was there. The banker, Jobber, merchant, speculator. real estate owner and in fact all lines of business and callings were represented.

The first man to east his ballot was Mr. H.
T. Clarke, and he was quickly followed by Governor Boyk, Euclid Martin, and others of the best known citizens. Governor Boyd has not been a very active member of the board, but he remained away from the state capitol yesterday and devoted himself to the contest. The governor's affection for his friend, Euclid Martin, was the magnet that drew him to the Chamber of Commerce and held him there. He tarried until he was satisfied that he was on the winning side and that Mr. Martin had been defeated. He then departed and his spirits were not cast down by the outcome

It required an hour's time to canvass the votes, and when the result was announced it was greeted with cheers by the supporters of the Babcock ticket. The supporters of the defeated Martin ticket gracefully accepted the result. The vote stood as follows: FOR THREE YEARS.

At the present time there are several avowed candidates, and the name of almost every member is mentioned. Three gentlemen are more frequently spoker of and the contest will be between them for the presidency. The names mentioned are those of Senator W. N. Babcock, W. A. L. Gibbon and J. A. Connor.

What the Changes Mean.

The result of yesterday's contest is the outcome of the agitation that has been going on for some time relative to a change in the management of the Board of Trade. New blood was what a majority of the members believed necessary to infuse new life into the believed necessary to infuse new life into the board and make of it an organization that will be of vast more benefit to the city than it has in times past.
The ticket headed by W. N. Babcock represented the progressive element of the board, and it was placed in the field by a caucus of members held prior to yesterday and subsequent to the Friday night meeting at the secretary's office in the Board of at the secretary's office in the Board of Trade, at which time the Martin ticket was organize the forces and general the battle of yesterday. The excellence of the commit-tee's work is shown in the victory achieved. This ticket was avowed anti-administra-tion and on that ground the candidates were successful. The Babcock element favors the establishment of a freight bureau in connection with the Board of Trade, and now that the sympathizers of such a venture have been elected it is supposed that but lit-tle time will be lost in establishing the The Martin faction has been in power for a number of years and directed the affairs of the board and is responsible for its present condition. They were held accountable, and notwithstanding their protestations of prosperity and good deeds performed, a majority of the members were in a different frame of mind and so expressed themselves. It is too carly to predict what changes the new members will advocate and bring about. They do not know themselves what line of policy will be carried out and what new departures will be made. It is safe to presume, however, that the Board of Trade will be pulled out of the rut it has fallen into and that a little new life will be infused and a spirit of enterprise will manifest itself in its doings.

DISEASES

Is very poor economy. It is more to the point to count the cost of years of suffering, of despair, of incapacity for the enjoyment of life, for those are the things that cost, without the possibility of a corresponding profit. The man who tries to save a dollar by neglecting or refusing to take proper treatment for any of those distressing and dangerous sexual maladies, afflictions and weaknesses to which so many are subject, is saving one hundred cents and wasting thousands of dollars, besides shortening his life and adding to his misery while he remains upon earth. More than that he entalls upon his descendants a life of discuse, and leaves his children only a heritage of woe.

If you are a victim of any of these diseases there is no time so good as now in which to begin to seek the means of a cure. We can cure you.
