BISHOP NINDE'S ADDRESS TO DELEGATES

He Discusses the Objects of the Church and the Benefits of the Organization-World's Fair Sunday Opening Touched Upon.

The third annual convention of the Ne braska State Epworth league was formally opened at the First Methodist church in this city last evening. About 250 delegates were in attendance. The feature of the evening was the address of Bishop W. X. Ninde of Detroit. There was significance in his reference to the Sunday opening of the World's fair. It is said upon excellent authority that the Epworth league throughout the United States will boycott the fair. If not by a general order it will be through the influence of each local organization. A conversation with Bishop Ninde at the conclusion of his address clearly indicates such a procedure to be within the range of possibilities.

The services last evening were opened by prayer by Rev. J. E. Moore of Grand Island. Bishop Nande was introduced and cordially received.

"All thoughtful minds are impressed with our Christian activity," he said. "One of the marveis of Methodist life is the wonderful growth of the Epworth league since its formation a few years ago. What a dull world this would be, to be sure, if there were no young people in it. Life would not be worth living if it were not for its youth. Even we old people have young hearts. We love to hall the Epworth leaguers as Methodist young people.

"While I am a Methodist, I respect all religious denominations. There are some people who seem to have an aversion to the Methodist faith and would prefer to get to heaven by some other religious path, but there are over 2,000,000 people on the other hand who believe in the good old doctrine of Methodism and its Christian influences. [Applause.]

Doing a Noble Work,

"While this movement of the Epworth league has been sharply criticised in some places, I have no apology to offer for your noble work. You exert your tremendous power of organization for the general advantage. Your purpose of organization is one that commands our respect. Rainbows are made for show and a beautiful show they are, but human organization is made for a purpose and it should be a purpose that should be attained with a success that will demonstrate to people that you know how to use that purpose.

"If there is one thing I am proud of it is to see the young people of our church organized. I feel like pointing to them and saying to members of other churches, 'Behold our jewels! They accomplish something. They are not organized for display. I once knew a man that built a boat which was only four feet long and he put a whistle on it that was eight feet long. Every time the whistle blew, the boat stopped. [Laughter.] People asked him why he put such a big whistle on his boat. He replied that he liked to blow off steam. [Läughter.] He built the boat more for gratifying this vanity than to get good service out of it. There are some people, and I might candidly say that there are some Methodists, that only go to a camp meeting or revival occasionally and imitate that man by blowing off steam But I do not speak of Methodists generally this respect. "In some great cities you often see a great Gothic pile of architecture with lofty steeple that seems to pierce the firmamenta church with profuse display of artistic interior and exterior; a high-priced quartet in the choir and a high-priced pulpit orator presiding over the congregation. That is another place that reminds me of the man with the boat that liked to gratify his whim to blow off steam. [Applause.]

Religion Beats Architecture.

"The Lord Jesus Christ has not much use thinks more of a little church with big gospel than a big church with little gospel. [Applause.] The Methodist churches may not all be architectural gems, but they are monuments of gospel. The Epworth league is a plain organization of young people for the purpose of intellectual development with a view to outside efficiency. Its aim is to promote the social, intellectual and Christian tendencies of its members. It fosters moral companionship among other things. It is important to realize that no two persons can meet and enjoy comra ship without exchanging influences. No ing is so bad for a young person as to be con-taminated by vicious companionship. At times the maddening torrents of mountain streams rush down the canons and the beds of these creeks later become dry, but the rocks are stained with water marks. So it may be in some of our lives. There may stains left behind.

