WITH GARLANDS OF GLORY Five Young Ladies Graduate at the Academy of the Sacred Heart.

CLASS OF '93 AND WHO COMPOSED IT

Bertha Baumer, Emma Creighton, Inc. Fisher, Minnie Lemon and Luin Truckey Acoust Themselves with Credit-Music, Literature and Flowers.

A select and appreciative audience grouped in the exhibition hall of the Academy of the Sacred Heart, Park place, at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, to witness the commence ment exercises of the class of '93. The air was redolent of jacqueminot roses, which, with the dainty green of ferns and smilax, banked the arches and windows.

L'Elisire d'Amore by Misses Furay and Phelps opened the program. The little "Egosophist," Miss Helen McConnell, a precocious miss of 9 summers, then discussed questions of history from classic times to our own day. The possibility of the intro-duction of the Gladstone home rule bill and Likuokalani's experience of the "irony of fate" were treated in such a manner as to evoke general merriment. The puzzles of the child become the problems of the philosopher, but this typical miss of the Nineteenth century, versed in the science of "1," found easy solutions for those prob-lems over which the philosopher puzzles. But the most attractive feature of the pro-But the most attractive feature of the pro-gram was the scriptural play, "St. Magda-lene," written for the occasion. It throbbed with the power of the inspired words. The palm and olive groves near the lake, the house of Simon the Pharisee, the garden tomb seemed to have been projected from the mind's eye to the canvas, so perfect were the scenic effects.

the scenic effects. The resurrection scene was so artistically and skillfully arranged that, as the curtain rose, soft, fleecy clouds rolled back showing the risen Savior revealing himself to Magda-lene, while adoring angels floated in space about him.

Gifted by Nature.

Each of the young ladies who took part in the play seemed to enter thoroughly into the spirit and aspirations of the characters as-sumed. Gifted by nature with an expression of mingled kindness and dignity, and a voice in harmony with the character personated, it was not difficult for Miss Fisher of Papillion to enter into the role of Him who came to seek and to save that which was lost.

lost. Miss Truckey as Esther, Miss Kosters as Thais, Miss Nelly McShane as Mirium, com-panions of Magdalene before she met Him whose single glance "wrapped her in an at-mosphere of light and love," played ex-tremely well their respective parts. Miss Archer, of Fremont. "busy about many things," was an ideal Martha, while Miss Furay as the Pharisee showed more than Furay, as the Pharisee, showed more than ordinary histrionic ability. The guests of the feast, the attendants and the angels of the resurrection were personated by Misses Baumer, Siemon, Mullen, Shelby and Maple, with great success. Miss Emilie Schmidt, of Rock Island, as Magdalene, won merited admiration by her clear, polished delivery and her artless grace. This character gave full scope for the elocutionary drill, which, it seems, Miss Schmidt has pursued throughout the year.

Brightened By Music,

The different scenes were interspersed and brightened by appropriate music exquisitely interpreted. Mendelssohn's "Lift Thine Eyes" was among the selections deserving special mention. In the first scene the harp and piano accompaniments by the Misses McShane lent a most pleasing variety, which the guests did not fail to appreciate. Beethoven's "Adelaide," by Miss Lemon, with organ accompaniment, was one of the most attractive of the instrumental numbers.

In the vocal numbers Misses Lemon, Truckey, Creighton, Phelps, Kosters, Bar-beau and McShane were conspicuous for their clear, penetrating, yet sweet, voices, over which careful schooling had given them admirable control. As the last strains of "I Have Waited on the Lord" died away Miss Creighton came forward to deliver the closing address to Rt. Rev. Bishop Scannell, who graceful delivery gave full weight to every word and kept the attention of the audience

FALCONER'S HOSIERY SALE THE MORSE DRY GOODS CO FIRE AND POLICE BOARD. Tie Vote on the Subject of Saloon License Transfers. At its regular meeting last evening the Board of Police and Fire Commissioners took an equal division on the question of allowing saloon keepers to transfer their licenses from one ward to another. Mayor Bemis threw his casting vote in favor of the application and all members asked that their vote be recorded. The question come up on the application of Goodley Brooker to move his saloon from the Third ward to the Fourth. Mr. Strickler said that he had looked the matter up and he believed that if it was legal to allow saloon men to move from one part of a ward to another it was equally so to allow them to move into another ward. voted

Boycotting the World's Fair.

The Methodist preachers of Omaha in their regular meeting yesterday expressed themselves as follows on the Sunday opening of the World's fair:

ing of the World's fair: We view this act of Sunday opening on the part of the directors of the Columbian expo-sition as wholly wrong-contrary to the laws of God and of our land-out of harmony with our American customs and detrimental to the best interests of humanity. It is a bad ex-ample for our mation to set before the nations of the earth. Resolved, That we will not attend the expo-sition if it is to remain open on Sunday, and, without any desire to sit in judgment on other people's consciences, will discourage all we can from attending the same. We are heartily in sympathy with our Methodist com-missioners withdrawing our exhibit from the exposition and sincerely hope it will be done. D. K. TINDALL, T. C. WEBSTER, J. P. ROE. Board of Health Has so Decreed and Will Enforce the Law.

Unless the Board of Education comes down off its lofty perch and heeds the orders of the Board of Health the members will be 143 pairs of blacks and tans and slates, subjected to the indignity of arrest. The Board of Health resolved to this effect yesterday and Dr. Somers was directed to enforce the ordinances covering closet systems and connections with the sewer, without fear or favor.

The members of the Board of Health backed up by the city attorney's opinion hold that the putting in of the dry system of closets by the school board is a violation of the ordinances of the city. The school board was notified several weeks ago to remove the closets now in use and to comply with the ordinance by not putting the closets into the new buildings. Chief Seavey, Mr. How ell and Dr. Somers desired that the ordinance be enforced, and if the law is bad it should fall.

Dr. Somers was directed to enforce the weed, ordinance. Under this ordinance weeds standing upon vacant lots are de-clared nuisances and in case the owner fails to abate the same the city may do so and assess the cost against the property weed crusade is on the calendar for about the middle of next month.

Killed with a Pitchtork.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19 .- A stable at Bay district last night was the scene of a shocking tragedy. This morning the body of John Kelly, a rubber, was found horribly mutitated bear a stall and close by was found a pitch-fork with which the murder was committed. It is said that Kelly had numbers of enemies among other stablemen. Last night a friendly boxing tournament was held among them in which he participated. He retired to his ounctors in the stable at the usual to his quarters in the stable at the usual hour. Investigation shows that stones were thrown against the walls and when Kelly came out he was attacked with a pitchfork. His face and neck were frightfully cut with the weapon, one of the prongs passing through the skull. Jockey Richard Ward is under arrest, but is not as yet charged with the murder.

Starting with such near by and familiar places of beauty and pleasure as the Palisades on the Hudson and the beautiful and interesting towns and villages that lie within the Hudson valley, the book includes in its description every point of interest between New York and the Golden Gate, besides giving a very entertaining chapter on travel in Japan. The descriptions are brief but breezy and entirely free from the flamboyant. town-booming phrases so often met with in works of this sort. The reading matter is made more effective and the interest intensified by many well-executed photographic reproductions. The maps and other geographical work are well executed, and the cost of travel, railroad fares, hotel expenses, etc., are all grouped in tabular form in one chapter for easy reference. