The announcement that the bill had passed the second reading by a vote of 347 to 304 was the signal for more cheers and hat waving. There was another demonstration when Mr. Gladstone, left the House. Mr. Carter, continuing his argument, re-verted to the question of property in seals.

He says that the law goes to the farthest extremity when social advantage is at stake and gives protection to prop-an animal, though wild, voluntarily becomes subject to the control of man, so that animal increase could be taken and the species preserved, the right of property resulted. He admitted the British argument that the rec-ognition of the rights of the United States would tend to establish a monopoly. When did a monopoly become injurious? Only when a rise of prices was indued by it. It was impossible for the United States to withhold the skins from the market to force up prices. Such a policy would lead eventually to such an accumulation that in the end the United States would be obliged to throw the skins on the market in great bulks and thus lower the price im-

DUN'S REVIEW OF THE WEEK

Monetary Doubts Exert a Great Influence on General Trade.

EFFECTS OF BAD WEATHER ALSO FELT

Building Trades Active and Lumber in Good Demand, While Other Business is Retarded by the Uncertainty of the Currency Situation.

NEW YORK, April 21.-R. G. Dun & Co's. weekly review of trade: Monetary doubts have overshadowed all other influences at New York, but have not generally affected trade at most other points.

Wheat has fallen 2), cents, with sales of 40,000,000 bushels; corn 2% cents; oil 2% cents, and coffee 134 cents. Wheat receipts have been 2,200,000 bushels at western points in four days and Atlantic exports net 600,000 bushels. Pork products are somewhat lower, though declining less than corn. In the cotton market liquidation has continued, and with sales of 1,200,000 bales here the price has dropped five-sixteenths of I cent. The week's receipts from plantations are equal to last year's, and reports indicate some increase this year in acreage.

Reports from other cities show some em barrassment from storms and the backward spring, with some signs of shrinkage from other causes. Tardy spring makes clothing quiet, and the advance in shoes retards buyers. The building trade is active and the demand for lumber large, but sales of wool are moderate.

Iron is somewhat weaker at Pittsburg, but he glass trade is active. Business at Cleveland is in volume larger than last year, but money is active and

At Cincinnati there is a fair shipping business in clothing.

The demand for dry goods at Indianapolis is good, but money is closer.

Trade at Detroit is good, with collections

At Chicago navigation opens with heavy shipments. Currency does not return, as was expected, and large sums are tied up in servative. Receipts of cattle, butter and barley increased moderately over last year sheep, 30 per cent; wool 33 and wheat 700 per cent, while in cheese, hogs, flour and lard there is a decrease, corn 30 per cent and ryc and cured meats 60 per cent.

At most northwestern points weather checks trade and at points in Wisconsin fightness of money causes apprehension and collections are slow. At St. Paul trade is fair, but seeding retarded.

St. Louis reports bright prospects and large demands for money from the southwest, though owing to the low price of cottons and the state of the state ton southern orders are remarkably slow. Trade Good at Omaha. At Omaha trade is good, and at St. Joseph

Business at Kansas City is very quiet, with large receipts and lower prices for At Denver trade is only fair and at Salt Lake quiet.

Weather retards trade at Louisville and Nashville; Knoxville and at Little Rock business is quiet; at Columbus very dull, but with improved collections, and at Atlanta fair for the season.

At Mobile cotton is moved more freely and at New Orleans sugar is strong, but rice and other trades quiet. Money in active demand. Pig iron is a shade firmer for foundry, but Pig iron is a shade firmer for foundry, but Bessemer is weaker at Pittsburg and Birmingham. No. 2 is offered at $9. Trade in bar is dull, with the prices as low as ever, and a cut to $1.06 in beams and channels is reported. Sales of lake copper at 114 cents are rumored. The demand for tin is slow, while coal is dull and easy. In textile fabrics mills are still busy with old orders. Collections throughout the country are at all points slower than usual and conditions such that a monetary stringency might occur if exchange with this center was embarrassed. Meanwhile exports of merchandise in April fall much below last year's, while imports fall much below last year's, while imports increased nearly 20 per cent, so that the excess of imports amounts to considerably

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW OF TRADE.

Uncertainty of the Financial Question Has : Depressing Effect.

NEW YORK, April 21.-Bradstreet tomorrow, will say: The backward season and storms cause a tendency on the part of lobbers generally in staple lines to act conservatively, while general trade is less favorable than a week ago. Further reduction of cotton prices results in a shading of quotations for cotton goods, print cloths going off one-eighth of a cent, with an improvement in general demand based on the concessions. It is denied that the prices are shaded, but samples of the new clip are in the markets. In addition quotations have gone off on wheat, corn and oats, pork and lard, on rice and coffee among food staples, the reduction in the last being due to the pricking of the bull bubble blown by the European speculators in that berry. There is a manifest halt in the rate of progress of general trade, compared with like seasons in previous years, although the volume of business is of larger proportions, as shown by bank clearing totals.