"How many so-called friends have proved our mortal and spiritual ruln? The Epworth league is formed to promote the right kind of sociability and throw the sheltering arms the right kind of companionship around our young people. I never did like the Oxford league. Its name was too exclusive. It seemed too formal. I like the Epworth league, with its warm sociability. What a privilege it is to come into a league like this for young people, to honor one another. Another ob-ject of the league is to promote intellectual growth. I thank God every day of my life for my rational faculties. I sometimes think we fail to comprehend the duty we owe to our minds. We should feed our minds. As a man thinketh, so is he. We should open the doors of thought the right way. It has a wonderful influence on our lives. No man would ever drink whisky if he did not first think of whisky. No man would commit murder if he did not first think of murder. No man would practice Christianity if he did not think Christianity.

hen Tennyson died they raked and scraped England for a man to wear the wreath of poet laureate. Finally they picked out poor old John Ruskin and put the wreath upon his brow. When he dies, who in all England will be left to wear that garand engine will be left to wear that gar-land of honor? In America who is left to fill the places in poetical intellectuality made vacant by the death of Longfellow, Bryant and Whittier? We are not raising many such poets now in this country. Who is there left in literature to fill the places of Irving and Hawthorne! Where are such writers today! We must find their successors in the ranks of our young people. Any of us can reach the crowning intellectual heights if we make good use of our time. This nation is too busy developing its industrial resources to rear successors to kings of literature and poesy.

Better Fall than Open Sunday.

"I passed Jackson park in Chicago the other day. I saw the magnificent dome of the beautiful White City. I meditated on the pluck and enterprise that builded that World's fair—the greatest of its kind in the history of the world. Yet I realized that the same plack and enterprise opened the gates on the Sabbath day. I would rather have the great fair be a dismal failure with closed gates on Sunday than a success with open gates on the sacred seventh day upon which God rested. [Prolonged applause.] It is a great whistedness to open those gates on such a day. [Applause.] It is not an ex-pression of Christian manhood. [Applause.] I rejoice that Methodism has written on its banner 'Christian perfection.' [Applause.] It puts a ban on the dance house and card pfaying, because it is not the right amuse-ment for the people.

"The Epworth league is the Christian tonic, good for the mind, body and soul. I am glad that you thus prefer to ennoble and improve your mind rather than being de-voted to frivolous amusements. The Meth-odist church believes in culture civilization and Christianity. We old people will soon pass away. You young people must be workers for Jesus Christ and solve the problem how to reach the unchristianized asses." [Applause.]

At the conclusion of the bishop's re marks. Vice President Hazelton made several aunouncements. He desired partic-ularly to have all delegates assemble at Hanscem Park church this morning at 8:30 o'clock, one-half hour previous to the morning session, for the purpose of rehears ing several choral exercises. A collection was taken up, after which the evening exercises closed with the doxology.

Immediately after the services had terminated, the delegates adjourned to the basement of the church where an informal recep-

MANUFACTURERS EXPOSITION,

Denver Aldermen Take a Lesson in Ne braska's Industrial Activity. The attendance at the exposition yesterlay was the largest of any day since the opening. During the afternoon, in addition to the pupils of the High school and Omaha View school, there was a very fair attendance of people who paid admission. A great many people are taking their children to the exposition in the afternoon when the crowd is not so large, and when there is plenty of time to see everything. The exposition is a splendid object lesson for children as well as rown people, and thoughtful parents are taking advantage of it.

In the evening the crowd was very large. Over 1,000 tickets of admission were sold in addition to the 1,200 that were distributed to the grocery clerks during the day. At the most moderate calculation there must have been 2,000 people in the building at one time. Still there was plenty of room for all.

The members of the Omaha city council acted as an escort for the Denver councilmen, who made a careful investigation of the exhibits. The visitors were very loud in their praise of the exposition and of the enterprise of the men who have made it a success. Since the home patronage movement was started in Nebraska they have been working up the same sentiment in Denver with some little success. They have a Manufacturers exchange in Denver, which is modeled after the Manufacturers and Consumers association of Nebraska, and the relations existing between the two organiza-tions are very cordial. The Denverites spent the entire evening at the exposition. Quite a good many of the visiting surgeons have been to the exposition, and without exception speak in the highest terms of it. Some of them even came the second time and brought friends with them. The manufacturers are in hopes that the local physi-cians will take pains to see that all the visitors attend the exposition.

The Seventh Ward Military band was on hand and rendered a very interesting pro-gram, which added to the pleasure of the evening. The program for this evening will be as follows:

March-Rifle Regiment Sousa Overture-Prinz Methusalem Strauss Selection-Der Freischutz Weber Overture-Tannhauser Wagner Waltz-Postillion Fahrbach Grand Cosmoperia Wegefarth Selection-Indra Flotow March-Exposition ..

