TO READVERTISE FOR BIDS

O'Rourke Thinks This the Only Solution of the Omaha Building Muddle.

LITTLE HOPE FOR GRANITE IN THAT CASE

Senator Manderson Still Opposing the Idea of Using Cheaper Material-One More Conference on the Subject to

He Held.

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE BEE,

513 FOURTER STR STREET, WASHINGTON, D. C., June 6. The question whether the new federa building, which it is proposed to erect in Omaha, is to be bullt of granite or some other material will not be definitely decided until Thursday. Senator Manderson called upon Supervising Architect O'Rourke today, but that official has been suddenly called out of the city upon business and he will not return until Thursday. Senator Manderson is determined that if it be possible the new building shall be constructed of granite.

The supervising architect, while admitting that a granite structure would be far more preferable than one built of any other material, does not see how with the existing appropriation he can erect a granite building. Mr. O'Rourke is inclined to believe the only solution of the vexed question is to readvertise for bids, the specifications calling for a cheaper material than granite. How ever, until Senator Manderson and Mr. O'Rourke have another conference on the question no steps will be taken by the supervising architect.

Onarters Will Not Be Changed.

It was stated at the War department to-day that nothing would be settled in the matter of the location of the military head-quarters at Omaha until the return of Secretary Lamont, who is now in Chicago. There seems to be little doubt that the present quarters in The Bee building will be retained. It is learned on high authority that the quartermaster general has recommended that while the rental asked for the quarters in The Ben building is higher than some other offers that have been made, that the present location is so much more desirable because of the large amount of reom and other conveniences, that the department cannot afford for the sake of economy to go elsewhere. There seems to be no douge that the army headquarters will remain in The May Reorganize the Bank.

It is believed in the comptroller's office that arrangements may be perfected for the resumption of the First National bank of Cedar Falls. Propositions looking to this end have been submitted by the stockholders of the bank and as the failure was honest and as there is some indication of the solvency of the institution, Mr. Eckels has de cided not to appoint a receiver until ample opportunity shall have been given to the bank people to reorganze. Mr. Eckels demands that there shall be an addition to the capital and that there shall be some change in the management before he shall permit the bank to resume business, but the latest advices from the examiner indicate that vigorous efforts are being made to insure the acquisition of enough money to put the bank in good shape and if these efforts are successful there will be no receivership. TREATY WITH RUSSIA.

11 Has Been Formally Proclaimed and Now is the Law of the Land.

Washington, D. C., June 6.- The Russian extradition treaty, which has been the subject of negotiation between the two contracting parties for more than six years, which has been amended again and again, and which has been threatened with defeat in its final stages, has at last been formally proclaimed and will henceforth be the law of the land until it is superseded by another treaty. The ratifications were exchanged in St. Petersburg nearly two months ago. but because it was necessary to observe extraordinary precautions to secure the safe transmission of the document to the United States, the treaty was not received at the department until a late day last week. The treaty was in the French language, and it was necessary to translate the document byto English and make very careful com-parison between the translation and the original. This work was completed yester-day, and today the president saw it for the first time, when Secretary Gresham carried it to the cabinet meeting. All that remained to be done was to make the official proclama-tion, and that was done this afternoon.

The proclamation itself was dated yester day and simply recited the provisions of the treaty, with the announcement that it would go into effect twenty days from date, that is Interest centered in the making attempts to murder upon the heads of governments or accessoryship to such attempts extraditable. These sections in the treaty, as officially promulgated are precisely identical in language with the sections published in Washington dispatches to the Associated press of April 23 last. It is asserted in official quarters that in spite of all that has been said about the treaty, it is similar in scope to all the extradition treaties negotiated by the United States in recent years, although in practice it may be that the administration of the articles will have a different result, in view of the essential differences between the judicial system of the two countries, which, in this case, are supposed to be more than usually divergent.

EXTRA SESSION OF CONGRESS.

President Cleveland's Reasons for Convening it Next September. WASHINGTON, D. C., June 6.—The Star has

President Cleveland's statement as to the President Cleveland's statement as to the time when he proposes to call congress to-gether and reasons which lead him to do so, is clearly interpretable as indicating a determination on his part to continue using the gold reserve to the extent necessary and not to issue bonds. As indicated yesterdly, he desires that the full gravity of the situation should be apparent at the time of the meeting of congress, so that the legislative branch of the government shall have the duty pressing upon it to correct the laws protecting the finances.

