The company, it will be remembered, in rounding the curve on Pierce street from South First, laid the rails within six inches of the curb in front of Mr. Wheeler's property in order to avoid making too sharp a turn. Wheeler objected to this, too sharp a turn. Wheeler objected to this, and on the company's failing to make any amends commenced a suit for damage, which has been pending for about three years. NORTH GALVESTON, Tex., May 13.—North Galveston presents to capitalists or workers with sufficient means a magnificent field for oyster farming. The laws of the state al-low any one to select any of the public waters of Galveston bay and stake off about sixty acres, the exclusive use of which land they are entitled to for twelve years. The only restriction is public oyster beds from which they can take in season all the seed oysters they may wish. Here, alone, is an industry that makes North Galveston a profitable location.

Domestic Troubles with Which Charles Weeks is Afflicted.

HIS WIFE'S LOVE FOR A SPIRITUALIST

It is the Cause of Breaking Up a Happy Family-An Elopement to Missouri Prevented the Husband's Quick Action.

An overdose of spirits of the nonintoxicating kind is responsible for breaking up a a family living in the southern part of the city, filling the soul of one husband with large gobs of grief and giving another a chance to look out upon the world from behind prison bars. For some time past there have been rumors floating around that all was not going as it should in the family of Charles Weeks, a truckman at the Union Pacific transfer, but it was not until yesterday afternoon that things came to such a pass that the police had to be called upon to prevent an actual elopement.

According to the story which Mr. Weeks tells, his family and the family of one Cornellus Miller, a house mover, have been living together in the same house until re-cently. For about two weeks past they lived in a house at the corner of Bluff and Pleasant streets, the two families having become so attached to one another that they moved there together. Most of the attach-ment, however, seemed to be bet veen Mrs. Weeks and Mr. Miller, and it was of a sort which did not exactly suit the husband of the former. After remonstrating a number of times with his wife he finally decided to leave his home and family in the hands of

He immediately filed an information against Miller charging him with allenating his wife's affections. Within half an hour Miller was languishing behind the bars of the city iall and the ten to Missouri was independent. city jail and the trip to Missouri was indefi itely postponed.

It seems, from what Weeks says, that Miller lays claims to be a spiritualistic medium of wonderful powers, and he has so fascinated Mrs. Weeks by his wonderful visions of the future as to make her willing to follow him to the ends of the earth. Down in Missouri, he says, there is a beautiful farm simply waiting for them to come and take possession. All they had to do was to go there, and by means of certain instructions which the spirit of a dead Indian, who seems to be a particular friend of his, has furnished him he will dig into the ground him he will dig into the ground and find a pot of gold. Mrs. Weeks believes all this, Miller having performed enough hair-raising wonders at the seances which have been going at her house for the last year or so to convince her that he is all right. A strange part of the affair is that Mrs. Miller does not seem to be af-flicted with any green-cycl jealousy at the apparent interest that her husband takes in Mrs. Weeks. This feature of the case is accounted for by the neighbors by the fact that Mrs. Weeks has just sold her place for $1,100 and put the money into the treasury of the new company of Miller. Weeks & Mil-ler. Weeks also filed an information against ler. Weeks also filed an information against his wife and she would have been arrested yesterday, but for the weeping of her three cherubs, which so affected Chief Scanlan that he allowed her to go, on condition that she will be in police court this morning.

Lanzendorfer at Carroll. CARROLL, la., May 12. To the Editor of THE BEE: In your issue of May 10 wherein you give "More about the suicide" of C. whose actions you state were "very pe-culiar," I also desire to give the facts as In the first place, regarding the telegram sent to his wife, it was supposed that he was divorced or not on friendly terms with his family, and after searching about to find where she lived it was thought best to tele-graph her that he was dead. We knew othing about this man Lanzendorfer or former standing in Council Bluffs, and as he had not a single dollar on his person he was rightfully turned over by the coroner to our undertaker for as decent burial as our laws provide. In the meantime a telegram was provide. In the meantime a telegram was received from Council Bluffs to hold the bedy, as it would be taken to Council Bluffs. The undertaker simply held the body as he was directed and never told Mr. Estep that he did not intend to send the body to Council Regarding the paper or the policies that were in his room and which you charge the coroner with wrongfully turning over to the hotel keeper, will say that they never were part of the inquest, no more than the clean shirt and new suit of clothes that were also in the room. They never came into the hands of the coroner as evidence in the case, and all that our law requires of the coroner to do is, to view the body, call a jury, summon the witnesses, and after the investigation to return to the district court the inquisition, the written evidence, and a list of the material witnesses. Our laws do not make it the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased's certain and the coroner's consecutive control of the deceased's certain and the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased's certain and the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased's certain and the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased's certain and the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased's certain and the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the deceased in the coroner's duty to take charge of the decease ceased's estate and property. Surely the coroner did his duty and took charge of everything material in the case that would everything material in the case that would tend to find out the cause of his death. The policies and other papers were taken into the possession of the hotel keeper with the other effects that were in his room. When Estep came here he demanded all the valuable papers and threatened to replevin them and grew violent over the fact that the hotel keeper would not eye them in I was the

