The decorations of the convention room in the court house are very boautiful. Fragrant Easterand calls liells, hyacinths and other potted points are grouped artistically with palms about the room. On the east wall of the convention room is fastened a farge star made of the two P. E. O colors—yellow and white-skillfully combined. The windows are draped with dainty such curtains of the two colors, and the effect of the whole is graceful and pretty.

The convention was opened by an address the state president, Mrs. Lulu B. Patrick f Holdrege, in which she gave an outline f the year's work in her usual happy way. Worthy of especial mention in the morning's session was the address of welcome by Mrs Mary Muson Houseworth, which was re-
