

TAKEN IN CAUCUS

Railroad Managers Moving to Save the State Board of Transportation.

ARE TRYING TO HEAD OFF IMPEACHMENT

Republicans Cajoled or Bullied Into Agreeing to Vote It Down.

PEOPLE'S INTERESTS AGAIN TURNED ASIDE

Corporations Press Their Claims to the Disadvantage of the Public.

MUCH INDIGNATION PUBLICLY EXPRESSED

Some Members Who Went Into the Caucus Say They Are Not Altogether Satisfied—

Supreme Court Commission Named—Other Legislative Gossip.

LINCOLN, Neb., March 15.—[Special Telegram to THE BEE.]—Once more the railroads have triumphed and congressional influence has crowded the representatives of the people into a corner and nailed them up.

Once more the monopoly that has gone forth that corruption must be condoned, and that hoodlums and vengeful officials must not be brought face to face with the acts of which they have been guilty, and by which the people of the state have been robbed of thousands upon thousands of dollars.

The recent searching investigation is to be turned into a farce and branded as absolutely without force, in order that the railroad interests may not suffer and that the plant tools of the corporations may not be punished for carrying out the behests of their monopolistic masters.

The job was done tonight when the republican members of the legislature were called into a caucus at the Lincoln hotel, to decide upon what course to pursue when the resolution calling for the impeachment of the state officials who had been found guilty of gross neglect of duty and misconduct and malfeasance in office is called up in the house tomorrow.

Hunted as They Never Had Before.

During the entire afternoon, in fact from the very moment that the threatening resolution was introduced in the house, the liveliest kind of activity was noticeable among the railroad contingent, and the corporation powdermonkeys were hustling ammunition as the session or never hustled before.

The situation was getting very precarious for them, and to the credit of their keen perception it is said that they fully realized it. They realized that the impeachment of the railroad officials would be a hollow victory, if the State Board of Transportation, the monument of the creation of three vacancies on that board that would have to be filled by an anti-monopoly governor.

To be confronted by such a situation as this was enough to appall them, and they went to work without any delay or wasting any valuable time in useless lamentation. They were determined to save to themselves the services of the men who had proven so useful to them in the past, and in order to accomplish it all the immediately contiguous portion of earth was turned and so much of the next world was with reach.

Used Every Means Known.

To detail the work of the lobby would only be to set forth what has been detailed many a time before. All of the arguments and eloquence of the able railroad attorneys, together with the other means of persuasion that have never been known to fail, were called into requisition, and where none of these would answer outside influence was reached in a roundabout way to pull unwilling members into line.

Law was freely quoted and the manner in which it was distorted to suit the occasion would have sent a professional contortionist into a tremor. The law was twisted, and any and all kinds of promises were made, and the result was that when the caucus adjourned it found the fate of the impeachment resolution settled, so far as the republicans were concerned.

That such a state of affairs would be reached might have been doubted when the house adjourned this forenoon, but it is practically settled that if the resolution is to pass the house it will have to be by independent and democratic votes, as the republicans tacitly decided to lend their unanimous support to knocking out the resolution.

How They Were Sided.

"The republicans men who could not be brought into line in any other way, were told that it would be impossible to carry the impeachment proceedings through to a successful termination, and that to have it fail would be to make the nation worse than it was before, as it would be a vindication of their course, and would only become more arrogant and corrupt than they were."

It was repeatedly asserted that an impeachment was a waste of time, and every effort was made to dissuade every republican from giving such a move countenance. It was said that the only course was to let the only course of absolute safety lay in killing the resolution at the very start.

Independents Joining the Movement.

It is stated that many of the independents are acting along the same line, and that the republican leaders have been very successful in kind of doctrine during the afternoon. It is said that several of the democrats are also working in that direction, and where Irwin's resolution is not now apparent.

As a result of the new phase of the situation the caucus officials are feeling considerably better tonight than they have for several days past. They have braced up to a very perceptible degree and affect to be well, but there is not going to be very much of a show after all.

