The banquet and ball given by St Andrew's society did not close until yester day morning at 5 o'clock. In spite of the Inteness of the hour, however, the enjoyment of the sturdy Scotchmen and the visitors did not diminish, and when at last the party broke up, every one was apparently as fresh as if they had put in the whole night sleeping, instead of dancing the highland fling and other national dances.

Masonic Building Association. The First National Masonic Savings and Lonn association of Chicago is the only national building and loan association in existence which is managed and controlled by Masons. It has just established a branch at Council Bluffs, with the following well known citizens as officers and directors: Victor Jennings, president; George W. Lipe, secretary and treasurer; T. C. Dawson, attorney, and W. O. Wirt, W. J. Jameson, Dr. T B. Lacey, Dr. F. S. Thomas, P. H. Wind and G. T. Joslin as directors. The plan of the association has been examined by careful business men here and elsewhere and pronounced the most countable of any in the field. Over $40,000 of stock has been sold in this city within a week and a number of our citizens are arranging to borrow from the association for building or improving property. Any person can become a member.

Father Gets the Child.

A habeas corpus case, in which a 7-months old child was the subject of controversy, was decided by Judge Thornell yesterday. It was brought up from Mills county not long ago be tried before Judge Smith, but the latter referred it to Judge Thornell, who was then holding court at Red Oak. The little one was the child of William Sayles of Pacific Junction the mother having died very soon after its birth. Sayles made ar-rangements with Charles, Mugg and wife to rangements with Charles Mugg and wife to take care of the child, with the understanding that they were to have the rent of his farm free until he could make other arrangements which might be more satisfactory. Later on Sayles made arrangements with a sister who lives at Corfu, N. Y., to take the child, but Mugg and his wife refused to give up the child, claiming that it had been the wish of the mother that it should be left in their care. Judge Thornell decided yesterday that the child should be given back to the father. given back to the father.

Dismissed the Proceedings.

The suit of Laura Kessler against Samuel Kessler was dismissed yesterday. It has been pending for some time, the defendant having filed a motion only a few days ago asking that it be removed to the district court of Guthrie county. The cause of the dismissol was a peculiar state of affairs which have just become known. Kessler, it is said, was insane, and his wife was appointed guardian. During his insanity he deserted her whereauthers. pointed guardian. During his insanity he deserted her, whereupon she commenced an action for a divorce. Upon this being learned the case was dismisaed by the attorney of the plaintiff, but another suit for the same thing will be commenced as soon as Mrs. Kessler can be relieved of the guardianship.

Judge Thornell Orders a Detailed Statement in a Sensational Case.

WHAT JUDGES AND JURORS WERE BRIBED

Suit of a Recent Defendant to Recover Money Paid His Attorneys for Alleged Corruption Purposes Promises Some Interesting Reading.

Judge Thornell ruled yesterday morning in the district court on a motion for a more specific statement which has been under advisement for several days past in the case of William Barker against the law firm of Mynster, Lindt & Sweet. This case was written up at some length in The Bee recently, the plaintiff asking for a judgment for about $4,000 against the defendants. alleging that he had paid out large sums of money for the purpose of buying judges, juries, etc., in a criminal case in which he was defendant, but that these sums had been diverted from the use for which they had been intended. The court yesterday ruled that a more specific statement should be made as to the purposes for which the money had been paid out. Emmet Tinley, who represents Barker, has already sent the statement to Barker, who is at Salt Lake City, for his shruature, and as soon as it returns it will be filed in court. He states that It will contain substantially the same facts as have already been published in Tuz Bzz. If so, it will make extremely interesting

WILL PUSH THE MOTOR.

Crusade Started by Spencer Smith Gathers

Force as Days Go By. Circulars have been issued by Han. Spencer Smith and are now being sent out to the property owners of the city asking them to turn over whatever claims they may have against the motor company, in order that a sult for their satisfaction may be started. This is another step in the crusade which was instituted a couple of weeks ago for the purpose of recovering the $60,000 benus which was voted the company by the tax-payers at the time the project of building the bridge was started. The first petition asked for a judgment of only $23,000, but it was started at that time that it only represented was stated a portion of the property owners, who would be induced to pool their interests as soon as possible. This step has now been taken, and if the scheme meets with the approval of the property owners to whom the proposition is made, a supplementary peti-tion will be filed in the near future.

The reluctance of the motor company to settle for the paving has been the subject of many questions lately, the citizens generally being unable to understand what motive there could be for putting off a payment which will undoubtedly have to be made sooner or later. The answer to the problem, as given by a gentleman who has had considerable insight into the matter, is that the attorneys for the motor company are waiting patiently for the time to roll by when all these claims that have not been put in ment will be outlawed. The time is close at hand now, and unless actions are commenced soon the property owners who have claims will find that they are barred by the statute of limitations. There are claims against the company now to the amount of about $25,000, it is estimated, and less than half of the amount has yet been sued for, so that if the their rights can be made to continue their map a little longer the company will prove to be considerably the gainer by its dilatory

Sheriff Bennett was summoned and took the afflicted lady in charge for the purpose of placing her case before the board of insanity.

Complaints of Poor Car Service Patrons of the Sherman avenue and South Omaha street car line are complaining bitterly of the service given. Not that the schedule time is not sufficient for their acamodation, but because the cars are not run on time. It is of daily occurrence that passengers are obliged to stand on street corners for twenty to thirty minttes waiting for a car, and then two, or even three trains, will come along together. Very often a belated would-be passenger is waved aside by the motorman or conductor, while the train whizzes by, to await the next one, because his train is behind time. The com-pany would confer a great favor on the pat-rons of the best paying line in the city if it would see to it that trains are run with some degree of regularity.