It is claimed for the administration that there is no obligation to issue bonds at once to make up the deficiency in the gold reserve, and that the reserve may be used in the regular course of business. It is said that should it run as low as $25,000,000 or $30,000. regular course of business. It is said that should it run as low as $25,000,000 or $30,000.000 before any financial legislation is had there will be no issue of bonds until expressiy authorized by congress at a lower interest than can be issued under the present law. The president desires congress to be confronted when it meets with the practical demonstration of the depleting effect of the silver purchases upon the gold in the treasury. Unless the situation should grow very much worse, resulting in a general panie, the president does not desire any radical steps to be taken until congress meets in September, but if developments should require prompter action then congress would be called together for it. The long list of financial failures appearing in the morning dispatches, it is believed, has not affected the president's judgment as to the policy to be nursued.

Mr. Carlisle reached Washington last night assembled at 11 o'clock. Mr. Bissell also returned and was at the meeting. The only absences were Messrs. Lamont and Morton. The financial situation and the outlook for levislation in the coming session of congress were the subjects of discussion. It was not expected at the hour of the meeting that the discussion would lend to any change in the line of action indicated above. Before the meeting of the cabinet the president bad a talk with four members of the ways and means committee of the last house, who will certainly be on the committee in the next congress. They were Wilson, Montgomery, Turner and McMillan.

SOCIETY OF THE CEMBERTAND. News of Interest to Veterans-Washington

News Notes. Washington, D. C., June 6.-The officers of the Society of the Cumberland have been engaged for six months, and with great success, upon original work of much interest to veterans. It has undertaken to obtain the names, postoffice address and occupations of the survivors of that army. The object is to print a roll of honor. The historian, Colonel G. C. Kniffen, has already secured the addresses of 112,000 survivors.

Mr. Thurston, the newly appointed Hawatian minister, has presented his creden-tials. He called at the State department yesterday, but was unable to see Sceretary Gresham. Today, however, he was successful, and although Secretary Gresham was about to start for the entinet meeting he delayed his departure long enough to receive the new minister and accept eredentials. Within a few days Mr. Thurston will be presented to the president. John Benton of Fargo, N. D., was today appointed receiver of the National bank of forth Dakota at Fargo.

Comptroiler Eckels has appointed William Latimer of Missouri and William A. Ewing of Kansas, bank examiners.
The final payments of the Choctaw and Chickasaw ladians claims, amounting to early $3,000,000, were made today by the freastry department.

Today the Treasury department has gained nearly $1,000,000 in gold, offsetting the amount taken yesterday for shipment. This makes the net treasury gold about $90,000,000.

FUNERALS OF THE FIREMEN.

Captain Cox and Pipeman Ouray Taken to Their Final Rest.

Never was there a sadder funeral than hat of Pipeman R. P. Ouray which was held rom the home of his betrethed, Miss Leone Roberts, at 615 North Fourteenth street The services were held in the front parlor lie favor. Mr. Tuthill gave an exclusive which was to have been the scene of their running meeting in the little town of Wahoo, nuptial vows today. The sister of the dead fireman arrived at 2 o'clock from Chicago and was just in time to see the scarred face of her brother before it was covered forever from mortal sight. Her grief and that of the girl whom death had cheated of her the girl whom death had cheated of her love was pitiful to see and tears of sympathy were in the eyes of many of the firemen who had come to pay a last tribute to the memory of their former comrade.

In and upon the coffin and all around the room were lavished a wealth of floral tributes. Some of them were from the fire-men and others represented the esteem in which the deceased was held by those with whom he had been employed previous to his connection with the department.

