GVERNOR CROUNSE SENDS A MESSAGE

He Recommends that Immediate Action Be Taken in the Penitentiary Matter.

AFTER EX-TREASURER HILL ONCE MORE

May See Him to Recover Money Lost in Interest on State Warrants Backed Up on the Beatrice Whitewash

Shilling's Bill Rejected.

LINCOLN, Neb., April 4.—[Special Telegram to THE BEE.]—The house today put in some of the hardest work of the session.

After the Omaha charter bill had been placed on the list for third reading and a couple of resolutions passed, Governor Crouse's message recommending prompt action to provide for the control of the penitentiary by the state was heard.

Another bitter petition was dropped in ex-Treasurer Hill's cup by a special committee report on the cash in the permanent school fund.

After this the committee that made so favorable a report on the Institute for Peckham Minded at Beatrice last week got its report returned and leave to investigate further. Quite a number of bills were passed and to top of the day the bill of Shilling Bros. was sent to a special committee to look into.

Opened on the Charter Bill.

The Omaha charter was the principal bone of contention in the house this morning.

The vigorous prodding that the Douglas county delegation had received here immediately after the bill was introduced, had been favorable and demonstrated that all that had been lacking was concerted and persistent action on the part of its members.

A large delegation of Omahans came down on the morning train and assisted in the work of lifting the bill out of the abyss known as the general file.

Nason brought up the matter by asking unanimous consent that the bill be advanced to third reading. Objection was raised and a motion was made to advance the bill, which would require a constitutional majority, or fifty-one votes, to carry it.

Then the trouble began. Porter, Rhodes, Stevens and Haller opposed it, while the charter was championed by Davies, Howe and the Douglas delegation.

It was charged that the independents were holding back the bill as a club to compel the Douglas county delegation to use its influence in the senate to secure the passage of the railroad bill.

Rhodes resented the charge, while Davies insisted that there was ample backing for the statement. He said that such a course was an insult to the house to attempt to hold up the Douglas county delegation by such tactics as those pursued by the professional highwayman.

Davies merely lambasted the gentleman from Valley and refused to be called to order by the chair.

Wouldn't Owey the Chair.

Rhodes had the floor when Davies arose to ask a question, and at once called into him. Casper tried to call him to order, but there was something on Davies' mind, and he continued to lecture the outcries of Mr. Rhodes, while Casper pounded, gesticulated, howled and commanded in vain.
