BOOT OF YOUR VACOURS OF TON YOU

Trasd. Mr. Hastings wanted Rewick to mase the statement public, but he would not. There was not a word naming any irregularities about the asylum. Did you at that time know of any irregularities at the asylum!

"No, sir; I did not."
"In 1891 did you have under your charge the construction of any public building?"
"Yes, sir; there were seven."
"Were they all under the management of

"Yes, sir; they were.
"How did the board come to employ a su-"It was impossible for the board to superintend the construction of all of the build-How did you come to employ Dorgan?"

About Dorgan's Employment.

"He was recommended and we considered him an nonest, faithful and competent busi-ness man, having had experience in convict work; after we employed Dorgan we instructed him to secure plans and details for Were those plans approved by you!"

"Yes, sir; they were."
"How did you come to allow Dorgan $6,100 without his presenting vouchers?"
"Under the $40,000 appropriation the cell house was to be done by day's work, and it was necessary for him to have the cash to pay the men and settle with the parties he dealt with."

Before this did you require a bond from Yes, sir: a bond of $10,000, which was in our hands."

"Did the board examine his vouchers be fore he was allowed any more money? "Why did you advance the $8,000 to Dor-

"What information did you have as to the debts incurred?"
"The estimates of the superintendent."
"When you made these allowances to Dorgan, were you informed that that practice prevailed in other cities!"
Mr. Lambertson objected for the reason that it made no difference what was done in other cities.

The ruling of the court was reserved. "What did you do with reference to examining the time keeper's books?"
"In August, 1891, I looked over the books to satisfy myself as to how the time was

"Did you examine the work?"
"I did."

"How did you happen to discharge Dorgan and employ Hopkins?"
"In March, 1892, we heard that Dorgan had succeeded Mosher as prison contractor, and we asked for his resignation."
"About that time did you check over Dorgan's statements!"

"Yes, sir; everything he had with re lation to the expenditure of money; I found one or two little errors."
"In the fall of 1891 did you check his ac-

I had been through them several times. 'How aid you find them?"

"How aid you find them?"
"I found an overcharge of $35 on freight, but aside from that they were correct. The reason we never settled with Dorgan was that when Hopkins went in we thought that the building would soon be completed, and then we would make one settlement do for all. Since that time we have held the matter in abovance awaiting the outcome of matter in abeyance awaiting the outcome of the investigation.'
"The purpose then has been to look after the welfare of the state?"

"Yes, sir."
"Why have you withheld payment from Dorgan!"

"On account of a rumor that men were laid off and at the same time they were charged against the state." Explaining that Junket.

"About the charge of the misappropriation

'It was told us that in the early spring the cell house would be ready to re reive the cells, and Mr. Hopkins said—" "It den't make any difference what Hopkins said," suggested Mr. Lambertson.

Mr. Webster thought that it was proper to know what Hopkins told the witness about the advisability of adopting different sanitary measures.

"If these men did not know what was needed," retorted Judge Doane, "then the situation is worse than I supposed."

"At that time had the board been visited by agents who represented different cell manufacturers?" "Yes, sir; new and improved kinds of cells and new plans of sanitation had come into use. "You may state who were the persons on the tour of inspection?'

"The secretary of state, the attorney general, the warden and myself; we went to inspect the construction of cell houses and their sanitary conditions, and we gained some information."

"Did you complete arrangements to have the details of these improvements returned to the board! Yes, sir; they were."

"How much of that $500 did you receive? "One hundred and twenty-five dollars." "How much of your own money did you

Clerical Force at the Capital.

"You may cross-examine," suggested Jus-tice Maxwell, and Mr. Lambertson cut loose by asking "How many clerks are there in the office of the secretary of state!" Don't know.

"How many in the office of Public Lands and Buildings!" Three secretaries and one assistant secretary. What are the hours?

"Nine to 12 and from 1 to 4."
"How many clerks in the banking depart ment?"

"Don't know."
"Has the Board of Supplies a clerk?"

"Do you do all of the work?"
"No, sir." "Regarding these 10,000 leases, do you make all of them?" "No, sir; I sign them, but ordinarily they are correct when sent in by the county treasurers; when they are not. I make the corrections."

