Grounds Upon Which Senator Mills Bases His Opposition to the Anti-Option Bill.

BACKED UP IN IT BY HISCOCK OF NEW YORK

Gist of the Argument Made by the Senator From Texas-Mr. Chandler Wants the Whisky Trust Investigated-In the House,

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 26 .- There were not many senators in the chamber today during the debate on the anti-option bill; but those who were present witnessed the remarkable circumstance of the states rights democrat, Mills of Texas, having his argument against the constitutionality of the bill sustaine i by the stalwart republican. Hiscock of New York. Mills declared his belief that the sentiment in favor of local self-government prevailed from New England to the Pacific ocean, and Hiscock asserted that there had been rarely presented to congress a measure in which less regard had been paid than was paid in the pending measure, either through periods of legislation or constitutional restrictions.

Alcoholie Liquor Traffic.

An effort to pass a bill creating a commis sion on the alcoholic liquor traffic, gave Mr. Vest, democrat, from Missouri, an opportunity of ventilating his views on such specimens of crank legislation, and on those "philanthropists who wanted to use the owers of congress to advance some special hobby to which they are devoting their otherwise uscless lives."

This morning Mr. Chandler introduced a resolution directing the committee on finance to investigate and report next December whether there is a whisky trust organized to control the manufacture and sale of distilled liquors; whether the rebate system is used : whether adulterations or drugs are used, etc.

From 1 to 2 p. m. the senate considered pills on the calendar, when the anti-option bill came up, and Mr. Mills made an argument against it.

After further discussion the morning hour expired without action on the alcoholic traffic bill.

Mr. Gorman introduced a joint resolution uthorizing the secretaries of war and navy to lend ensigns and flags, etc. (except battle flags), for decoration of the World's fair buildings, and it was passed. He also offered a resolution for the appointment of a com-mittee of three senators to make the neces-vary arrangements for the inauguration of the president-elect on the 4th of March next, and it was agreed to.

Mr. Faulkner gave notice that on Febru-nry 18 he would present resolutions in rela-tion to the death of his late colleague, Mr. Kenna

Mr. Lodge's Credentials Presented.

The credentials of Henry Cabot Lodge as senator from the state of Massachusetta, beginning March 4 next, were presented and placed on file, The bill heretofore offered by Mr. Bate, democrat, from Tennessee, to repeal all statutes relating to supervisors of election and special deputies, was taken from the table and referred to the judiciary committee. Mr. Chandler offered a resolution, which was referred to the finance committee, in-was referred to the finance in the termine into the structing that committee to inquire into the existence and purpose of a whisky trust. Senate bill, for the establishment and enforcement of rules and regulations for the navigation of canals was reported and passed.

 Davigation of canals was reported and passed.
 These senate bills, among others, were passed: To authorize the Missouri River Power company of Montana to construct a dam across the Missouri river; to provide for the reservation of certain timber lands upon the Siletz Indian reservation for the tenefit of the Indians.
 The anti-option bill was then taken up, and Mr. Mills, democrat, from Texas, made a speech against the bill as being aimed against the existence of state governments. He thought that the republican statesmen were mistaken in regard to the states rights sentiment of the people of the United States.
 The people of the United States loved their local self-government. They clung to it with an instinct which told them their liber ties depended upon its preservation. He (Mills) would not hesitate to stand before any audience in the union, from the rock-bound coast of Maine across to the Pacific ocean, and down to the south, and vindicate the right of every state in the union to a government of its own people in its own way; and he would do it with the approval of his audiences. The general government had no right to suppress immorality in the states. If it had, then it had a right to establish immorality in the states. It had no right to punish murderers in the states. If it had, then it had a right to go into a state and turn them loose. Mr. Mills Will Not Support the Bill. By an india rubber system of construction of the constitution, congress had a right to regulate commerce in states—as proposed in the pending measure. It could go farther, nud regulate the production of the specified articles. Passing on from the constitu-tional argument, Mr. Mills declared that he would not support the bill because it was not a regulation of commerce, and because not a regulation of commerce, and because it could not affect the price of cotton, wheat or corn, or any other agricultural product. "Future" sales, he declared, were a part of the business system of the country. There was not a semator who could go to his state and face his constituents after voting to make all "future" sales of agricultural prod-ucts illegal. No senator who had done so could stand up before the storm of indigna-tion which he would have provoked. The military commandant of a post could not be expected to go out every morning and

HARPED UPON STATES RIGHTS on appropriations the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill. Calendar. The house then resumed, in committee of the whole, the consideration of the sundry the one authorizing the commissioner of the subary the one authorizing the commissioner of the general land office to detail clerks in his office for the protection of timber on the public lands. The amount of the appropriation involved is $40,000. To this section Mr. Hol-man (in charge of the bill) offered a substi-stute which virtually increases the appro-priation to $50,000. But this amount was not considered sufficient by the Louisiana mem-bers, and, as their spokesman, Mr. Hianchard moved to increase to $120,000. This was agreed to, and the substitute, as amended, was agreed to. Was agreed to. When the pargraph for the survey of the public lands was reached. Mr. Wilson, re-publican, from Washington, moved to in-crease the appropriation from $100,000 to $200,000. Defeated. Mr. Davis of Kansas moved to increase the appropriation for the subsergement of ent of the appropriation for the enlargemen military posts from $300,000 to $500,000. Criticised the Treasurer's Report.

