Paderewski came, played and conquered. There is nothing to be said here of this great planist's playing. It is beyond criticism. Paderewski discovers to the hearer the novel fact that the piano can positively be made to express the soul of things felt. What is it in the work of this marvelous young man of two-and-thirty that most attracts and compels superlatives in laudation, or the more eloquent silence? Yes, his execution is equal to Rubinstein's; but it is the soul he expresses—therein lies his power. All the deep sensucusness of the higher tone-poetry all the strong spirituality of it, are made manifest by this great genius. Last evening's program at the Boyd disp ayed the plaulst's power to great advantage. Every number on it was interpreted and executed perfectly, but it was in an encore piece he reached his highest height. This was Liszt's transcription of Schumann's "The Erl Klag," and the audience was almost breathless through its resudition. Lack of space forbids extended notice of the different numbers; did it not, such notice would seem weak to those who heard, and to those who heard not it would be hardly more satisfac-factory. Paderewski is a genius, and the factory. Paderewsk piano is his medium.

Many of last evening's audience must have been present through curiosity largely, to see this man the whole world was raving about. When he came in he must have surprised some. Yes, his hair is plenteous and of a red gold color, but his face has not that spiritual character the eastern papers raved about last year. He looks a fairly healthy about last year. He looks a fairly healthy young man, with few of the conventional graces of manner. He bows rather awkwardly and strolls to his piano in an amusingly insociant way, and after sounding a couple of resonant chords goes to work. But he is still Paderewski, the piano virtuose, the greatest of his generation, and the ment of the couple of Omaha are greateful for the the people of Omaha are grateful for the opportunity afforded them of seeing and hearing him.

WINSPEAR WON'T DOWN.

Says that He Will Lead Balcombe a Race for the Office.

Sidewalk Inspector Bonewitz turned over to Major Balcombe yesterday afternoon everything connected with his office and he is no longer the head of the sidewalk department. The new street commissioner will continue Mr. Bonewitz, however, for a time at least, and perhaps permanently. Street Commissioner Winspear was not prepared to lay down so easily and did not put in a large amount of time in the building. His office was locked most of the day and Major Balcombe was unable to see him. Mr. Winspear feels aggrieved at the mayor's action and says undue haste has been manifested. He is in the hands of his attorneys and does not propose to step down and out of office without a protest.

In his opinion the whole procedure is lilegal, and there is not in existence a legally constituted Board of Public Works. He bases his opinion upon the fact that the word Tuesday was inserted in the new charter calling for the appointment of the members of the board in 1887, when under the old charter it was required that the members should be named the first Monday in July, 1887, and one member annually thereafter for a term of three years. Also that the provision creating his office was not re-pealed, and consequently he has not been legislated out of office.

City Attorney Connell differs with Mr. Winspear and says that the insertion of the word Tuesday for Monday will make no dif-ference, and that section 106, creating the office of street commissioner was repealed in March, 1889, and that the office has existed by virtue of an ordinance.

Board of Realth Pays a Visit of Inspection

The members of the Board of Health, with the exception of Councilman McLearie, visited the city jail yesterday afternoon for the purpose of inspecting the sanitary condition of the place. Chief Seavey and Captain Mostyn acted as pilots and showed the mayor, Cauacilman Howell and Dr. Somers about the premises.

The ceil room in the basement was found in a good condition and the only improve-ment suggested in that portion was an elec-tric fan to circulate pure air. Some fault was found with the women's cell on account of it being so dark, but even this place was found to be clean. It is more than likely that the suggestion of the chief regarding the moving of the women's department up-stairs in the room now occupied by the matron will be carried out. They Cannot Agree. The jury in the Clara Allen case is still out, and it seems probable that it will be unable to agree upon a verdict. It is claime! that on the first ballot seven of the jurors voted for acquittal and five for conviction. Shortly after midnight Tuesday all discussion of the evidence stopped and the tired jurors stretched themselves upon the benches in their rooms, where they remained until morning. Just before noon yesterday the jury was taken before Judge Keysor for additional instructions, the point being the time of the shooting. At the trial Witness Garlick testified that the shot was fired at 1 o'clock in the after-noon, while Clara Allen testified that it was just after the moon hour when she heard the report of the pistoi. The jury wanted to know how to harmonize the difference in time. Upon this question Judge Keysor said that it was a question of fact and that the jury was the sole Judge.

The work of preparing quarters for the Commercial Men's Social club at the Mercer hotel has begun. The plan is to convert three of the present rooms into one and to have a place where commercial men can go at all times and while away an hour or two in a pleasant manner whenever they desire. Billiard tables will be put in and other pastimes afforded. The rooms will be ready for occupancy by May 1.

REFUSES TO FURNISH A BOND

Bank Wrecker Mosher Professes that He Prefers to Go to Prison.

ARRAIGNED ON ANOTHER INDICTMENT

He Was Not in Australia, but Was Having a Good Time in Chicago-Prospects of a Settlement-Lincoln Creditors Are Despondent.

Among the passengers on an incoming Chicago train Tuesday was Charles W. Mosher, the much wanted president of the Capital National bank of Lincoln. He was arrested at once by Deputy United States Marshal Dutton of and speat the night at Lincoln, Millard hotel in this city.

Mr. Mosher's appearance in Omaha at this time was for the purpose of furnishing a bond for his appearance in court next May under the second indictment about which so much has been said. Mr. Mosher was seen by a Bez reporter and he talked freely about things ein general, but had absolutely nothing to say about the outcome of his case, excepting that he would be in court when the case is ready for trial.