"Have you any record showing the times you have visited the state institutions?

Do you know how many times you have visited the Hastings institution?

"No, sir."
"How many times were you at the Institu-tion for the Deaf in 1891?"
"Have not been there."

It is very seldom that we could all get away at the same time."
"You say you supervised the vouchers!"
"I don't know what you mean."

"Well, then, did you pass upon them?"
"Yes, I did."
"Did you go over each one?"

"No, but we would look at them to see that prices corresponded with the bids." "What clse would you do?" "I don't know what you mean; if there were errors the vouchers would be referred back."

"Then all the inquiry you made was to see if the prices stated in the vouchers corresponded with the prices bid!"

"That was about the rule."

"So far as the question of whether the supplies were delivered, you relied upon the superintendent of the institution?"

"Yes; unless there was something that we could not understand."

Dorgan Was Indispensable.

"You are of the opinion that it was impossible to have built the cell house without a superintendent?"

"We had them on all of the buildings."
"You employed Dorgan because he was a good business man?"
"I regarded him as a thorough business man."
"Has it been the custom to place a man over buildings who knew nothing about buildings!"
"Not usually." "No. sir; I did not, but I—I mean to say that if we went into detail we could not go through these vouchers. We have given

Do you know if Dorgan ever built a building!"

"I don't know."
"Who recommended Dorgan!" "Hopkins."
"Then Hopkins recommended Dorgan and Dorgan recommended Hopkins?"
"It's not so."

So far as you know, Dorgan was incom petent for this work?"
"No. sir; he was not; he knew about prison details."

"Do you think he should know about prison details in order to build a cell house?" "I thought so."
"Was the fact that you could get him for $50 per month taken into consideration?"
"Yes, I think so; we took into considera tion that he was a good business man.

"Did you know that Dorgan was the agent for Mosher!" I can't say; but I know now." "You knew that Dorgan was the general nanager of the company!

"Yes, sir."
"Did you know that prison labor was to b employed?"
"We talked it over with the warden, but did not decide until in June, some time after the building was commenced."

"Don't you think that it was highly improper to employ the agent of the contractor to represent the state!"

"No, sir."

"Don't you think it was improper for you to have leased the labor from Mosher and turned the money over to Dorgan to be paid to Mosher before any labor was performed?"

"No air."

"No, sir."
"Did you instruct Dorgan to pay $1 per day for convict labor!"
"When his estimate came in in June we talked it over and agreed to pay $1 per day. Why Money Was Advanced.

"Was there any voucher for labor per formed at the time the $6,100 was paid?" "No, sir; we understood that Dorgan had ordered material and that there had been labor performed. When the warrant was drawn part of the material had been or were in evidence and could be considered.

"The estimate shows that he was paid on the third estimate; statement No. 3 came is before the second warrant was drawn. "Did the reports show the checks for "I saw them."
"When did you see the checks of Dorgan!"

"I can't say."
"What did you do with those checks?" "We turned them over to Dorgan."
"These estimates were to cover work reviously done?" "They were, provided the previous esti-nate had not been paid out."
"At the time the second estimate of $8,000 for July was made, Dorgan had $500 in cash on hand?" Yes, but this estimate was to cover maerial on hand and the expense of putting it into the wall." "Did you verify it by going down and see

"Did you make any report of your expenditure on this trip! "No, sir." "Did you report the expenditure to the legislature?"

"No, sir,"
"Did you keep an itemized account of your expenditures?"

"No. sir."
"Why did you not take this money out of the appropriation for traveling expenses?"
"I don't know."

"Does not the commissioner have $1,000 set apart for his traveling expenses and does not the board have another $1,000 set apart for the same purpose?"
"I guess there is such a law."

"Was that appropriation exhausted when you made that trip!" "I don't know."
"You went at the request of the warden?"
"Yes, sir."

"Did you ever make any report?"
"I can't say that we did, except the data there is now in our possession. "Did you ever tell Dorgan what cells you

"Whose duty was it to put in those cells?"
"It was the duty of the prison contractor to put in eighty cells, I think."
"Dorgan returned vouchers, and was paid for stuff after he resigned; was that ever discussed by the board!"
"I think not."