One of the arguments of the railroad attorneys is that the censured officials had no notice of the impeachment proceedings, and that until it was shown that they were guilty of the crime, they were not to be held responsible for the same. It is stated that if this position was good, it would have to ignore the repeated expressions made by the press and the letter of ex-governor Boyd calling attention to the very things that have now been shown to have been charged.

Are Surprised.

There is a great deal of dissatisfaction expressed over the situation, and several of the republican members stated that there was every indication that they had been misled, hoodwinked and trapped, and some of them stated that if such should prove to be the case, after closer examination, they would not be bound by the action of the meeting this evening.

The action of the caucus is outside the jurisdiction of all fair minded men and is a reflection on the members who are disposed to vote the dictate of their consciences rather than the behests of the corporation machine and ringsters.

The railroad men were openly asserting as

TOOK A HORRIBLE REVENGE

Citizens of a Chinese Village Exterminated a Gang of Pirates.

TWO JUNKLOADS HACKED TO PIECES

Fan Tu the Scene of a Bloody Massacre—

Sacrifice on the Grave of a Murdered Villager—Two of the Pirates' Hearts Eaten.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., March 15.—The steamship City of Rio de Janeiro arrived today from Yokohama and Hong Kong.

A Yokohama paper prints the following account of the extermination of pirates in a Chinese village last January:

On January 15 last two piratical craft having on board a number of pirates, were in the vicinity of the city of Fan Tu for shelter from the pirates landed, ostensibly for the purpose of making a few purchases, but most likely to see whether any business could be done in their particular calling. The ruffians thought that their junks were sufficiently disguised and feared no trouble from the inhabitants.

Fan Tu had suffered repeatedly from depredations of the numerous sea pirates, and had lost some of their number at the hands of the desperadoes, and it so happened that some of the pirates were recognized by the inhabitants.

No sooner had the men returned to their junks than the alarm was silently given. The inhabitants, coming together, soon determined to wreak summary vengeance on their unwelcome visitors. According to the well armed men surprised the pirates during the early morning, and two of their junks were surrounded. In another minute the pirates were being cut down by the villagers, who, amid the shouts of their companions on shore, burst open the hatch and doors of the cabins and poured a stream of bullets upon the fifty or sixty pirates who were as sleep, huddled together on the lower decks. They were thoroughly taken by surprise and hardly any resistance was made. All the pirates but two being hacked into mincemeat by the exasperated villagers.

The salary appropriation bill is still in the hands of the secretary. When it reached the committee from the house, it was referred to the committee on the whole. The committee on ways and means was denied the privilege of passing upon its own bill, and the committee on the whole, in committee of the whole, and will in all probability be treated very much as was the general appropriation bill.

The salary appropriation bill is also on the secretary's desk, where it is likely to remain until near the close of the session.

The world's fair bill was just reported from the committee as the senate adjourned this evening.

The railroad bill is still in the hands of the committee on the whole, and it is likely to go to the senate adjournment this evening.

The stock yards bill are also well down toward the middle of the general file, and are being pushed in the ordinary routine of business.

It is freely predicted that the senate cannot possibly finish its work until some time after the adjournment of the session, and with considerable show of confidence that the final adjournment will not be taken until the 15th of that month.

How Can It Be Done?

The question, "how can it be done?" C. W. Mosher, as the prison contractor and the lessee of the convict labor, can furnish in his bankrupt condition the eighty cells of the new building, but he is required to furnish the state to furnish for the new cell house. It is ostensibly for this purpose that the Board of Public Lands and Buildings is now engaged in a long and arduous task, so as to determine what was the best kind of cells to have placed in the new building, but the contractor has not yet received a word in reply, and the cell house is still standing there empty as on the day that the walls were completed, and the interior is in place.

