Found a Gold Mine.

A gold mine was discovered in the eastern part of the city a few days ago and before the lead was exhausted $400 in bright, shining metal was gathered. The man who did the mining, however, came to the conclusion before he had finished that he had gone to considerably more trouble than was absolutely necessary. He had not been in this county many years, and he had not had time to wear off a prejudice against banks as a place to deposit money. He had $400 in gold, which represented the savings of years of labor, and not wanting to run the risk of putting it into the hands of a bank cashier who might take a sudden trip to Canada he dug a hole in his back yard and buried the gold, having first done it up carefully in an old baking powder can. It rested in peace until the recent heavy rain, which washed out the can and rolled it down the glen. On its journey the top came off and the ground was nicely decorated with yellow coins. In the morning it was found lying around the yard, but it took about twenty-four hours of hard work to collect it all together. Yesterday morning the owner brought it to one of the local savings banks and derositions. ings banks and deposited it for safe keeping.

INTERESTING GRADUATION EXERCISES

Yesterday was commencement day in the Council Bluffs High school, and eighteen young ladies and two young gentlemen were given sheepskins, boquets and rounds of applause by an audience that felt like congratulating them on their successful completion of their High school course. Owing to the unusual size of the class it was decided preferable to divide it into two sections, one of which appeared before the publie in the afternoon, and the other in the house was filled to overflowing. The stage, on the first raising of the curtain, presented a scene of beauty not soon to be forgotten. On each end stood a clump of palms, roses and geraniums. The opera house scenery had been drawn upon to good advantage so as to represent a woodland scene. The most attractive feature in the galaxy of beauty was the girls themselves, who were grouped about the stage in a gracefully careless sort of way.

When the Exercises Began. After invocation by Rev. E. J. Babcock the ball was set rolling by a selection from the High school orchestra. Miss Carrie Grosvenor was the first speaker, and her subject was "Epoch-Making Inventions." In her oration she treated of the numerous inventions that have been made during the last five or six centuries, and the effect each has had on the centuries, and the effect each has had on the progress of the world's civilization.

Miss Clara Flammant pronounced a fitting eulogy on "The Grand Old Man," William E. Gladstone, and was followed by a selection by the "T. K." quartet of Omaha, entitled "Woodland Roses." In this selection, as in all that followed, the quartet did excellent work, especially in view of the fact that the baritone, J. H. Conrad, was out of the city on his wedding tour and his place was filled by a young man who had scarcely was filled by a young man who had scarcely practiced half an hour with the others. The quartet was composed of A. T. McPherson, . G. Kratz, F. W. Hoagland, and W. R.

Miss Katherine Kobb's oration was on the subject of "The Question of Immigration." In it she took the ground that the immigraion of foreigners ought to be allowed, and, n fact, was much to be desired, in view of the size of the country and the large amount of its so far uninhabited territory.

Miss Maggie A. Bradley followed with a well written oration on "American Humor," after which L. G. Kratz sang a fine baritone solo entitled "The Bandit's Life is the Life "Monotones" was the subject chosen by Miss Augusta Honn. "Excellence," said she, "lies in the power to choose one thing and do it well. The power to detach and unify marks the artist. All of the world's great characters were great in one or two directions only and if they had not bound themselves down to the things for which they had a natural apitude the lives so full of results would have been failures."

Trials of School Life.

Miss Isabel Patterson read a chronicle in which she gave an account of the trials and tribulations, joys and sorrows of the class of 1893, from its starting out until the present. A foil drill by twelve young ladies of the High school was introduced at this point and served to show that something besides mental culture is encouraged in the public

Miss Grace Beebe spoke on "Students in Politics." She advocated the careful study of current events by young people, and suggested that not only a knowledge of English, but of the principles of government as well, be made a requisite for voting. After a recitation, "The Gypsy Flower Girl." by Miss Helen Tyler, the "T. K.'s" sang another selection, "In Absence." by Dudley Buck. Miss Margaret Lindsay spoke 'The Study of Biography" and Miss Julia Tulleys gave an oration on the class motto, "Terar dum Prosim," both of them carefully written productions,

The afternoon program was completed by The atternoon program was completed by the singing of three pieces by sixty children of the public schools, under the direction of Miss Colby. They had put in a great deal of time and energy in practicing, and the singing was admirably done.

