NEBRASKA LABOR CONGRESS

Estimate of the Strength of the New Organization.

ITS METHODS AND PURPOSES EXPLAINED

Will Use the Boycott and Eschew Politics-Working Under the American Federation-Sketch of That Body's Rise.

Some idea of the magnitude of interests concerned in the trades convention which met in Omaha last Sunday and organized as a state labor congress can be understood from the following facts which THE BEE has been asked to compile and print. The figures given are quoted from the last annual reports-December, 1892, -of each trade and are official. There were thirty-eight delegates present at the congress from thirty-two different labor organizations and two central labor unions, and represented twenty-one distinct and separate trades. They were:

Backed by a Million. Every one of these unions affiliates with the American Federation of Labor which claims to have collected for 1892 a per capita tax from upwards of 1,000, 000 members distributed over the United States and Canada. Any legitimate strike occurring in Omaha among any of these trades would be supported out of the general strike fund of the Federation when called upon by the national association of the trade affected. Under the system adopted by the State Labor congress strikes among any of its affiliated trades unions will not be recognized as legitimate until the trouble has been officially referred to and been acied upon by the executive committee of the Nebraska congress. And no strike will be ordered under any circumstances until arbitration has been rejected and all efforts of the congress with conciliation have been exhausted. In such a case the whole strength of Nebraska trades unionism will be directed upon the common foe, with the boycott as its chiefest weapon and biggest gun. But this will in no way interfere with the national organization of the affected industry throwing all its power into the breach, nor will the American Federation of Labor be less operative in trade troubles; on the contrary, the state congress is expected to lend an added local force hitherto unfelt in labor difficulties. next session of the congress in July the order of the Knights of Labor will be These letters are but samples of the one fully represented, which will have the that burden the mails of the executive de effect of uniting in one working partment each day. whole, 90 per cent of all the unskilled and skilled labor in the state and country and will effectually restrain members of the different organizations from taking the place of their striking brothers in the other orders. oping and the officers hope to have an

The dominant factor in the state or-ganization up to now is, how-ever, the American Federation of Labor which has as interesting a history as its future outlook is promising. Immediately after the civil war, on the 20th of August, 1866, delegates from sixty labor organizations met in Baltimore and formed a permanent national organization under the name of the National Labor union, which held annual conventions until 1872, when in Columbus, O., the national body nominated a presidential ticket. The great financial crisis of 1873, followed by the succeeding years of panic, drained the resources of the unions and greatly decreased unions and greatly decreased their membership, but in Pittsburg, Pa., on November 15, 1881, the old spirit had revived and 107 delegates, representing over a quarter of a million of workers assembled to reorganize on broader lines. and the Federation of Organized Trade and Labor Unions of the United States and Canada was the manchild of their deliberations. Many, if not all, of the ideas adopted in their politic demands have since been taken up and presented by other organizations of labor. Due the national bureau of labor statistics finally secured in 1883 is claimed as the direct result of this organization. From the third convention of the re organized Federation, held in New York, 1883, dates the earnest effort of the substitution of arbitration in place of strikes, while the eight-hour system was first seriously agitated in the convention of 1884, which was held in Chicago, and May 1, 1886, was fixed for its general inauguration. The turbulent cenes of the first week of that month in Chicago and the terrible consequence of the memorable and fatal meetings in the Haymarket square created a violent reaction in the public mind; still a number of unions were suc-The sixth annual convention was held in Columbus, O., 1886 and at the meeting the old federation was dissolved, the American Federation of Labor taking its place, which originated the constitution under which the order is working, with subsequent amendments, to this day. At the convention at Baltimore, Md., in 1887 were delegates from 2,421 unions, representing a total membership in good standing of 600,340, as against 316,469 of the year previous.

For an Eight-Hour Day

In St. Louis, Mo., in 1888, the convention refixed the date of inauguraof the eight-hour system for May 1, 1890. and at the annual meeting of 1889 the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America were selected as a trade to try for the eight-hour, and as a result the movement was successful in 137 cities and benefited 46,197 workmen of

The tenth annual convention was held in Detroit, Mich., on December 8, 1890, and the chief work done was the defining of the Federations attitude on polities as a means to an economic end. when it was decided to keep out of ities and restrict their united efforts solely to industrial ends without doing aught to awaken either political or religious dissension among their diversi-fied membership. Since then the Federation has met with abundant success and claims a daily increasing membership. The idea and the calling of the Nebraska State Labor congress is due entirely to the policy of this order and whatever good may develop from its actions must be credited to the American Federation of Labor.

WAITERS ORGANIZE.

Said to Be Over Three Hundred in the Tri-Cities.

There are in Omaha, South Omaha and Council Bluffs in the neighborhood of 210 colored waiters and cooks, and 105 white men in the same line of work. The colored men control the high-toned and hotel work, while the white walters and cooks are chiefly confined to restaurants, etc. Wednesday night some twenty-two colored waiters formed themselves as a nucleus and organized as a local under the Hotel and Restaurant Employes National alliance, and are confident that in a little while every cook and waiter in the three cities will be enrolled in their trades union.

The national alliance to which Omaha local is subordinate was instituted in August, 1890, when four local waiters unions responded to a call to form a national organization. The second convention was held in New York city in January, 1892, with fourteen locals in attendance when the name of the order was changed from Waiters and Bartenders National union to its present title. The trades organization publishes the only weekly in the country and is bold, tireless and intelligent in its utterances. The national organization has thirty-four local unions and a membership of 2,800. The next annual convention will be held in Chicago, May, 1893, and already the men are laying plans to bring the succeeding convention to Omaha.

Nonth Galveston, Tex., Feb. 22 —Architects and builders are the busiest of all the busy people in North Galveston at present. busy people in North Galveston at present. The demand exceeds labor supply. The most noteworthy fact is the character of the buildings going up. Besides business houses, there are numerous elegant residences and cottages, which indicate that their owners intend to make North Galveston their permanent place of abode. This is another evidence that this coming industrial center is growing with a solid and substantial center is growing with a solid and substantial growth. There's nothing "mushroomy" about North

THEY WANT TO KNOW.

Queer Drafts Against Mayor Bemis' Stock of General Information. Mayor Bemis is thinking seriously of petitioning the council to establish a bureau of information in connection with the executive department of the city government.

Almost every mail brings letters of inquiry upon all sorts of subjects. Outsiders seem to regard his honor as being in the business of locating lost friends or relatives, or conducting an employment bureau and in fact, devoting his time to looking up all sorts of matters that have no bearing whatever upon the official business. Some of the letters he receives are truly remarkable. Not long ago a lady residing in another state mailed to the mayor a request to look up her husband, who had sloped some time previous, and she was certain he was a resident of this city and had taken unto himself another wife. He is still looking for that recreant husband and with but little show of furnishing the lady with the information she is so anxious to receive.

Yesterday when the executive opened his mail he found a letter from a man who resides in a small hamlet in the wilds of Iowa. He is desirous of becoming a city chap and wants Mayor Bemis to secure him a job plastering, or building chimneys or cisterns, or in fact doing anything that will enable him to join the city throng, and ascertain what it will cost to keep his family and how much rent he will be compelled to and how much rent he will be compelled to
