Dousted the Tallyhos. Jim Stephenson takes exception to the statement that he ever made anything out of the Board of Trade, and wants it distinctly understood that at the time of the Black Hills junket he sent along his tallyhos and horses free of charge, with the exception of horses free of charge, with the exception of the cost of feeding the stock during such time as it was away from the cars. He in-sists that the present directory of the Board of Trade is dead set on beating him out of what little money he has in it in the way of stock, and says that if he can only get out whole they can go ahead and do as they please without any interference from him. He is satisfied that the new Commercial club amounts to nothing and will go to club amounts to nothing and will go to pieces before the end of the year, and con-tends that the thing most essential to the future prosperity of the city is the Boarl of Trade under a conservative management such as it has had for the past three or four years years.