The evening program was opened with an orchestral selection, after which Miss Florence Carley delivered an oration upon the subject, "Has the Race Degenerated?" "No" was her answer, and, although she had to admit that the civilization of the present admit that the civilization of the present ranked below that of the ancients in the matter of art, in almost every other direc-tion the inspiring influence of Christianity and intellectual development has caused a phenomenal growth.

Miss Ethelyn Barclay's oration on "Public Miss Ethelyn Barciay's oration on "Public Libraries" was carefully written and gracefully delivered. It was followed by a song by the "T. K's" entitled "I Am King O'er the Land and the Sea." Then came "Enthusiasm the Real Orpheus," by Miss Claire Chamberlin, and "Pearls and Mock Pearls of History," by Miss Frances Dailey. After a solo, "The Skipper," by L. G. Kratz, Frederick D. Empkie opened a debate by the question "Ought the Railroads to Be on the question "Ought the Railroads to Be Owned and Managed by the State?" Dis-crimination on the part of certain roads in favor of certain patron monopolies, and the way railroads have of buying up legislatures, were urged as reasons why the government should take a hand in the management. The opposite view was taken by Robert C. Baldwin, who mentioned among his principal arguments the fact that for the government totake the management of the railroads would make a new department of state, with a volume of political patronage that would be simply irresistible in elections. He decried any attempt of this sort to establish a czar in the white house and take away from the United States the name of being the least governed and, therefore, the best governed nation of the world.

There was a beautiful delsarte exercise in expression by twelve young ladies of the High school, after which Miss Maud Cavin gave an oration on "How Tune the Harp to Win the Intellect?" It was a plea that music be considered as important a branch of education as any other, and given its due prominence in the school curriculum.

Miss Katharine Ogden's poem presented an old piece of advice in a new form. "Don't count your youthful hens before their incu-bation" was the burden of her song, and her ideas were dressed up in a very jingling sort of rhyme and rhythm.

Miss Bertha Grass spoke on "The Touch of Inspiration," but her oration was a warning against expecting inspiration to take the place of work. At the request of a number of friends Miss Helen Tyler repeated her recitation of the afternoon, and was greeted by a hearty round of applause when she appeared and at the close of the recitation.

the close of the recitation.

Miss Katherine Meyers gave her ideas as to "What Should Be the Character of Graduating Exercises." She favored the idea of having the orations of commencement day delivered by the graduates instead of by an outsider while the graduates were merely put up on exhibition. This oration, which was the closing one on the program, was followed by a selection by the Euterpian quartet, composed of Misses Colby, Kirkland, Ogden and Grass It was the quartet's first appearance in public, but it scored an instantaneous success, and in spite of the lateness of the hour, received an encore, the only number on the received an encore, the only number on the program so honored.

Then followed the presentation of diplomas by Superintendent H. W. Sawyer in an elo-quent address.

SHERIFFS IN SESSION.

Two States So Far Represented in the Interstate Convention. The first formal gathering of the delegates to the sheriffs convention was at 2:30 o'clock at the court house, the superior court room being well filled with delegates. The meeting was called to order by the president, J. A. Costello of Grand Island. Neb., who, after a few brief remarks, introduced J. J. Shes, who proceeded to welcome the visitors to the city of Council Bluffs in the stirring style for which he is noted. He referred to the importance of the office of sheriff, and to the lack of appreciation on the part of the public in general as to the relations of the sheriff to his fellow citizens. He then called attention to the passage of the indemnity law at the last session of the Iowa State Sheriffs association, as the first practical result of the organization's labors. He also suggested that there were a great many other directions in which the associa-tion might use its influence, such as improvement in the condition of the falls throughout the state, and in the method of drawing jurors. He paid his compliments to the proevening. On both occasions Dohany's opera

Mr. Shea's address was responded to by Sheriff Desmond on behalf of the delegates, after which a number of short speeches were made, among the speakers being Garrison of Harrison county, Jones of Atlantic, Bennett of Omaha, Ludyard of Rushville, Neb.; Bowman of Jefferson county, Nebraska; Rosencranz of Rushville, Neb.; Schreck of York, Neb., and Clark of Mason City.