The clerks of the Pacific Express company whose service Ouray left to become a fire-man, sent two beautiful pieces. One was a simple sheaf of huge white lilies whose long stems were intertwined with rare and delicate ferns, the other was a large wheel of roses, smilax and lilies, of which one spoke was missing, mute testimony to the vacancy which the loss of the deceased had made in the circle of his friends. An anchor of yellow roses trimmed with ferns and violets bore the inscription, "From Mrs. Charles Shiverick, with heartfelt sympathy." An immense horseshoe of roses was the tribute of No. 1 Hose company. Pupils of the Omaha High school of which Harry Ouray, a brother of the deceased, is a wember of the graduating class, sent a handsome cluster of pink reacs, and nearly every hose company in the city was represented by similar tokens of esteem. Upon the bosom of the dead fire-man rested a large cluster of yellow roses, the gift of the girls in the bindery department of the Omaha Republican Printing

The services were conducted by Rev. Thomas J. Mackay of All Saints Episcopal church and were brief but impressive. The body was accompanied to its last resting place in Forest Lawn cemetery by a detail of twenty police under Sergeant Whalen and by the fire departments of Omaha, South Omaha and Council Bluffs, The Durant Hose company and the Veteran Firemen also joined in the procession. The pall bearers were the following members of the Omaha fire department: the Omaha fire department: J. T. Ander-son, No. 1; M. E. Gilbert, No. 2; G. Fox, No. 3; O. Morrell, No. 5; Captain Ed O'Neil. Captain Charles D. Cox was buried in Fairview cemetery at Council Bluffs yester-day afternoon. The hearse containing his remains was met at the Northwestern depot by a large detachment of the Council Bluffs fire department, and was escorted thence to the cemetery. NEW OMAHA JOCKEY CLUB What the Organization Aims at Accomplishing in the Way of Races.

WILL GIVE THE CITY GOOD SPORT

Plans Laid for the Maintenance of a Thor ough Racing Society-Some Things May Be Expected-Base Ball and Other Sports.

Inasmuch as no preparations have been made for the celebration of the glorious Fourth in this city, J. A. Tuthill, secretary and manager of the recently organized Omaha Jockey club, contemplates inaugurating the association's regular summer running meetings on that day, continuing the same on the 5th and 6th.

While this session will be first class in all details, with a big field of good jumpers, and all the accessories of the more famous courses, it can only be looked upon as a preliminary move toward the good things that are to come in the fu-ture. In brief, the intention of the club is to give Omaha—the largest and most progressive city in the great west—an amusement she has long desired and been entitled to, and that is a regular spring, midsummer and autumn running meeting. Lilice Minneapolis, St. Paul and Kansas City we are to have our Derby day, and an endeavor will be made to make this the event of the year. It is but necessary to note the wide spread and very general interest that is being manifest today, not only in the west but all over the country, in the coming American Derby at Chicago. Every met-ropolitan daily in the land has already devoted columns to this great race, and the advertisement Chicago derives from this source is beyond calculation. Last June this great gallop was an attraction of sufficient dimensions to draw a crowd of 53,000 people within the gates of the famous and reautiful Washington park, probably the grandest crowd ever congregated upon an American race course. The gated upon an American race course. The Chicago Derby this year will take place the 24th of this month, and it is sanguinely an-ticipated that the attendance will be fully one-half larger than ever before. Think of 75,000 men, women and children in gala attire assembled within the brief space of six bours within a single enclosure, and for the sole purpose of witnessing a bunch of fifteen or twenty thoroughbred horses struggle for the princely prize hung up. Is such a possibility not ample evidence to convince the most skeptical of the extreme popularity of the sport in this country?

This reference is made for this object alone, and while the newly organized club does not presume to offer any such colossal attractions as are regular features of Washington park, they do promise to give the citizens of Omaha and vicinity a grand and rare treat in a line absolutely new to thema three days running meeting, to be followed each year with three distinct meetings, all of which to be on a much more extensive and elaborate plan.