Some of the legislators have set up an intense thinking on this matter, and it is getting no less at a tremendous pace. When the board of public lands and buildings is either the bankrupt bank president or the derelict officials, who are now trying to move back to their home on Easy street, it is not surprising that the greater part of their grief is past.

Played Horse with Each Other.

The action of the house all through the afternoon was a lot of good natured horse playing. The resolution was introduced, and the general file, and nothing was rejected or amended to any extent.

How made a buncombe fight on Brockman's bill in one of the ways and means, and the latter because of his fealty to Major during the senatorial fight. After Brockman had sweat sufficiently how withdrew his opposition and turned a deaf ear and helped place the bill on the general file.

The same kind of a good natured opposition was shown by the vote to take the school levy out of the hands of the council. McKesson taking the part of the council until set down by the house, which raised a general uproar. McKesson, however, both had the floor and were trying to settle the question of which had taught school the other. McKesson showed his credentials as a pedagogue several years since, while McKesson only laid claim to twelve years. On that slight point the merits of McKesson and the opposition was laid on the shelf.

Ames Away as Usual.

The same was true of Ames' sweating bill. The introducer was absent as usual, and a motion was made to pass it until his return. But Porter declared that he would not move in the city and if he did not feel equal to his measures, he is to present before not expect any answer to look after his interests, and his answer to look after his interests, and his answer to look after his interests.

Many of the bills thus advanced will never be heard of again, and it was with that expectation that they were allowed to amble into the legislative graveyard known as the general file.

Nason was called to the chair for about five minutes, and during that time the house was in a wild uproar. Probably half the members were on their feet at a time, and each and all were clamoring for recognition and for the speaker calling on him. It is not to be supposed that the gentleman from Douglas stood with gavel raised and mouth open, but not a sound did he make and not a word did he utter. It was the only case of buck fever that has been seen in the house during the session, and the disconcerted member was smiling in a helpless sort of a way until the speaker called on him, and he perceptibly rapped the legislative hazers to their seats.

Ehrenpfort at His Old Trick.

Much of the work that is being done here against the Omaha charter is by patriots of the Ehrenpfort brand. Ehrenpfort is working hard to drive out the law, and through the latter has secured the privilege of the floor, and is putting in his time by the hour, and he is taking care to take the citizens of Omaha, particularly those of the first ward, by whom he was relegated to private life for his work in the great of the corporations and millionaire property owners as against those of the smaller property owners, and the small property owners as against those of the smaller property owners.

There is a great deal of dissatisfaction expressed over the situation, and several of the republican members stated that there was every indication that they had been misled, hoodwinked and trapped, and some of them stated that if such should prove to be the case, after closer examination, they would not be bound by the action of the meeting this evening.

The action of the caucus is outside the jurisdiction of all fair minded men and is a reflection on the members who are disposed to vote the dictate of their consciences rather than the behests of the corporation machine and ringsters.

The railroad men were openly asserting as

TOOK A HORRIBLE REVENGE

Citizens of a Chinese Village Exterminated a Gang of Pirates.

TWO JUNKLOADS HACKED TO PIECES

Fan Tu the Scene of a Bloody Massacre—

Sacrifice on the Grave of a Murdered Villager—Two of the Pirates' Hearts Eaten.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., March 15.—The steamship City of Rio de Janeiro arrived today from Yokohama and Hong Kong.

A Yokohama paper prints the following account of the extermination of pirates in a Chinese village last January:

On January 15 last two piratical craft having on board a number of pirates, were in the vicinity of the city of Fan Tu for shelter from the pirates landed, ostensibly for the purpose of making a few purchases, but most likely to see whether any business could be done in their particular calling. The ruffians thought that their junks were sufficiently disguised and feared no trouble from the inhabitants.

Fan Tu had suffered repeatedly from depredations of the numerous sea pirates, and had lost some of their number at the hands of the desperadoes, and it so happened that some of the pirates were recognized by the inhabitants.

No sooner had the men returned to their junks than the alarm was silently given. The inhabitants, coming together, soon determined to wreak summary vengeance on their unwelcome visitors. According to the well armed men surprised the pirates during the early morning, and two of their junks were surrounded. In another minute the pirates were being cut down by the villagers, who, amid the shouts of their companions on shore, burst open the hatch and doors of the cabins and poured a stream of bullets upon the fifty or sixty pirates who were as sleep, huddled together on the lower decks. They were thoroughly taken by surprise and hardly any resistance was made. All the pirates but two being hacked into mincemeat by the exasperated villagers.

The salary appropriation bill is still in the hands of the secretary. When it reached the committee from the house, it was referred to the committee on the whole. The committee on ways and means was denied the privilege of passing upon its own bill, and the committee on the whole, in committee of the whole, and will in all probability be treated very much as was the general appropriation bill.

The salary appropriation bill is also on the secretary's desk, where it is likely to remain until near the close of the session.

The world's fair bill was just reported from the committee as the senate adjourned this evening.

The railroad bill is still in the hands of the committee on the whole, and it is likely to go to the senate adjournment this evening.

The stock yards bill are also well down toward the middle of the general file, and are being pushed in the ordinary routine of business.

It is freely predicted that the senate cannot possibly finish its work until some time after the adjournment of the session, and with considerable show of confidence that the final adjournment will not be taken until the 15th of that month.

How Can It Be Done?

The question, "how can it be done?" C. W. Mosher, as the prison contractor and the lessee of the convict labor, can furnish in his bankrupt condition the eighty cells of the new building, but he is required to furnish the state to furnish for the new cell house. It is ostensibly for this purpose that the Board of Public Lands and Buildings is now engaged in a long and arduous task, so as to determine what was the best kind of cells to have placed in the new building, but the contractor has not yet received a word in reply, and the cell house is still standing there empty as on the day that the walls were completed, and the interior is in place.

Some of the legislators have set up an intense thinking on this matter, and it is getting no less at a tremendous pace. When the board of public lands and buildings is either the bankrupt bank president or the derelict officials, who are now trying to move back to their home on Easy street, it is not surprising that the greater part of their grief is past.

Played Horse with Each Other.

The action of the house all through the afternoon was a lot of good natured horse playing. The resolution was introduced, and the general file, and nothing was rejected or amended to any extent.

How made a buncombe fight on Brockman's bill in one of the ways and means, and the latter because of his fealty to Major during the senatorial fight. After Brockman had sweat sufficiently how withdrew his opposition and turned a deaf ear and helped place the bill on the general file.

The same kind of a good natured opposition was shown by the vote to take the school levy out of the hands of the council. McKesson taking the part of the council until set down by the house, which raised a general uproar. McKesson, however, both had the floor and were trying to settle the question of which had taught school the other. McKesson showed his credentials as a pedagogue several years since, while McKesson only laid claim to twelve years. On that slight point the merits of McKesson and the opposition was laid on the shelf.

Ames Away as Usual.

The same was true of Ames' sweating bill. The introducer was absent as usual, and a motion was made to pass it until his return. But Porter declared that he would not move in the city and if he did not feel equal to his measures, he is to present before not expect any answer to look after his interests, and his answer to look after his interests, and his answer to look after his interests.

Many of the bills thus advanced will never be heard of again, and it was with that expectation that they were allowed to amble into the legislative graveyard known as the general file.

Nason was called to the chair for about five minutes, and during that time the house was in a wild uproar. Probably half the members were on their feet at a time, and each and all were clamoring for recognition and for the speaker calling on him. It is not to be supposed that the gentleman from Douglas stood with gavel raised and mouth open, but not a sound did he make and not a word did he utter. It was the only case of buck fever that has been seen in the house during the session, and the disconcerted member was smiling in a helpless sort of a way until the speaker called on him, and he perceptibly rapped the legislative hazers to their seats.

Ehrenpfort at His Old Trick.