The delegates then adjourned to the Grand hotel, where a session was held behind closed doors.

In the evening the whole convention boarded a motor train and took a trip to Lake Manawa, where they were given a chance to examine at close range all the varied attractions of this popular resort. Probably the feature of the evening that was most highly enjoyed was a couple of kegs of mineral water that were tapped for their especial benefit through the generos-ity of Alderman Fred Geise. They re-mained at the lake until late in the evening. The following is a list of the delegates who registered up to last evening. Most of them are sheriffs or ex-sheriffs, with a few United

PART SECOND.

Thomas-Williamson. The marriage of Miss Mary Williamson to Mr. E. E. Thomas took place yesterday noon at the residence of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Williamson, 315 North Seventh street. The ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Stephen Phelps, D. D., was witnessed by only the immediate relatives of the parties. The happy couple, after receiving the congratulations of those present, took the afternoon train for the east. They will spend a month visiting friends in Ohio and seeing the World's fair, and upon their return will begin housekeep ing in their new home in Omaha. Mr. Thomas is one of the rising young attorneys Thomas is one of the rising of that place, and the bride is a very pop-of that place, and the bride is a very popular young lady of Council Bluffs. Their many friends extend the sincerest wishes for their happiness.

Of all the many enterprises that advertise Council Bluffs all over the United States, there are none that perhaps cover a wider range than that conducted by Charles Schultheiss, who runs the Novelty works on North Main street, where he makes his famous roasting pan and a dozen other equally popular articles. He has agents in every state in the union, and they are scattering his goods far and wide. He is a natural mechanic, constantly developing new ideas. His goods have a reputation that sells them at once. His business is constantly increasing and promises to be an important factor in the future industrial history of the city. When Mr. Schultheiss was only 18 years old he was foreman of a large factory in Ger-many, and he has filled many responsi-ble positions in the commercial world since.

INDIANS THREATEN TROUBLE

Red Liquor Produces Its Usual Effect on the Noble Red Man.

TROOPS SENT TO LEECH LAKE RESERVE

Dr. Walker, the Resident Physician, in th Custody of the Red Men and Threatened with Death-Settlers Fear an Uprising.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 14.—A special rain left over the Northern Pacific last evening with company D, Third infantry, United States regulars, and hastened with the greatest possible speed to Brainard, Minn., where the troops de-barked and will march until this evening, when it is expected they will arrive at Leech Lake reservation, where trouble of such serious nature exists that soldiers are needed.

Dispatches from that region are very meager but very urgent, the last of them reading: "Dr. Walker is a prisoner at Leech Lake and must have aid. Send officers and troops at once." This was signed by two reputable citizens of Park Rapids, and as soon as it was received, acting upon the order of General Merritt in command of the Department of Dakota, Adjutant General Barber dispatched a company of regulars to the scene. Information from Park Rapids, Grand Rapids and Deer River, points along the edge of Leech Lake reservation, is all of the same purport, but meager as to details. Dr. James H. Walker, the resident physician at Leech Lake, and a companion, went out hunting Monday morning and the former, by accident, in shooting at a fawn, shot and so seriously injured a popular young Indian that he died in a few hours, This so angered the Indians on the reservation, a little more than 400 in number, that they gave the hunters chase and captured Dr. Walker. They hurried him into the woods several miles away, and what has been done with him very ugly when drinking. There is fear also that settlers along the reservation will suffer, as the Chippewas have three times in the last half dozen years driven off the whites. There is still hope, however, that the Indians are holding Dr. Walker in the hope of securing a bribe from the government. Leech Lake is seventy-five miles from Brainerd and but four from Park Rapids, a railway station in Hubbard county. When asked why he did not send the regulars to the nearest point, Adjutant General Barber said: "We know the road from Brainard, while we are unacquainted with the road from Park Rapids to the reservation and we do not want to take the latter and get the com-