In opposing this amendment Mr. Deckery titizised the recent report of the secretary In opposing this amendment Mr. Deckery criticised the recent report of the secretary of the treasury in regard to the financial situation. The secretary, he said, estimated the surplus on June 30, 1893, at £20,992,377, while the disbursing officers' biances for the payment of current liabilities on the first of the present month were but $25,822,774. The estimated surplus of the treasury at the close of the present fiscal year, meager as it was, would not exist at all, but for a considerable default in meeting the requirements of the sinking fund and the covering into the gen-eral treasury of the trust fund belonging to the holders of national bank notes. The lat-ter action created a new public indebtedness of which $23,400,500 was unpaid at the be-ginning of the present year. If there was charged against the treasury the $11,811,135 of sinking fund default for the fiscal year 1892, the additional sum of $49,892,986 on the national bank redemption fund July 1 next, the summers and summers and be due the national bank redemption fund July 1 next. the $19,763,473.25 which would be due the national bank redemption fund July 1 next, the apparent surplus of $20,962,977 vanished and gave place to a deficiency of $50,972,784. The secretary had estimated in his annual report a surplus of $20,909,000 and in his recent report had esti-mated a surplus of $20,919,000 notwithstand-ing that he had in the meantime sent in a deficiency estimate for the pension bureau of $3,355,000. But by a stranger coincidence this deficiency had been relieved by an in-creased estimate in the receipts from in-ternal revenue. He did not at this time make reference to the liabilities that would be entailed for the ensuing fiscal year, inmass reference to the liablities that would be entailed for the ensuing fiscal year, in-assnuch as the committee on ways and means had the matter under consideration, but it was apparent that there would be a deficience on the state of the owner of the deficiency probably of $15,000,000, the amount, however, being determined by the administration of the government. Pending a vote the committee rose and the house, without concluding consideration of the bill adjourned.

JUSTICE LAMAR'S SUCCESSOR.

President Harrison Has Decided to Name Him in a Short Time, WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 26.—There was no formal conference at the white house today concerning the vacancy on the bench of the United States supreme court, but it can be stated, on what is said to be good authority, that President Harrison has made up his mind to nominate a successor to the late Justice Lamar

Among the callers at the white house this morning were several scnators, with whom he discussed the question, and to one of these President Harrison stated positively that he had fully made up his mind to make the appointment. In order to make the fight which the democratic senators are expected to wage over the confirmation of the nominee as pointless as possible, the president will name a man to whom the appointment will be in the nature of a well deserved promotion, thus carrying out the civil service idea. The president will take up the list of southern judges and endeavor to find among them the man to fit his ideal.

them the man to fit his ideal. It is the expectation that the nomination will be sent in at the end of a week, and the republicans of the senate are determined that it shall be confirmed, even if they have to resort to cloture and cast "senatorial courtesy" to the winds to accomplish it. A prominent republican senator, who gen-erally speaks for his party, said that the re-publicans would refuse to pass any appro-priation bill until the nomination was dis-posed of, and that the democrats would of Madison. posed of, and that the democrats would hardly care to take the responsibility of forcing an extra session of congress in order to give Mr. Cleveland the privilege of nam-ing a judge. LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 26 .- [Special to THE BEE]-Judge Long was engaged in hearing a peculiar case this afternoon. It was where Elder Howe, the city poor agent, asked for a writ of habeas corpus to secure the posses sion of a 13-year-old girl named Lizzie Fredcrickson. The girl's mother is dead and her stepmother didn't like her. Her father, who is a farmer in West Oak precinct, gave her to a bachelor friend, Neils Danlelson, to raise. The girl has been keeping house for Danielson, who is an elderly Scandinavian, but the suspicions of the neighbors have been aroused lately, because of the alleged fact that there is only one sleeping place in the house. Believing that the couple have been sustaining unlawful relations, they resorted to the habeas corpus to get her out of the old man's possession. The girl is a

PENSION REFORMS.

Plans of the Incoming Administration Discussed at Washington.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 26 .- The Star has this gossip regarding the proposed reduction in the pension list: "Recent developments have aroused a great deal of interest in the pension question, and there is a growing conviction that its agitation is going to be the most prominent feature of the new administration. Mr. Cleveland has already made a record on his pension vetoes, which appear not to have hurt him much in the tinued last campaign. It is understood that he now hopes to effect a complete reform in the methods of granting pensions and to purge the pension roll during the course of his administration of pensioners who are carried improperly and to cut down excessive pensions. In this connection a great deal of discussion was provoked at the capitol today by the speech of ex-Secretary Fairchild at Richmond last evening, in which he told the southern democrats that they need not stand back and be aread to deal he told the southern democrats that they need not stand back and be afraid to deal with the pension question as it should be dealt with. There is no doubt felt among democrats that Mr. Cleveland intends to handle the question without gloves, with the purpose to reduce the annual payment for pensions as low as possible. "The talk of transferring the pension of-fice to the War department is suid to arrow

The tank of transferring the pension of-fice to the War department is said to grow out of the expectation that Colonel Lamont will be at the head of that department, and he will make the revision of the pension list and reform the conspicuous work of his ad-ministration of that office. Confronted with an expenditure for pensions would appear an expenditure for pensions rapidly ap-proaching $200,000,000 a year, and at the same time threatened with a deficiency in the treasury at a time when the party is pledged to a considerable reduction of the customs duties, the democrats feel that something must be done to reduce the draft upon the treasury, and they regard the pen-sion expenditure as offering the best possible opportunity for retreneement. The proposition to transfer the pension bursau to the War department, to create a commission to examine the roll and legislation on the pension bill, designed to exclude from the privilege of pensions certain classes now enabled to draw them, are all a part of the general policy which is about to be inaugurated."