The bank wrecker only laughed when the reporter asked him how he happened to get back from Australia in so short a time.

"I know that the newspapers have to print the news," he said, "and I can't blame them much for crinting some things that are wide of the mark. As a matter of fact I have been in Chicago for weeks. I have been taking in the sights of the great metropolis along with some of the well known newspa-per men who formerly fived in Omaha and Lincoln, but are now hustling for the great Chicago papers.

Had Seen the Town.

In a talk of half an hour Mr. Mosher told how the election of Carter Harrison occurred, how the preparations for the World's fair were progressing, how the great side shows, such as Buffalo Bill's Wild West, the Japanese village and other great attractions were preparing for the harvest of good American dollars, and gave a very good account of life in Chicago from a newspaper reporter's view of the situation. In short, Mr. Mosher has evidently taken some pretty thorough lessons in rounding up a great city in company with the reporters. He looks well and seems with the reporters. He looks well and seems to be in good spirits.

His attorney, Mr. Wheden, came up from Lincoln at noon and proceeded to arrange the bond on the second indictment.

Mr. Mosher took the same position in the matter as when arrested last winter on the first indictment. He wanted to go to the penitentiary and await his trial. His attorney advised him to make an effort to secure a satisfactory surety, but he seemed perfectly indifferent about the matter and the attorney seemed to be considerably at a the attorney seemed to be considerably at a loss to know what was best to do in the case. loss to know what was best to do in the case.

Mr. Wheden would probably have gone on the bond himself as he has in the first instance, but Judge Dundy did not like the idea of accepting the bond with nobody but the attorney for the bank wrecker as the surety. Mr. Mosher did not appear in the chambers in the presence of Judge Dundy, but remained closeted with Marshal White while Mr. Wheden vibrated back and forth while Mr. Wheden vibrated back and forth trying to reach an adjustment of the diffi-culty. It was suggested that Mr. Mosher be permitted to remain in the custody of the marshal and to have a sort of partial liberty. but this idea did not strike Marshal White favorably. The consultation between At-torney Wheden and Judge Dundy and the marshal lasted several hours, and several times it looked as though there was nothing to be done but to send the prisoner to jail to await his trial.

Talk of a Settlement.

United States Attorney Baker took but United States Attorney Baker took but little part in the proceedings. He said he had done his work and was ready to push the prosecution when the time came, but he would have nothing to do with the adjustment of the bond. Both he and Judge Dundy seemed to be of the opinion that the case would have to come to trial without reaching the adjustment suggested several weeks are by adjustment suggested several weeks ago, by which Mosher's friends were to pay $100,000 and have the guilty man escape the peniten tiary, unless the attorney general should direct Mr. Baker to accept that sort of a proposition. It seems that Mr. Whedon has been laboring with Attorney General Oney in the matter, and has hopes of getting the attorney general to favor the cash settle-ment scheme.

Judge Dondy realizes the predicament that the case is likely to place him in. If he should favor the plan of settling on the cash basis he feels that he will win the plaudits of hundreds of poor people in Lancoln who would thereby get their hardearned savings back again, but he would receive the condemnation of the public for allowing a criminal to pay his way out of the penitentiary. On the other hand, if he holds against the cash adjustment scheme the poor creditors of the broken bank will blame him for taking the money right out of their hands, but the justice loving public would applied the act that sent this man to his punishment.

Rustling for Bondsmen.

It is understood that Mr. Mosher's friends stand ready to put up the $190,000 to effect a settlement and keep him out of the penitentiary. Mr. Wheden, Marshal White and Mr. Mosher took dinner at the Millard and after dinner Mr. Wheden had a long consultation with his client and succeeded in getting him to agree to make an effort to get a satisfactory bondsman and stay out of jail until after his case is called up at least. The attorney asked the judge and the marshal to give the embezzler a few hours in which to make a rustle for bondsmen. The It is understood that Mr. Mosher's friends which to make a rustle for bondsmen. The amount of the bond under the second in-dictment was fixed at $10,000, the same as in the first. Judge Dundy was not inclined to listen to a proposi-tion to provide nonresident bondsmen, but the bond may be approved by the clerk or the United States commissioner. Attorney Wheden seemed to think that it would be no easy task to get bondsmen. The arrest seems to have taken Mosner and his attorney Colonel Chalmers, the inspector, had a long conversation with Mr. Mosher, after which he said to a BEE reporter that he had never in all his life seen so strange a case "The man seems to have a perfect mania to get into the penitentiary," said the colonel.

LINCOLN CREDITORS WORRYING.

Feeling of Hopelessness Extant and Harsh Criticisms Are Indulged. LINCOLN, Neb., April 19.- Special Tele gram to THE BEE. |-The second arrest of C. W. Mosher has created no little stir among the depositor-creditors of the broken Capital National bank in this city. There is a general feeting among the many people who are suffering by reason of Mosher's defalcations that their interests are not being properly looked after, and that the heavy properly looked after, and that the heavy creditors in the east are likely to come out of the courts with the bulk of all the available assets, while the depositors in this city will be left to hold the sack. As the matter stands now all the property held by Mosher and Outcait prior to the failure of the bank has either been placed beyond the reach of all the creditors or else it will by order of the courts, under the garnishee suits now pending, be distributed among the banks and financial institutions of the east. Every-body who has had anything to do with the bank since its filure is coming in for a full measure of critisism. Bank Examiner Grif-fith is criticised because he neglected to attach the property of the bank's officials. The department at Washington is consured for its dilatory bethods, and the receiver is blamed because he is taking his time in making public the exact condition of the affairs of the weekled institution.