Much of the work that is being done here against the Omaha charter is by patriots of the Ehrenpfort brand. Ehrenpfort is working hard to drive out the law, and through the latter has secured the privilege of the floor, and is putting in his time by the hour, and he is taking care to take the citizens of Omaha, particularly those of the first ward, by whom he was relegated to private life for his work in the great of the corporations and millionaire property owners as against those of the smaller property owners, and the small property owners as against those of the smaller property owners.

There is a great deal of dissatisfaction expressed over the situation, and several of the republican members stated that there was every indication that they had been misled, hoodwinked and trapped, and some of them stated that if such should prove to be the case, after closer examination, they would not be bound by the action of the meeting this evening.

The action of the caucus is outside the jurisdiction of all fair minded men and is a reflection on the members who are disposed to vote the dictate of their consciences rather than the behests of the corporation machine and ringsters.

The railroad men were openly asserting as

TOOK A HORRIBLE REVENGE

Citizens of a Chinese Village Exterminated a Gang of Pirates.

TWO JUNKLOADS HACKED TO PIECES

Fan Tu the Scene of a Bloody Massacre—

Sacrifice on the Grave of a Murdered Villager—Two of the Pirates' Hearts Eaten.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., March 15.—The steamship City of Rio de Janeiro arrived today from Yokohama and Hong Kong.

A Yokohama paper prints the following account of the extermination of pirates in a Chinese village last January:

On January 15 last two piratical craft having on board a number of pirates, were in the vicinity of the city of Fan Tu for shelter from the pirates landed, ostensibly for the purpose of making a few purchases, but most likely to see whether any business could be done in their particular calling. The ruffians thought that their junks were sufficiently disguised and feared no trouble from the inhabitants.

Fan Tu had suffered repeatedly from depredations of the numerous sea pirates, and had lost some of their number at the hands of the desperadoes, and it so happened that some of the pirates were recognized by the inhabitants.

No sooner had the men returned to their junks than the alarm was silently given. The inhabitants, coming together, soon determined to wreak summary vengeance on their unwelcome visitors. According to the well armed men surprised the pirates during the early morning, and two of their junks were surrounded. In another minute the pirates were being cut down by the villagers, who, amid the shouts of their companions on shore, burst open the hatch and doors of the cabins and poured a stream of bullets upon the fifty or sixty pirates who were as sleep, huddled together on the lower decks. They were thoroughly taken by surprise and hardly any resistance was made. All the pirates but two being hacked into mincemeat by the exasperated villagers.

The salary appropriation bill is still in the hands of the secretary. When it reached the committee from the house, it was referred to the committee on the whole. The committee on ways and means was denied the privilege of passing upon its own bill, and the committee on the whole, in committee of the whole, and will in all probability be treated very much as was the general appropriation bill.

The salary appropriation bill is also on the secretary's desk, where it is likely to remain until near the close of the session.

The world's fair bill was just reported from the committee as the senate adjourned this evening.

The railroad bill is still in the hands of the committee on the whole, and it is likely to go to the senate adjournment this evening.

The stock yards bill are also well down toward the middle of the general file, and are being pushed in the ordinary routine of business.

It is freely predicted that the senate cannot possibly finish its work until some time after the adjournment of the session, and with considerable show of confidence that the final adjournment will not be taken until the 15th of that month.

How Can It Be Done?

The question, "how can it be done?" C. W. Mosher, as the prison contractor and the lessee of the convict labor, can furnish in his bankrupt condition the eighty cells of the new building, but he is required to furnish the state to furnish for the new cell house. It is ostensibly for this purpose that the Board of Public Lands and Buildings is now engaged in a long and arduous task, so as to determine what was the best kind of cells to have placed in the new building, but the contractor has not yet received a word in reply, and the cell house is still standing there empty as on the day that the walls were completed, and the interior is in place.

Some of the legislators have set up an intense thinking on this matter, and it is getting no less at a tremendous pace. When the board of public lands and buildings is either the bankrupt bank president or the derelict officials, who are now trying to move back to their home on Easy street, it is not surprising that the greater part of their grief is past.

