Several Prominent Gentlemen Failed to Make the Showing Predicted for Them.

NOTHING MEANT BY COMPLIMENTARY VOTES

Members of the Legislature Indulged Their Personal Preferences for One Time Only.

VAN WYCK WAS NOT IN AT THE START

Not a Vote Cast for the Independent Sage from Otoe-Prospects for the Next Ballot-Inaugural Ball at the Capital.

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 17.-[Special Telegram to THE BEE |-Talk, talk, talk was the order of the evening in the Lincoln hotel rotundas for several hours, and at its conclusion the talkers rested but for a minute and then talked again. The senatorial situation was the theme of their earnest conversation. and it was hashed and dissected until it began to seem doubtful if anything would left of it. The members of the lobby were doing their utmost to arrange for an extra ballot tomorrow to make the battle hotter, and create a greater demand for their services. They found little comfort in the situation as it was, with no prospects of a close struggle before next week, and the fellows with votes in their keeping, the political brokers and bucket shop operators, made up their minds that something must be done to prevent the colhapse of their pocketbooks.

The hustling and bustling was the result of their efforts, but it really had little effect on the situation after all. What the development of the joint convention will be tomorrow, no man can tell, as the leaders are not publishing their opinions, and reserve forces are yet to be uncovered.

For the Great Start Next Week.

Many of the complimentary candidates will drop out of the fight, and the list will begin to undergo the contraction that is sure to continue as the days go by. It will not be surprising if Paddock receives thirty-five votes, while Thurston will possibly uncover a dozen. There will be less fooling tomorrow than there was today, but it is believed by many that the program is to allow a general drifting until about Saturday, when the candidates who have the real strength will make a spurt, and try to get a favorable position for the grand send off next Tuesday. The usual interest was manifested today in the initial ballot for United States senator, and the galleries and lobbics of both houses were crowded with eager spectators, all of whom were on the qui vive for sensational developments. Aside from the complimentary votes, which come as a matter of course in any senatorial contest, there was but little of interest in the ballot in either house. The popular interest centered in the for-

Governor Crounse's desk was ornamented by a handsome vase of roses, the gift of D. Mosher of Lincoln, who was a pupil in Schoharie county, New York, forty years ago, when Governor Crounce, then a young man of 17, taught school here. He had not met the governor since then, although he had kept track of his career. He took this occasion of paying his old master a tribute of esteem.

occasion was a pronounced social success.

Finding Out About Passes. The independents are endeavoring to get a resolution through their caucus to stand up every member on the floor of the two ouses and require them to say under oath whether or not they are traveling on a pass or have received one since their election. They also propose to propound the same question to the senatorial candidates. There is little prospect that the move will be successful, as altogether too many populist exisiators have been racing around after passes during the past week W.S. Shoemaker of Omaha arrived tonight. He is slated for the clerkship of the house committee on Judiciary.

Church Howe's Latest.

Church Howe is setting the pins for department commander of the Grand Army of the Republic. His closest competitor is Alonzo Church of North Platte. The election occurs on the 15th of next month. It is surprising to note how many of the frequenters of the state house explain their presence in the city at this time by referring to the county treasurers' convention and the meeting of the agricultural board. Senator Babcock is the man who is most sought after by the lobbyists at the present time. They want to be employed to work against the half score of bills that have thus far been introduced to regulate stock yards and fix commissions for the handling of live

Henry Knodell denied today that he was here in the interest of the American Protective association. He explains his presence here by saying that it is solely in the interest of the Railway Employes' association, and that he proposes to see that no inimical legislation is enacted. He says he is devoting his time to securing the adoption of safety appliances and to opposing all measures that are not for the material welfare of the railway employes. He admitted that representatives of the American Protective association were hustling for new members, but insisted that such was not his mission here at this time.

Henry Fieldgrove of Buffalo county who was the wit of the house four years ago, is in the city.

Thirty-one Rods.

LINCOLN, Nob., Jan. 17.-[Special Telegram to THE BEE.]-The senatorial conflict has been formally inaugurated. The first ballot was taken in the house at noon today and the result was fully as latitudinous as has has been expected. Thirtyone individuals were favored with a complimentary vote, but the leaders were Powers for the independents, Paddock for the repub-licans and Keiper for the democrats. The Kansas' Governor Makes Numerous Recommendations to the Legislature.

LEWELLING'S MESSAGE READ

SEES MANY OPPORTUNITIES FOR REFORM

He Deplores the Penchant Developed by the State for Running Into Debt-Populists Do Not Now Feel Secure in Their Position.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 17 .- The populists today gave public expression of their doubt of the legality of the organization of the populist branch of the lower house. They declined to hold a joint session of the senate and house to ballot for a state printer as required by law, believing that State Printer Snow (populist), can serve legally until his successor is chosen, and having doubts as to the legality of an election participated in by the populist house Fourteen republicans, one independent and two democratic senators met with the republican house at 4 o'clock and took a ballot on state printer. The roll call showed eighty-four present, two more than a quorum of a joint session. The ballot resulted in no election. Lewelling's Message.

Governor Lewelling's message was transmitted to the legislature today. The senate declined to meet with the populist house to hear it read and it was presented to each house separately. In the document he attacks the disposition of counties, townships, cities and towns of exercising to the full limit their debt-making power. He shows that in the past two years the indebtedness of the counties has increased $291,000; of townships, $42,200; of cities, $2,109,000. During the same time the issue of school district bonds decreased $1,-628,000. The assessed valuation of all proporty decreased $13,513,000. "It is noticeable," says the governor, "that the assessment of live stock, personal security, railroads and town lots in the last two years has, in the aggregate, decreased $16,-608,919.00, while there has been an increase in the assessment of farms, improved and unimproved lands of $2,881,020.68."

The governor condemns extravagance in the expenditure of state funds, but urges that the school fund levy be restored and in-creased from 1 to 3 mills. The work of the State Normal and Agricultural schools is endorsed.

Regarding prohibition, the governor says that whatever his personal sentiment on the subject may be, the executive is bound to support the laws and constitution, and this he proposes to do.

Railroad Legislation.

The governor reviewed briefly the past ratic all egislation and criticised sharply the past ratical legislation and criticised sharply the decisions of the state supreme court on its lack of power and of the United States su-preme court in the Minnesota case. "Here, then," says the governor, "is the Scylla and Charybdis of legislative action: the inefficacy of too little power on one hand

Question of a Johnson County Invader's Rights Causes Trouble.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Jan. 17.- [Special Telegram to Tur BEE |-There was a regular old | she had made a prior confession to some one time squabble in the senate this morning. A notice of intention to make a motion was handed the chief clerk bearing the name of John N. Tisdale. Tisdale was elected two years ago from Johnson county for the long term. Since that time he has been mixed up with the Johnson county invaders and has since lived in Salt Lake, U. T., though he has preserved his residence in Wyoming. At present he is one of the defendants- in the cattlemen's case and spent all day in the district court. He has taken the oath of office in the senate. TO INSPECT THE BUILDINGS.

South Dakota's Legislative Committee Will Visit the World's Fair.

PIERRE, S. D., Jan. 17 .- [Special Telegram to THE BEE.]-At last it has been decided that the World's fair committee will make a junketing trip to Chicago to inspect the fair buildings. Resolutions to this effect went through the house without a dissenting vote. Fornell's divorce bill, extending time of resi dence to one year, was indefinitely postponed because of defects in drafting. The bill extending the time to six months is now before the committee, and such a bill will probably pass. Runswick's bill giving farm laborers first lien on crops for warea was killed. The World's fair committee of the senate reported in favor of an appropriation of $70,000 $70,000.

Governor Sheldon's first veto was an-ounced to the senato today. He vetoed giving mileage to the chief clerk. Bills were introduced in both houses to provide primary elections in solutions. Buck introduced a joint resolution in the senate to provide for an amendment to the constitution giving the legislature power to regulate and control the sedling of intoxicat-ing liquors. This is from the resubmission-ists, who have devided upon a knockout for prohibition.

Oklahoma's Deadlock Broken.

GUTHRIE, Okl., Jan. 17 .- The deadlock in the house was finally broken today by T. R. Waggoner, independent-democrat, of Norman, being elected speaker on the 149th ballot: The deciding vote was cast by M. L. Stanley, republican, of El Reno, who gave as his reason for voting for a democrat that his constituents had sent him to enact laws and not ballot all winter.

How the Alleged Murderers of Delevan S. Cole Were Discovered.

MRS. MASON CONFESSED TO A MINISTER

She Was Anxious to Pay the Penalty and Secure That Peace of Mind That She Read of in the Bible.

HASTINGS, Neb., Jan. 17.- [Special Telegram to THE BEE]-Ever since the news of Mrs. Anna B. Mason's arrest on Saturday last for the murder of Delevan S. Cole and of the confession she made to Deputy Sheriff R. A. Boyd, it has been rumored that else. THE BEE correspondent suc-ceeded in tracing down this rumor, finding it to be correct. An interview was obtained just as the gentlenau to whom the confession was made was leaving Hastings for a short business trip to a neighboring town. He is well known in religious circles here and his word cannot be doubted.

He first tacitly admitted that Mrs. Mason's confession to Mr. Boyd was not the first she had made. Then he detailed the circumstances which led up to her confession to Converted the Woman.

Some time ago he, with his wife and an other gentleman and his wife, both now missionaries in China, were making house to house visitations in the part of the town where Mrs. Mason was then living and called at her home, a short distance from the scene of the murder. She then evidenced a desire to lead a better life, and as the surroundings in which she was situated were not the most suitable for such an effort, arrangements were made to keep her at the interviewed man's house. This was about three months ago. Her religious inquiries she continued and almost the first question she asked was if the Lord would forgive every sin. Citations from scripture were furnished her and gradually she made a complete confession to her host and his wife.