"For coal you sign the voucher upon the certificate of the superintendent of the Hospital for the Insane?" That is true.

"Were there any corrections made on the coal voucher of July 6, 1891!" "There do not appear to be any."
"What evidence has the board that the coal was delivered?"

"The certificate of the superintendent."
"Is that true with reference to all other vouchers?"
"Without there is something to challenge our attention; I do not remember that we ever doubted the word of the superin-tendents." "As to these vouchers, are the car numbers "I think not."

"Did it ever occur to you that the car numbers should show on the vouchers?" "No sir; it did not; I never thought of "In March, 1862, did not the board in-struct Mr. Hopkins to make a settlement with Mr. Dorgan! "Yes, sir."

"Has that settlement been made?"

Had Little to Do with Rewick "Have you any remembrance of talking with Rewick about how this asylum matter should be settled up?"
"I was in an office where I heard some talking, but I did not take a part."
"Don't the law require the public institutions to make complete reports to you every three months?"

"I think so."
"Do they do that!"

"Do they do that"
"I can't say now."
"Did not Mr. Rewick tell you that there was stealing going on at the asylum?"
"No. sir; he did not."
"Did you not testify before the legislative committee that the members of the board were so busy that they could not give the proper attention to these institutions!"
"No. sir; I did not."

"No. sir; I did not."

"Did you not testify that your duties were so numerous that you did not have time to give proper attention to the asylum vouchsuch attention as we could, and I call that proper attention."

"You think all that an accounting officer is required to do is to act upon the vonchers of the superintendent of an institution!"
"I think that when we have computed and made the extensions, that is all that we are required to do; that is the customary rule."
"Did the board make a contract for the cell house plans in detail!"

"I think so, and I think the price to be paid was $223." "Did you ever see the plans before Dorgan "No, sir; for they were not made until after he went on to the cell house." "Were these plans ever submitted to the

"They were in my office, I think."

Elder Howe's Short Story. Elder Howe, the chaplain of the peniten-tiary, was the next witness and testified that he had held services at the institution for more than ten years.
"How many times did you attend the prison congress as a delegate!" asked J. R.

Three times "How many states send delegates to those congresses?"
"Nearly all of the states."

"Have your expenses usually been paid by the state? Yes, sir; it is customary for the state to pay the expenses, and in the congresses they discuss sanitary matters."

"Did you make any report to the Board of Public Lands and Buildings?"

"No, sir; I had no report to make."

John C. Allen's Experience.

Hon. J. C. Allen, secretary of state, then took the stand. Was in the general mer-chandise business at McCook when elected. Has four clerks in his office. Mr. Allen then detailed his duties as secretary of state The election laws are mailed from his de partment to the number of 7,000; keeps the roster of old sailors and soldiers, and disroster of old sallors and soldiers, and dis-tributes the list from time to time; 8,000 copies of the State Board of Agriculture re-ports are distributed, as well as 3,000 copies of the report of the State Historical society; the copies of all laws passed by the legislature are kept in witness' office; countersigns all communications issued by governor; keeps a proper index all public laws, resolutions and state documents; furnishes to any one ask-ing for them certified copies of records in his office, from 1 to 3; all articles of in-corporations are filed in this office; has filed a total of 512 bonds; receives all election returns and makes a tabulated statement; all claims against the state have to be approved by the witness; has approved about 16,000 separate vouchers in his term of office; the work has been increased in the last four or five years, but witness could not give a comparative statement; is a member of six boards; is called upon for these board meetings about once a week; must attend these personally; was occupied from January to April, 1891, confronting a contest for his office; is secretary of the Board of Public Lands and Buildings.

Mr. Allen then gave about the same testi-mony as Mr. Humphrey regarding the amount of business handled by the board. The board disburses about $900,000 per year. Had no knowledge of any alleged frauds at the asy.

Financial Difficulties More than He Could Bear-Two Banks Close When His Death is Discovered-Other Faitures of in Day.