Played Horse with Each Other.

The action of the house all through the afternoon was a lot of good natured horse playing. The resolution was introduced, and the general file, and nothing was rejected or amended to any extent.

How made a buncombe fight on Brockman's bill in one of the ways and means, and the latter because of his fealty to Major during the senatorial fight. After Brockman had sweat sufficiently how withdrew his opposition and turned a deaf ear and helped place the bill on the general file.

The same kind of a good natured opposition was shown by the vote to take the school levy out of the hands of the council. McKesson taking the part of the council until set down by the house, which raised a general uproar. McKesson, however, both had the floor and were trying to settle the question of which had taught school the other. McKesson showed his credentials as a pedagogue several years since, while McKesson only laid claim to twelve years. On that slight point the merits of McKesson and the opposition was laid on the shelf.

Ames Away as Usual.

The same was true of Ames' sweating bill. The introducer was absent as usual, and a motion was made to pass it until his return. But Porter declared that he would not move in the city and if he did not feel equal to his measures, he is to present before not expect any answer to look after his interests, and his answer to look after his interests, and his answer to look after his interests.

Many of the bills thus advanced will never be heard of again, and it was with that expectation that they were allowed to amble into the legislative graveyard known as the general file.

Nason was called to the chair for about five minutes, and during that time the house was in a wild uproar. Probably half the members were on their feet at a time, and each and all were clamoring for recognition and for the speaker calling on him. It is not to be supposed that the gentleman from Douglas stood with gavel raised and mouth open, but not a sound did he make and not a word did he utter. It was the only case of buck fever that has been seen in the house during the session, and the disconcerted member was smiling in a helpless sort of a way until the speaker called on him, and he perceptibly rapped the legislative hazers to their seats.

Ehrenpfort at His Old Trick.

Much of the work that is being done here against the Omaha charter is by patriots of the Ehrenpfort brand. Ehrenpfort is working hard to drive out the law, and through the latter has secured the privilege of the floor, and is putting in his time by the hour, and he is taking care to take the citizens of Omaha, particularly those of the first ward, by whom he was relegated to private life for his work in the great of the corporations and millionaire property owners as against those of the smaller property owners, and the small property owners as against those of the smaller property owners.

There is a great deal of dissatisfaction expressed over the situation, and several of the republican members stated that there was every indication that they had been misled, hoodwinked and trapped, and some of them stated that if such should prove to be the case, after closer examination, they would not be bound by the action of the meeting this evening.

The action of the caucus is outside the jurisdiction of all fair minded men and is a reflection on the members who are disposed to vote the dictate of their consciences rather than the behests of the corporation machine and ringsters.

The railroad men were openly asserting as

FAVORING THE FEDERALS

Rio Grande do Sul Revolutionists Not Easily Suppressed.

GOVERNMENT TROOPS WERE REINFORCED

Brazilian Imperial Minister of War Opens a Public Subscription in Order to Secure Funds to Defray the Army Expenses.

[Copyrighted 1893 by James Gordon Bennett.]

VALPARAISO, Chile, (via Galveston, Tex.), March 15.—[By Mexican Cable to the New York Herald—Special to THE BEE.]—A dispatch from Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, announces that 400 government troops have arrived there to reinforce the Castillistas.

Valparaiso, Chile, (via Galveston, Tex.), March 15.—[By Mexican Cable to the New York Herald—Special to THE BEE.]—A dispatch from Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, announces that 400 government troops have arrived there to reinforce the Castillistas.

Valparaiso, Chile, (via Galveston, Tex.), March 15.—[By Mexican Cable to the New York Herald—Special to THE BEE.]—A dispatch from Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, announces that 400 government troops have arrived there to reinforce the Castillistas.

Valparaiso, Chile, (via Galveston, Tex.), March 15.—[By Mexican Cable to the New York Herald—Special to THE BEE.]—A dispatch from Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, announces that 400 government troops have arrived there to reinforce the Castillistas.