As the exposition closes on Saturday night there are only two more evenings left, and still there are a good many thousand citizens of Omaha who have not seen it. Not one half of the business men of the city have as yet taken the trouble to give the exposition the encouragement of their presence. While the manufacturers are not doing any com-plaining, it is very evident that they cannot help but notice the difference between Omaha and Lincoln in the matter of attendance. Omaha was selected as the place for holding the state exposition, because it tained the largest number of people, but the attendance so far has been smaller than at local exposition held in Lincoln early this spring.

Dan Marcatta's Chances.

The rumor from Washington to the effect that Dan Marratta of North Dakota will be appointed as revenue collector for the Nebraska and Dakota district seems to strike a good many democrats in Omaha as being altogether probable. A leading local democrat said yesterday that in view of the fight that had been made on James North and the additional fact that Mr. North had not seen fit to seek the support of the state central committee it would not be surprising to see him knocked out and the Dakota man get the plum. It will be an easy way for Mr. Cleveland to get out of an embarrassing position, he could not appoint to the collector-ship any other Nebraska man excepting North without stirring up a great amount of bad blood among North's friends, but he can very gracefully appoint a Dakota man and promise North something else."
The commission held by Collector Peters expires during the present month and it is therefore very probable that the appoint ment of a successor will be made very soon

Buffalo Jones' Caust Schome. Another Platte river canal scheme was brought to light yesterday afternoon when Charles J. Jones, he of buffalo fame and of this city, filed in the county clerk's office a document showing that he lays claim to a portion of the water that flows along the channel of the Platte river. The gentleman files a claim upon 197,500 square inches of water under a four-inch pressure, which he says would be equal to a flow of 6.580,000 cubic inches per second. The point at which he proposes to divert the stream is in section 6, township 16, range 9, Douglas county. In doing this he proposes to carry it into a canai 44 feet wide at the bottom, 68 feet wide at the top and 6 feet deep. The canal is to run over the country to a point in section 30, township 13, range 13, Sarpy county, where he intends to use all of the water conveyed by the canal for the purpose of furnishing power.

No Question as to the Outcome of the Great Match at English Billiards.

LAST TRIUMPH OF THE YOUNG NAPOLEON

He Has the Balls in the Crotch and Can Keep Them There Forever-Roberts is Disgusted and Willing to Quit-Other Sports.

LONDON, June 1 .- In the international billiard match at Harris' circus Ives did magnificent work this evening. He got the balls jammed and scored 1,540 points in one run. His play throughout the evening, moreover, was neater and steadier than before since the beginning of the match. The score now is: Ives (still playing), 4,001; Roberts, 3,484. Ives will continue his run tomorrow The long run was exceedingly monotonous for the spectators and many billiard experts protested that such playing ought to be barred.

Roberts is disgusted on account of the turn matters took. After the close of the play he said that he would give Ives this game if Ives would play another game of 2,000 points up for £500 or £1,000, the conditions of play, except that the cannon stroke be barred when the balls should get jammed in the jaws of a pocket, to be the same. Ives declined Roberts' proposition. The Sportsman this morning says: "Ives evidently meant business, and was smarting from having had a cannon decided against him earlier in the evening. The balls are pe-culiarly paired. They don't touch; the white one is well in the top shoulder, and the red certainly well on in the jaws. It appears that Ives can continue until it pleases him to stop.