Exports of wheat from both coasts of the United States for six days, ending with April 20, aggregated 3,063,000 (flour included), a total slightly in excess of that for the preceding week, but about equal to the quantity sent abroad in the like week a year ago. It is 20 per cent more than was sent abroad in the third week of April in 1891, 1890 or 1889. Stocks of wheat at home and in Europe and affoat for Europe caused traders to buy conservatively and constitute the dead weight in prices. Some Chicago carriers have secured money in New York this week, the western center having had its surplus funds fully employed.

The acute condition of the currency complication creates bearish and declining ten-dencies in the market for securities. There encies in the market for securities. has, however, been an absence of panicky symptoms, and declines are moderate, but uidation had still to be effected, snowing that the markets discounted the anticipated rises. Professional operators, while bearish, hesitate to swell the short interest, and long buying is preventing complete specu

The lack of improvement of favorable report as to the outlook in the New England and middle states has not changed. The increase in movement of cotton goods from Boston, due to decline in prices, is offset by continued decreases in the volume of shipment of shoes for a month past.

Louisiana sugar acreage has increased cotton crop reports are unfavorable and there is said to be a scarcity of seed. In the province of Quebec trade in dry goods, paints and hardware continues to suffer because of the unseasonable weather and bad country roads. Manufacturers are busy on fall samples. There is considerable inquiry for ocean freight room, and large quantities of grain will be moved as soon as navigation opens, which will probably be two Wall Street for a Week. New York, April 21.-Bradstreet's weekly say: In spite of the weakness in prices and sharp breaks which have occurred in particular stocks, the stock market, which for a review of the stock market this week will while has been free from panicky symptoms, supports the pressure of the existing financial complications with noteworthy steadiness. The street has been preparing for an expected crisis for months past and therefore not surprised. Liquidation has been so thorough that the opportunity for "shaking out" weak holdings were reduced to a minimum, while brokers and their customers have arranged their accounts in ambigination of the actual developments. in anticipation of the actual developments. This is illustrated by the comparative case of money. The street on the whole seems to regard the present dispensation as a necessary will and as the first step toward an elucidation of the whole silver trouble, there being much less disposition to look for a temporary relief in the form of a government bond issue than was the case a short time age. The nearest approach to a real break in prices was on Friday, when the shipment of $5,000,000 in gold and a rise in call loan rates, supplemented by the failure of a large street concern, caused heavy de-clines, which, in the last part of the day, were followed by a strong rally on the rumor that the treasury would continue to pay out gold on the treasury notes.

Two Daring Condemned Murderers Gain Their Liberty. Sing Sing, N. Y., April 21 .- Rochl and Pallister, murderers, escaped from prison last night. Both men were under sentence to be electrocuted soon. Guard Hulse said that at 7 o'clock last night he passed supper into Pallister's cell. The condemned man threw a handful of pepper into the guard's eyes. Hulse was blinded and Pallister rushed on him, took his revolver away and under threats of death forced Hulse into Palister's cell, first taking the keys from him. He then locked Hulse in the cell and unlocked the cell of Murderer Frank Rochl.

The two murderers then unlocked the cells of Carlyle W. Harris and Murderer Osmond. They invited these to escape with them. Both Harris and Osmond refused. Pullister and Rochl waited until 9 o'clock, when Guard Murphy came on duty. As Murphy entered the corridor Pallister presented a pistol at Murphy's head, taking the keys from him and locked him in Rochl's cell. Pallister took Hulse's shoes and cap from him and put them on himself Threatening to kill the guards if they made an outery, the two murderers climbed down into the yard and made their escape, whether by the river or over the wall was not known. The terribly stormy night facilitated their escape. It is supposed Pallister had been saving the pepper given him daily with his meals with the object of escape in view. ## OPPONENTS OF HOME RULE

Sir Henry James and Mr. Balfour Attack the Measure.

GLADSTONE'S GRAND ANSWER TO THEM

Never in Better Form, the Grand Old Man Makes a Stirring Appeal for Justice for Ireland-Passed Its Second Reading.

LONDON, April 21,-Members of the House of Commons flocked to the House early today to secure seats for the final contest over the second reading of the Irish home rule bill. Dr. C. K. Tanner, nationalist member for Cork, was first to arrive, being present as early as 6 o'clock.

Sir Henry James' Address.

Sir Henry James, liberal unionist, addressed the House this afternoon in opposition to the bill. He said that the government of Ireland would be in the hands of those now forming the majority of Irish representatives-men drawn from the land league and proved to be conspirators against law. These men would take place and power with the determination to sweep out of Ireand the landlords, whom they regarded as an English garrison.

"Talk of the bill as a final settlement," exclaimed Sir Henry, "It is simply a measure to enable a section of Irish agitators to deal as they may choose with the country.

It is practically a repeal of the union and an epitaph on the supremacy of the Imperial Parliament. Instead of being a measure of peace between the two countries, it was a message of war. There might for some time be an armed peace, but if it should require the interference of the military in order to enforce it, where could real peace be! The bill surpasses the ingenuity of man in devising proposals to bring the law into contempt.
There is not a man in Ireland who could not set its provisions at defiance. Neither could set its provisions at defiance. Neither could the judges enforce it. Had the bill been explained to the English constituencies, the present government could never have obtained even a limited English minerity in support of it, and the prime minister, who is trying to pass the measure solely through Irish votes, would never again have sat on a government hand. government bench."
Sir Henry James was heartily applauded at the close by the conservatives and liberal unionist members. Early in the evening the debate was monopolized by minor members. At 10 o'clock Mr. Gladstone entered hurriedly amidst cheers. Members began to return rapidly At 10:30 Mr. Balfour was received with cheers. All the members had meantime taken their places and the house waited expectantly for the heavy guns of the final de#### bate on the second reading. Balfour's Arguments.