Trying to Reform.

In the meantime a complete change had taken place in her character, and, according to ner wish, she was assisted to begin housekeeping in a small way, taking in washing to support herself. She sought the advice of her friends again as to her making a full confession to the officers, and they first advised that she make a clean breast of it, throwing herself on the mercy of the court, but later they thought she should make some defense.

Deputy Boyd had frequently been at her house, and last Saturday, in her own home, she told all she knew to him. He then hesitated as to whether he should arrest her then or on the Monday following, as he said he had no fear of her leaving the country, "for I have never seen a woman change so as you have in the last three months." She was arrested later in the day.

Continuing, the gentleman said that he knew perfectly well that Mrs. Mason's past life had been one of wretchedness, yet he believed no more conscientious Christian woman lived than she is today, in the city of tunes of the leaders.

In the senate the first candidate to receive a vote was ex-Governor Boyd and that gentleman was followed by Senator Babcock. But the honors were evenly divided between the democratic nominees in the senate, and the ex-governor could only console himself with the reflection that he received two votes, while J. Sterling Morton received but one. The other democratic votes in the senate went to Bryan and Keiper. Those who expected Thurston to develop a show of strength in the senate were disappointed. Senator Eggleston, of Lancaster, voted for the Union Pacific solicitor, but his vote stood alone when the totals were cast up. Paddock received but five votes in the senate while Powers completed the roll call with eight. Majors scored three votes, and the men who have all along professed that he would show unexpected strength from the very first were compelled to swallow their disappointment. The other votes were of the complimentary kind and were only cast to cover up final preference.

Fun in the House.

In the house the clerk was fairly buried beneath the weight of numbers of candidates. Thirty-one men were entered in the race. Paddock and Powersled. The twelve democrats who were to vote for Bryan failed to materialize, and the democratic vote was split up and parcelled out among Boyd, Keiper, Martin and Thomsen. Some little amusement was excited when Representative Kyner announced his vote for Patrick O'Bannon Hawes. The clerk failed to recognize the Douglas county patriot and the name had to be sent to the desk in writing before it could be recorded.

Several men who have been in political retirement for several years past were resurrected. It was a noticeable fact that the name of C. P. Van Wyck was not spoken during the entire roll call. This may have resulted from a design and several members were heard to say that the Otoe county statesman's name would be prominent in the roll call. It so happened that the latest exgovernor received the first vote in each house, as the list in each case is headed by a democrat from Douglas county, Babcock in the senate and Ames in the house.

Reception to the Governor.

The west end of the capitol building was a blaze of light tonight when the long delayed "inaugural" reception and ball tendered by the Lancaster county delegation to the new state officers took place. The senate cham ber was brilliantly lighted, and the corridors and stairways leading thereto were a veritable crush from the hour of beginning. $:30, until 10, when the senate chamber was cleared and the room given over to the devotees of Terpsichore. The right of the state to control the operation of railroads and to regulate, within just and reasonable bounds, their freight and passen-ger tariffs is no longer questioned."

The governor recommends that a law be passed providing for the election of the rail-road commissioners by a direct vote of the people, and another law prohibiting the givg of passes by railroads,

The recommendation is made that the statutes be amended so that the sessions of the legislature may be extended beyond the fifty day limit, and so that the governor may veto any objectionable clause of an appropriation bill without vetoing the entire Other Reforms Recommended.

The present supreme court commission is declared to have outlived its usefulness, and the creation of an intermediate court of appeals is recommended. Improvements in the election laws are rec-

Mooted Question. CHEVENNE, Wyo., Jun. 17.- The question of help, the governorship of Wyoming during the month of December was decided today by the supreme court of the state in a habeas corpus proceeding, brought by a former con-viet confined in the state penitentiary, to whom a pardon was issued by Acting Governor Barber on the 28th of December. The warden of the penitentiary refused to recognize the pardon, claiming that John E. Osborne, who had been elected governor of the state on the sth day of November, and who had pretended to qualify as such, and who forced an entrance into the capitol building on the 2d day of December, was the governor of the state. Th supreme court decided that the election of Mr. Osborne to fill the vacancy in the office of governor occurred at a general election and that under the provisions of the consti-tution, which require that the state and county officers elected at a general election shall qualify and enter upon their respective offices on the first Monday of January following the date of their election, he could not legally qualify and become governor of the state until the first Monday in January, 1993 It had been claimed by Governor Osborne and some of his political associates that the laws of the state did not provide any can-vassing board with authority to canvass the votes for governor and, therefore, he assumed to declare himself elected by taking the re-sult of the vote announced by the various county canvassing boards. The state canvassing board did not meet and was not re-quired to meet until the second day of De-cember, 1892. Thereafter they did meet