Omaha Will Gain Through It. Recognizing the enjoyable and elevating nature of the sport, its popularity wherever honestly conducted, and Omaha's need for some such general summer pastime THE BEE has frequently within the past half dozen years suggested and advocated this very enterprise, and now that there is a promise of seeing the prospect take definite shape the public should see that there is no inindrance put in the way. The benefits that will accrue to the city through this source are beyond estimate. It will excite a very general interest, occasion comment and go a long way toward stamping the city as one of thrift and energy. Business men and capi-talists should and doubtless will respond liberally and generously and do their part toward making the venture a successful one. So far as the present management is con cerned it is not essential to say that J. A Tuthill has been associated with some of the principal tracks of the country. He knows every horse and horseman of any considerable prominence, and is well qualified to steer the new Jockey club's bark through any and all preakers that may beset its start for pubthis state, in 1889, that completely eclipsed anything of the kind ever attempted in Omana. There were forty-three head of fine norses in the respective competitions, and large crowds were in attendance daily. The president of the new club, W. J. Perry, is the weil known South Omaha stock and commission man, and has been prominently identified with the local turf ever since Ne braska has been a state. The Kinney brothers, too, are well known. They are active and goahead, and have remodeled, improved and made the fair grounds track what it is today, which is saying a good

EULALIA IN CHICAGO.

Welcomed in American Fashion to the World's Fair City. CHICAGO, Ill., June 6 .- Eulalia, princess of Spain's royal house, came today and thousands of people from every state in the union and almost every country on the face of the earth were at the train, eager to give engineer waving his cap. It came to a stop, and, for a second, there was an anxious silence. A little group, headed by Mayor Har-rison, stepped forward to the rear platform of the last car. A pretty woman, modestly dressed, stepped out on the platform. It was all over in a minute. The mayor stepped forward, the princess extended her hand and Mr. Harrison, bending over like a true Kentucky gentleman, kissed it. In rapid succession the others were introduced, the Spaniards bending low and kissing the royal hand and Americans greeting her as Americans usually greet a woman.

Mrs. Bertha Palmer's carriage, which was used to convey President Cleveland here, when at the opening of the fair, was in waiting. Mr. Harrison handed the lady to her carriage. Led by the two troops of the Seventh cavalry and followed by the other carriages, containing the infanta's suite, the reception committee and city officials, Eu-lalia started for the Palmer house which, for the time being, is at her disposal.

It will be unveiled July 4.

Theart of breadmaking by electricity was demonstrated in the Electricity building today by Miss Helen Louise Johnson, an acknowledged authority on the subject. Her audience consisted principally of house wives, who manifested great interest in the demonstration. The heat employed is over 100 degrees less than is ordinarily used in gas and coal ovens. Miss Johnson turned the current on the coll of wires becompany to come to this country and com-pete in an international series to be played neath and above the oven until 250 had been attained. Walker of Omaha, procured the arrest of John Taylor, a colored hodcarrier, who is charged with assault, his victim being Laura Davis the 13-year-old daughter of Mrs. Car Though Miss Borden gave no signs of being affected by the address, she fainted just as the speaker concluded. When she had been revived the state put on as its first witness Thomas Kiornan, a civil engineer. He minutely described the Borden have and its surroundings. Adjurged cs. the members of the old state house gang in the members of the old state house gaing the saddle, booted and spurred as in the days of yore when they held the weal and woe of the state in the palm of their hands and were the sold memarchs of all they surveyed. Some months ago, when the charges of peachment were preferred, the three officials—Hastings, attorney general: Allen, secretary of state, and Humphrey, commissioner—upon the advice of some of their chums, turned the affairs of state over to he deputies and went to the offices only as visitors pending the outcome of the trial. That trial was disposed of and, as is well known, the decision was handed down yes terday by a court, a majority of which that the three men had violated none of the duties imposed upon them by law, and as a result this morning they wended their re-spective ways to the state house, where they at once took possession of the desks that have known them not for some months.

There was no public demonstration when they arrived, though their clerks and subor-dinates were on hand to give them a wel-come and bid them return. The three officome and bid them return. The three offi-cials and their little party of clerks and dep-uties formed a happy family, spend-ing considerable time in extending con-gratulations one to the other and poking each other under the ribs as they joked about the way in which pun-ishment had been warded off, for the time being, at least. A few parties from the other offices came in to extend the hand of welcome, but all in all the relations existing welcome, but all in all the relations existing between the officials and toward those who were exonerated by a technicality were slightly strained. It is true that not all of the men in the state house think that Hastings, Humphrey and Allen are innocent, for one man who has his office on the first floor of the building said this morning: "They are as guilty as h—1, but they escaped simply because they were—but I'll not say the rest." There are scores of other men about the building who would say the same say the rest." There are scores of other men about the building who would say the same if they would express the opinion they feel way down deep in their hearts.