Mr. Balfour arose shortly before 11 o'clock. A longer period had never been occupied with the second reading of a bill, he said, than had been allowed for the present debate. No man, however, had dared contend that within the narrow limits of the two islands four assemblies, with four executives, could be operated in harmony with one Imperial Parliament. He, himself, could not believe that this childish limitation of the United States constitution would ever of the United States constitution would ever commend itself to the judgment of the British people. [Cheers.] He, therefore, would put the federation aside, as not imme-diate to the discussion. The home rule bill had been brought forward to meet the had been brought forward to meet the iberal party's necessities, which were con-nected with Irish agitation and Irish crime. [Hear, hear.] Never had such an important constitutional change been proposed with such filmsy reasons. Substantial arguments for the necessity of the measure could be enumerated on the fingers of one hand. Two of these arguments were that the union had failed and that coercion had failed.

failed and that coercion had failed.

Mr. Balfour was interrupted by confusion among the Irish members, and upon resuning his speech shouted that agrarian crime in Ireland was at its worst before the union. This statement evoked loud cries of, "No, faise," and "Shame," from the Irish members. Proceeding, Mr. Balfour said it was mad-less to look forward with the premonition of seeing agrarian crime stamped out in the immediate future. It was absurd to hold England responsible for Ireland's woes, although it might be admitted that England sometimes had played a sorry part towards her sister country, who could but feel dis-gusted with the creeping hypocrisy of the men who, although aware of the history of Ireland, threw upon England the responsility for Irish wrongs.

What answer had the government given to the argument that home rule would inflict injuries upon the British taxpayer! None. What answer did the unionists get when y asked about the so-called supremacy of British Parliament! Everybody knew that this would be only a paper supremacy The Irish would have the real and the Brit ish the illusory supremacy. [Cheers.] Could anybody imagine how the two majorities would work together!

What Home Rule Meant.

Mr. Balfour described the bill as a decisive step towards separation, although not a final one. To make it law, he said, would lead ultimately to the disintegration of the empire. He next discussed in considerable detail the financial aspect of the home rule bill. The bill, if passed, would entail losses and hardship upon all classes in Ireland. Irish ambitions would center in the Dublin Parliament. Irishmen would regard the Imperial Parliament as a foreign and unreinted body. The Irish people would drink from the bitter and polluted stream of Irish history instead of the pure stream of English history. [Laughfer.]
"If you commit this great political crime," said Mr. Balfour in closing his speech, "you make yourselves responsible for an irretrievable national disaster, and all hopes of a peaceful and united Ireland will vanish for-

Prolonged cheers and counter cheers folowed this peroration.

Prince Christian joined the prince of Wales in the peers' gallery and Sir William Har-court took his place on the treasury bench. When Gladstone Arose.

As Mr. Gladstone arose to address the house the cheering was renewed. Like Mr. Balfour, he was in splendid form. His voice was clearer and fuller than any time before during the session and his movements gave evidence of unusual energy and earnestness. The principal weapons of the opposition, he said, were bold assertion, persistent exaggeration, constant misconstruction and copious and baseless arguments. True, there were financial arrangements to be dealt with, but among the difficulties nothing existed which ought to abash or terrify men when they were to accomplish a great object. The opposition had evaded steadfastly the answer to the question of the second reading -how can Ireland be governed if this bill be Lord Salisbury had asked for twenty years of coercion, but as the duty of convert-ing Ireland to Protestantism, inaugurated under Queen Elizabeth, had failed down to the present time, what ground was there for hope that in but twenty years it would succeed? The late government had started with a majority of 120. Neither the children nor grandchildren of this generation would see such a majority again. Yet the whole fabric of their policy had failed; and what guarantee was there that it would not fail again? The present bill sought to close a con troversy that had lasted for centuries. Ire land's loyal acceptance of the present bill should cause distrust and this disbelief to vanish. There had been no disaffection of the Irish mind since the door of hope had opened. The continued distrust of the Irish people, despite all they could do, came simply this that they were to be pressed below e level of civilized mankind. When the boot of self-government was given to the British colonies was Ireland alone to be excepted from its blessings! To deny Ireland home rule was to say that she lacked the ordinary #### faculties of humanity. His Grand Closing.

Mr. Gladstone's closing words were: "You cannot be surprised that we have under-taken the solution of this great question, and as on the one hand it is not least of the arduous efforts of the liberal party, so, on the other hand, it will have its place in history—aye, and not remote, but early history—as not the least durable, fruitful and blessed among its accomplished acts."

Hefore the cheering ceased George Bartley, conservative for North Islington, rose to continue the debate. Mr. Morley, chief sec-