Uncle Sam's Stack of the Yellow Boys Steadily Getting Smaller. WASHINGTON. D. C., June 1.-There is reason to believe that the end or the present week will see the gold reserve in the treasury lower than it has been since Secretary Carlisle first invaded it. Treasury officials say that according to the advices, official and otherwise, received by them from New York, there is every outlook that the withdrawal of gold for foreign shipment will reach $10,000,000, and that therefore, the rererve will be only $90,000,000. The lowest point reached heretofore, and one that caused the secretary of the treasury and President Cleveland the greatest apprehension at the time, was $92,500,000. President Cleveland is out of town and Secretary Carlisle does not regard the coming situation as sufficiently grave to recall the president from the outing, but it was understood from a member of the cabinet that a special meeting of the cabinet would probably be held on Monday, when the financial situation, in all its seriousness will be fully considered. It is the belief of some of the treasur officials that the $90,000,000 mark will not remain the lowest. The drain of gold is expected to continue, and the cabinet must consider ways and means of replenishing the supply of gold. The most feasible means of replenishing the gold store, and the one which would be the most popular in Wall street, would be an issue of bonds, but it is still the president's determination not to issue bonds-certainly not until every other remedy had been tried and until the gold reserve reaches a much lower figure than it is at present believed will ever be the case. The plan by which the restoration of gold is to be accomplished is said to be exceedingly simple. Secretary Carlisle, who is the author of the scheme, refuses to divulge the slightest information regarding it.

MESMERIC MYSTERIES.

Prof. Flint Talks of His Powers, His Experience and Effects of Hypnotism. "Skeptics preferred" is the motto of Prof. Flint, the mesmerist now giving exhibitions at the Boyd. There are always a number of doubters in any audience and the professor likes nothing better than to have an opportunity to convince them, as he does not fail to do. His performance bears every mark of genuineness, and no one who sees him can go away without at least the conviction that "there are more things in heaven and earth than are dreamed of in our philosophy."

Any one who meets Flint is speedily convinced that so far as he is concerned there is winced that so far as he is concerned there is much in hypnotism. The imposing bearing, magnetic pressure of the hand and piercing black eyes that somehow don't focus as others do, causes an uncasiness that is only removed by his geniality.

The professor was seen in the reception room of the theater last evening and talked freely, as did his manager, Mr. Meacham (himself a mesmerist) on mesmerism and Reichstag amenable to the military demands (himself a mesmerist), on mesmerism and hypnotism. As the terms are now generally used, the professor said, mesmerism refers to the use of animal magnetism and hypnotism to the creation of illusions or day dreams by means of suggestion. While the former is used to place the "sensitive" or subject in a receptive mood, only hypnotism can be used to give a humorous exhibition, although it is not at all necessary that the suggestions be given orally. A really sensi-tive subject will take a mental impression mons today Mr. Labouchere, M. P., for as readily as an oral direction. AT THE FAIR GROUNDS.

Dedication of the Kentucky Building-Er high of German Machinery. CHICAGO, Ill., June 1.-There were numer us attractions at the fair today. "The Old Kentucky Home," as the Kentucky state building is called, was dedicated by Governor John Y. Brown. Then the children's building was formally opened to the public It is a perfect palace for children, with all manner of toys and dolls and fairy books and other things to amuse and enter-tain little ones. It has been so arranged that mothers visiting the fair can leave their babies at this building in care of trained nurses, while the mothers can take in the sights.

Another feature of the fair was the open-ing of the German exhibit in Machinery hall. Herr Karl Haller, royal inspector of foundries in charge of the German machinery exhibit, opened the ceremonies with a short Privy Councillor Wermuth, the German imperial commissioner, expressed his thanks to Herr Haller for the energetic promotion rendered by the participating engineers just to this important part of the German exhibit.

Next on the program was the starting of the big Schichau engine and all the motors used by the imperial German commissioner, followed by an inspection of the German ex-hibit on the part of the invited guests. The great Schichau engine was built in Elbing (Prussia) after the design of the engine (Prussia) after the design of the engines (Prussia) after the design of the engines used for German torpedo boats. It is a triple expansion engine, which makes 100 rotations per minute; it works with 180 pounds steam pressure, giving it a capacity of 100 horse power. This engine furnishes the motive power for all the machinery in the German exhibit and also the electricity for lighting it. Aside from that of the United States the German exhibit is the largest in Machinery hall.

This opinion advised the secretary to withhold the sum of $570.880 a part of the appropriation of August, 1892, and, in pursuance of it, the defendant has not received uance of it, the defendant has not received