ITS PROBABLE EFFECTS.

Judge Donne's Views on the Decision and the Standard it Sets Up.

Judge Doane of Omaha, one of the attorneys who represented the state and the managers, when seen yesterday said that he had read the opinion of Judges Post and Norval, and that he was surprised to learn that the two gentlemen had arrived at such a conclusion. Continuing his remarks he added: "The standard of public morality, which has been established by the majority opinion of the supreme court, is such as to leave the treasury practically at the mercy of dishonest officials. "If all that is required of a public officer to shield him from the danger of removal from office is that he shall go upon the witness stand and swear that all that he did was done in good faith, then the public has no safeguard against the dishonest acts of such officials, which are not capable of being proven as corrupt.

"The law creating the Board of Public Lands and Buildings defined the duties of the members of that board with great pre-cision and detail, and if it imposed any obligation upon the officers composing that board it was that they should be held to a strict accountability for the performance of those duties. It would be a very easy matter for the members of that board to excuse themselves of the greatest violations of the duties imposed upon them by law if they can be permitted to shield themselves behind the plea of good faith, which it would be next to impossible to prove in almost any case. But how the plea of good faith can be reof money from a fund appropriated for a specific purpose and applying it to a differ-ent purpose, of purely a personal nature, is something which I am unable to compre-

"I fear that the result of this majority opinion will be damaging in the extreme to the state and demoralizing to public officials, for it seems to me to be establishing a very low standard of official conduct."

John L. Webster's Comment. Hon. John L. Webster, one of the attor neys on the side of the impeached officials, was seen soon after the news of the de ision reached Omaha. "Just about as I expected," was his response to the reporter's question as to what he thought of the decision. "Would you care to state what it was that led you to think the decision would be what "I have a very decided opinion upon the matter, but I do not know that it would be prudent for me to state what it is," said the attorney. "But I will say this. I never tried a case in my life in which I had a more conscientious or clear conviction of the rights of my client than in this case. At all times during the trial of the case it seemed to me that there was no principle of law that could possibly sustain a conviction or justify a disagreement on the part of any member of the court. It was a matter of common common. of common comment upon the streets and in the hotels from the very commencement of the trial that Judge Maxwell would be and was unfriendly to the defendants. not say that this was true in fact, I only state what was common report. cution in this case was a political prosecution.

ATTORNEY LEESE TALKS.

Would Rather Have Been Tried—His Views of the Proceedings.

LINCOLN, Neb., June 6 .- [Special Telegram to THE BEE. - When asked by a BEE reporter this evening as to his opinion of the supreme court's decision, Ex-Attorney General Leese said:

"So far as my own case is concerned, would have preferred to have submitted the proceedings relating to all transactions during my incum-bency and to have had the matter thoroughly understood by the people of the state, who do not know me personally. I have at al! times been ready to prove up every transaction during my six years as at-torney general. My conscience is clear, as I have never wronged the state of a cent, nor have I ever knowingly permitted others to

"On the other hand, in my message to the governor for 1889 I called especial attention to the failure of our law to properly protect the state in its management of various in-stitutions and during my term of office I insisted upon rigid economy and honesty in the discharge of official duties. The opinion of the court that there is no jurisdiction in the legislature to present articles of impeachment against a private citizen or ex-state official. I believe to be well taken, under our present constitution. I did not interpose any obligation to the jurisdiction of the court because I could not even unpleadingly admit that there was a blance of truth in the charges made, and was ready to prove it.

"As to the trial of the present state offi

cinis, I stated last fall when the matter was first made public, and reiterate that state-ment now, that state officials could not be held responsible for the misconduct of any of the subordinates to whom was intrusted the direct management of our state institu tions, unless the same was brought to their special attention or was so flagrant as to be transparent. My judgment is that the state will profit by the thorough airing which has been going on during the trial just closed, and the applicants for official posi-tion will be more closely scrutinized in the future than in the past. I have no predic-tion to make as to the effect of the trial upon the general political situation of the state. I am not paying much attention to politics, but devote my whole time to the practice of