Valparaiso, Chile, (via Galveston, Tex.), March 15.—[By Mexican Cable to the New York Herald—Special to THE BEE.]—A dispatch from Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, announces that 400 government troops have arrived there to reinforce the Castillistas.

Valparaiso, Chile, (via Galveston, Tex.), March 15.—[By Mexican Cable to the New York Herald—Special to THE BEE.]—A dispatch from Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, announces that 400 government troops have arrived there to reinforce the Castillistas.

Valparaiso, Chile, (via Galveston, Tex.), March 15.—[By Mexican Cable to the New York Herald—Special to THE BEE.]—A dispatch from Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, announces that 400 government troops have arrived there to reinforce the Castillistas.

Valparaiso, Chile, (via Galveston, Tex.), March 15.—[By Mexican Cable to the New York Herald—Special to THE BEE.]—A dispatch from Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, announces that 400 government troops have arrived there to reinforce the Castillistas.

Valparaiso, Chile, (via Galveston, Tex.), March 15.—[By Mexican Cable to the New York Herald—Special to THE BEE.]—A dispatch from Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, announces that 400 government troops have arrived there to reinforce the Castillistas.

Valparaiso, Chile, (via Galveston, Tex.), March 15.—[By Mexican Cable to the New York Herald—Special to THE BEE.]—A dispatch from Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, announces that 400 government troops have arrived there to reinforce the Castillistas.

Valparaiso, Chile, (via Galveston, Tex.), March 15.—[By Mexican Cable to the New York Herald—Special to THE BEE.]—A dispatch from Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, announces that 400 government troops have arrived there to reinforce the Castillistas.

Valparaiso, Chile, (via Galveston, Tex.), March 15.—[By Mexican Cable to the New York Herald—Special to THE BEE.]—A dispatch from Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, announces that 400 government troops have arrived there to reinforce the Castillistas.

Valparaiso, Chile, (via Galveston, Tex.), March 15.—[By Mexican Cable to the New York Herald—Special to THE BEE.]—A dispatch from Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, announces that 400 government troops have arrived there to reinforce the Castillistas.

Valparaiso, Chile, (via Galveston, Tex.), March 15.—[By Mexican Cable to the New York Herald—Special to THE BEE.]—A dispatch from Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, announces that 400 government troops have arrived there to reinforce the Castillistas.

Valparaiso, Chile, (via Galveston, Tex.), March 15.—[By Mexican Cable to the New York Herald—Special to THE BEE.]—A dispatch from Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, announces that 400 government troops have arrived there to reinforce the Castillistas.

Valparaiso, Chile, (via Galveston, Tex.), March 15.—[By Mexican Cable to the New York Herald—Special to THE BEE.]—A dispatch from Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, announces that 400 government troops have arrived there to reinforce the Castillistas.

Valparaiso, Chile, (via Galveston, Tex.), March 15.—[By Mexican Cable to the New York Herald—Special to THE BEE.]—A dispatch from Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, announces that 400 government troops have arrived there to reinforce the Castillistas.

Valparaiso, Chile, (via Galveston, Tex.), March 15.—[By Mexican Cable to the New York Herald—Special to THE BEE.]—A dispatch from Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, announces that 400 government troops have arrived there to reinforce the Castillistas.

Valparaiso, Chile, (via Galveston, Tex.), March 15.—[By Mexican Cable to the New York Herald—Special to THE BEE.]—A dispatch from Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, announces that 400 government troops have arrived there to reinforce the Castillistas.

Valparaiso, Chile, (via Galveston, Tex.), March 15.—[By Mexican Cable to the New York Herald—Special to THE BEE.]—A dispatch from Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, announces that 400 government troops have arrived there to reinforce the Castillistas.

Valparaiso, Chile, (via Galveston, Tex.), March 15.—[By Mexican Cable to the New York Herald—Special to THE BEE.]—A dispatch from Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, announces that 400 government troops have arrived there