I was then consulted about the matter and I advised the hotel keeper that if Estep was the legal the hotel keeper that if Estep was the legal representative, the administrator of the estate of the deceased, he should deliver them up, but if not he should keep them until the legal regresentative should come and get them, for this man Estep was a mere stranger to him and without credentials of responsibility. Under these circumstances the hotel keeper was justified in retaining the variations of the contractions. out credentials of responsibility. Under these circumstances the hotel keeper was justified in retaining the valuable policies, and will be until the legal representative of the deceased will demand them. I suppose the hotel keeper thought he had a lien on them for the $100 board bill. Funeral of D. W. Patterson. The last rites over the remains of D. W. Patterson were performed yesterday afternoon at the late residence on Sixth street. The peculiarly sad features connected with his death had attracted universal sympathy from the public, and the funeral was one of the most largely attended that has ever been held in the city. Rev. C. W. Brewer con-ducted the exercises, after which the remains were taken to Walnut Hill cemetery, escorted by the Seventh Ward Military band of Omaha. 200 Masons and 300 members of the American Protective association. One feature of the funeral that excited almost universal comment was the ability manifested by W. C. Estep, who had charge of the exercises, in looking after the crowd. It had been the intention at first to have the funeral at the Fifth Avenue Methodist church, but owing to Mrs. Patterson's illness it was found necessary to have it at the residence. Wonderful Water Power and an Electric Plant that Astonishes Every One. Gornensung, Neb., May 11 .- To the Editor of THE BEE: After traveling around the world I confess that I see greater surprises in my own country than even in the Orient. Today while traveling through western Nebraska I dropped into the new town of Gothenburg. I had been astonished at the rapid growth of McCook and wondered at the splendid water power at Kearney, but Gothenburg amazed me. Here is a town that could teach late inventions to Boston or

"What has Gothenburg done?" you ask. "Why, she has run the North Platte through a ten-mile canal and made a mountain lake on the hills. The lake is sixty feet higher than the town and covers hundreds of acres. Pouring down from the lake comes 400,000-horse power stream of water rushing through the town." 'What has Gothenburg got!" you ask "She has got a central power house where turbine wheels turn electric motors, chang-ing the Platte water into electricity and then distributing this electricity for light and power and heat over wires into every house in town. One wire turns the machinery in a brass factory recently moved to Gothenburg from Cambridge, Mass. An-other wire runs into a clothing factory and turns fifty sewing machines and another will soon run to the big flouring mill and knock out its expensive steam engine."

"What else of Gothenburg?" "Why they are heating houses with this electricity caught from the North Platte. I saw a woman ironing with no stove in the

'What heats your iron!" I asked. "This little wire hanging to the flatiron," she said. "It is heated by electricity from the North Platte."

And there I saw eggs frying in a pan on the parlor table and a coffee pot boiling, while the bottom of it was so cool that it would not burn your hand or melt the var-nish on the table. Shall I make you some wheat cakes with out fire!" asked a Gothenburger.

"It will take too long," I said.
"No, only a minute," he said, as he turned a button and let the electricity pass through the bottom of a griddle. Then he threw a tea cup full of flour and a spoonful of bak-ing powder into a half-pint of water, gave it a quick stir with a spoon and poured five cakes into the griddle. The little puffs and bubbles came on the cakes in a minute and in three minutes he had the cakes steaming on my plate, and the electricity turned off again. Then he attached the wire to a again. Then he attached the wire to a boiler and an oven and broiled beefsteak and baked bread. This, mind you, was not in Paris before the academicians, but out in Gothenburg, beyond Kearney, which twenty years was the center of the Great American desert. Now the farms around town and away on to Sidney are loaded with wheat: prosperity and enterprise is everywhere, and Gothen-burg has given to Nebraska the most won-derful water and electric plant in the whole world. The electric plant was made by Edison; the turbine wheels came from Day-ton, O; the electric cooking apparatus came from Minneapolis, and the brains and pluck and enterprise to do this—why they are flourishing right there in Gothenburg. It seems almost like a fairy tale, but it is literally true. ELI PERKINS.

California Press Club Enroute. Three sleepers, containing about 100 California newspaper men and women bound for the World's fair, were part of train No. 6 on Union Pacific which came in 4 o'clock Saturday. They belong to the California Press association composed of newspaper workers outside of San Francisco and the other large coast cities—in a word, they are country newspaper folks and don't care who knows it. Part of them are delegates to the National Editorial convention to be held at Chicago May 16 and to the world's editorial congress and some others are delegates to the convention of the International League of Press Clubs, at Chicago, May 23 The party has spent several enjoy days en route, and it is to be regretted they could not stop over at Omaha and receive the hospitality of Omaha's newspaper men, but they will, no doubt, be well enter-tained by the Chicago Press club, in which there is a good-sized Omaha delegation.

LAWYERS STILL TALKING.

Arguments in the Union Depot Case Devetop Lasting Qualities.

Contrary to expectations, the arguments of counsel in the union depot injunction case were not , finished Saturday, and the case will be taken up again Monday morning. Mr. Thurston occupied the entire forenoon yesterday in detailing toe Union Pacific side of the controversy. He devoted the time to showing how deeply interested that road is in the material welfare of the city, and how religiously it had always kept its agreements. promises and contracts with the city, and how it would therefore, as a matter of course, keep its part of the Union depot contract equally well. It was argued that if completed under the present plans the depot would be one of the best this side of New York, and that not only the people of Omaha but the stranger within her gates would have a spasm of delight every time their eyes rested on it.

Considerable time was also devoted to telling of the urgent need of a depot and how this was the golden opportunity of a lifetime to get it. Not a little eloquence and aratory entered into the argument, and it was one of the prettiest things to which the

was one of the prettiest things to which the court has listened for some time.

City Attorney Connell occupied the earlier part of the afterneon. His position was rather vague, as he sided with both parties to a certain extent. He said he did not oppose the perpetuation of the injunction so far as the delivery of the city bonds was concerned, but he did not want the situation so tied up that no deal could be subsequently so tied up that no deal could be subsequently made that would allow of the quit claiming of the depot grounds to the Union Pacific.

Mr. Woolworth made the great forensic effort of the case. He discussed the trust features of the Saunders deed and of the property included in it. He reviewed the history of the acts of congress creating and governing the Union Pacific, both the acts of 862 and 1864, and later of the trust imposed by the people of Omaha when they taxed by the people of Omaha when they taxed themselves to assist the company in building its bridge. He argued that it made no difference whether the property went into land or remained in money, the trust was there binding the company to give free ingress and egress forever to all roads desiring to use the same, and that no matter who succeeded, the requirement was perpetual and would always requirement was perpetual and would always remain and should be ful-filled, either by the Union Depot company or any other that came in to take its place in the enjoyment of the property given by the people. He insisted that the plaintiffs did people. He insisted that the plaintiffs did not want the trust feature to lie dormant, as intimated by Mr. Connell, but wanted it enforced, though they did insist that it should not be diverted or perverted,

There was no attempt at oratory, but it was a cool, dispassionate, analytical argument touching the controlling law points and the great equitable features of the case. A number of lawyers were present and folowed the argument clesely

During the earlier part of it the city attorney attempted to interrupt to ask certain questions that appeared as a side issue in the case, but Mr. Woolworth declined to be interrupted. Mr. Connell appealed to the court, but was given no comfort, the order being that there must be no interference, and that it was desired to have the argument confined to the principal features and not switched off to any of the side tracks that had been built during the trial. Mr. Greene will begin the closing argument for the defense on Monday morning, and Mr. Howe will take the final whirl at it after that on the part of the plaintiff,

Quite Expressive.

Detroit Free Press: "I heard an expression the other day in New York," said the drummer to the hotel clerk, "that, while it may be old to some people, was new to me and struck me as rather appropriate."

"What was it?" asked the clerk. "The morning of the naval parade there," went on the drummer, "was damp and cold and about as disagreeable could wish the weddi worst enemy to be, and as I stood on the ferry, crossing from Jersey City, a great big fellow from the west came out of the cabin on to the deck where I stood. I glanced at him and with a shiver he

8. H. Ford has opened a wholesale liquor store at No. It Pearl street, Council Bluds, and has put in a large and well selected stock of wines, brandles, whiskies, etc. It is a fact worthy of mention that Mr. Ford is the fortunate possessor of nearly forty barrers of the linest whisky in the United States. In 1880 he bought seventr-five barrers of Kontucky C. F. C. Taylor whisky, and it was not until about three years ago that he placed the goods on the market. Of this stock he has left about forty barrers, and experts all prenounce it about the finest whisky in the country: He sells it mainly to families for medicinal use, as It is too coally for the regular trade. It is worth over $19 per gallon. There is not another brand of such whisky in the U. S. His stock of brandles and wines comes from the famous beland Stanford vineyards in California and have a high reputation for excellence and purity. World.