HAYTI IN GREAT TROUBLE

Condition of Affairs in the Black Republic Not Reassuring.

PRESIDENT HIPPOLYTE INTERVIEWED

Danger of Another Revolution Soon-How the United States Could Change the Trend of Affairs Hayti Needs Peace.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26,-The correspondent of the Herald at Port au Prince says: The republic of Hayti, lying at the doorway of what may presently be the key of our commercial naval route between the Atlantic and Pacific via the Nicaragua canal, is today at the mercy of a clique of foreign merchants. At this mement Hayti is threatened with another revolution.

Ex-President Leg time is in Jamaica with a group of fellow exiles waiting for a favorable moment to land in Hayti and overthrow the government of Hippolyte Any day the signal for bloodshed may be given. It is a time of unrest. elections for deputies have just ended and France and the United States are pressing the government for indemnity settlements with their gunboats on hand to add to the general feeling of inse

President Hippolyte cannot leave the place without a guard of soldiers. cannot leave the capitol without the escort of a large army. His palace is guarded like a fortress with artillery and hundreds of troops. Common people are in almost daily dread of the merciless sort of war that is peculiar to Hayti.

In Danger of Another Revolution. All that is needed to start a terrible revolt is the money of France, and Frenchmen are lenders who furnish old to the government at something like 30 per cent a year.

An extraordinary thing about Hayti the successful revolutionists when they have come into power invariably pay all the debts of the government they have destroyed, as well as the entire ost of the revolution. The bands issued to pay the expenses of the government's army and the bonds issued to pay the exuses of the revolutionary troops are both honored with the zeal of Haytien revolutions. It is simply a question today whether the French and German money lenders have more confidence in Manigat than Hippolyte. The moment they decide in favor of the revolutionists they cut the governmental financial aid, so far as they can control the situation.

What the United States Could Do. A single step on the part of the United States would change the whole trend of affairs. The money lenders and their schemes should be crushed in the interest of American commerce. sence of three American ernisers in the Haytien ports in times of danger would be sufficient to secure the government. No revolutionist would attempt to carry out his plan when it was known that the United States would oppose and if necessary, crush any struggle carried on by foreign capitalists against the constitutional government of Hayti Were it once made plain that the United States had a substantial interest in the tranquillity of Hayti, and would insist upon protecting that interest by force, if necessary, there would be a marvelous change. Your correspondent interviewed Hippolyte and suggested to him that the probable control of the Nicaragua canal the United States might compel that government to use its utmost influence to secure commercial control of Hayti, and in some sense guarantee the peace of the country. The president nedded his head slowly. Revolutions Impoverishing Haytt. "The constant revolutions swallow up so much money that there is very little left for commercial use and the United States suffers and a few foreign mer-chants drain the country of its wealth," was the correspondent's reply.

"That is only too true," said the president gravely. But Hayti has to beware of America. We have to be sus-Our independence must be guarded above all things. We are very close to the coast of the United States and our past experience has taught us we must guard ourselves. It is useless to think of territorial conquests for Hayti will not yield an inch of her soil to any foreign government."

"But, Mr. President, there is no movement of that kind in the United States. "We have had our own experience. I refer to the claim of the United States that Hayti had agreed to lease the Mole St. Nicholas as an American naval station. No such agreement was made."

The president said that Hayti was anxious to secure peace, but she wanted no peace that would in any way in-fringe upon her independence. He was very earnest in expressing this idea. There is hardly a spot of soil that is not bursting with riches. With peace Hayti can borrow money at less than 30 per cent. Let us once begin a policy that will insure peace here without threatening the independence of the republic and the old, deep-rooted antipathy for Americans will disappear, One of the most important evidences that the United States do not have a strong enough hold on her is the fact that the bank of Hayti, an institution incorporated and owned in France collects all the import and export duties, and is also the National treasury. This gives France a voice in Haytien affairs that no European government should have if the spirit of the Monroe doctrine is to prevail. The Haytiens do not seem to be jealous of France as of the United States, although they had to fight against France to secure their independ-

Apache Arrow Poison.

Although the Apaches have had little or no use for their poisoned weapons for years, still they, because of a tribal instinct, each summer season go through an annual preparation of their arrow tips as carefully and methodically as if an old-time war were near at hand, This work on the arrows, as described by the Pomona Progress, is one piece of labor that the Indian brave will not leave to the squaws. He gathers a dozen or more rattlesnake heads, and outs them in a spherical vessel. these he puts half a pint of a species of large red ant that is found in many parts of Arizona. The bite of this ant is more poisonous than that of a bee.

Upon these he pours some water and then seals up with moist earth the lid of this vessel. He then digs a hole two feet deep into the ground, in which he builds a roaring fire and puts in some stones. When the interior of the hole and the stones are red hot he makes a place in the bottom for the earthen vessel and puts it in. About it and upon it he puts the coals and hot stones, and upon the top he builds a flerce fire and keeps it up for twenty-four hours Then he digs out his vessel, and, standing off with a long pole, disengages the top and lets the fumes escape. The Indian insists that if the fumes should come in his face they would kill him. The mass left at the bottom of the vessel is a dark brown paste. To test the efficacy of his concoction a recent traveler saw an Indian with his hunting knife make a cut in his bare leg just below the knee and let the blood run down to his ankle. It immediately began to sizzle, as if it were cooking the blood, and the poison followed the blood right up the leg, sizzling its way until the Indian scraped the blood away with his knife. The say age assured the paleface that had he allowed the poison to reach the mouth of the wound he would have been dead in ten minutes.