BLOOMINGTON, III., May 19 .- W. H. Schur man, owner of the Exchange bank of Normal, which failed to open its doors last Tuesday morning, was locked up in the county jail today. Five complaints were sworn out and warrants served upon him yesterday upon charges of embezzlement. He was tried for each charge and put under bonds suitable for each. This morning a depositor who placed $3,000 in the bank on the 10th inst. caused the arrest. Schurman, feeling the disposition on part of his creditors to keep arresting him until his bonds gave out, refused to accept a bond in this case, and was taken to lait. After his friends pleaded with him, he accepted bail, and late this afternoon was released. Most of the depositors have agreed to accept 50 cents on the dollar. The statement of assets rendered in the assignment fixes the assets at $58,000, while the liabilities are between $90,000 and $100,000.

The persecution of Schurman by the de positors is turning public sympathy in his direction. Schurman's condition is due to the fact that he was running the bank with

Up to this time he was considered one of the wealthiest men in this section. Besides being president of the Oglethorpe bank, he was president of the Brunswick Brewing and Ice company, and was a large stockholder in various enter-prises. The supposition is that Ullman had become crazed by financial trouble, and his inability to protect his friends drove him to suicide. The news spread rapidly and depositors started a run. In a few minutes the Oglethorpe National bank closed its doors, followed almost immediately by the First National. A slight run commenced on the Brunswick State bank, but it met all demands. Mayer & Uilman, wholesale groceries, have closed temporarily. Rumors affecting the two canks had been in circulation for several days. The officers of both banks say that the claims will be paid in full. Bank examiners have been wired for, and pending their arrival nothing definite will be known.

Light Opera at the Boyd. "Fatinitza," Suppe's best opera, was given by the Calhoun company last evening, the presentation being vocally admirable and scenically satisfactory. Omaha people should realize the fact that a very clever light opera company is this week giving ex-cellent performances of the best of comic operas in this city. The concerted numbers for quartet in the first act of "Fatinitza" have rarely, if ever, been better rendered than they were last evening, and the setting of this scene, picturing a Russian military post with snow falling, was surprisingly good.

Every member of the company has a good part in "Fatinitza," and each fills it well. The chorus is strong, pure in tone, and the ladies are decidedly good looking. All in ail, the Calhoun company gives one of the best performances of "Fatinitza" ever seen in

The prince of Wales has communicated to Mr. Gladstone by letter his regret that Mr. Gladstone was subjected to the unmannerly demonstrations at the reception in the Imperial institute on Wednesday evening. perial institute on Wednesday evening.

The terms of the arrangement under which the Hull strike come to an end are that the men who have been striking are to obtain work as soon as places are vacant for them. No nonunion men are to be molested and employers are to be free to dismiss, or to refuse to employ union men who may be guilty of threatening nonunion employes. No agents of the dockers' union are to visit the ships or work shops while the men are at work and no work shops while the men are at work, and no uniform emblems are to be worn by the men while they are working.

42 Prescriptions Failed

Mr. Geo. W. Doner Clerk of Le Seur Township, Kingsbury County, South Dakota, says: "I certify that I was sick for four years with an affliction my physician called scrofula.

Blotches Came Out all over my body, and swelling on the right side of the neck, and in less than a year I had lost 40 pounds in flesh. I was induced by H. L. TUBBS, our druggist, to try Hood's Sarsaparilla He insisted on my giving it a fair trial, by using six bottles. After taking the fourth bottle the blotches began to disappear, as did also the lump in my neck, and I soon began to every one's mind-is an aggregation of infirmities. Men and women are growing old before their time. The work and worry of today plunges us into an old age early; many die of old age at 50 instead of 70, and the causes that occasion this premature old age bring exaggerated dotage, melancholy, and often insanity.

While old age is thus associated with rheumatism, gout, and various morbid conditions, it is nevertheless possible to have an old age free from them, and, as Sir James Brown says in the British Medical Journal, "to run the course to the century goal without being complicated by any of the senile infirmities enumerated." These infirmities, regarded as mala dies of old age, are not essential to it, but due to overwrought nervous systems and blood that fails to nourish the nerve centers. Paine's celery compound brings that first requisite of restored health, perfect
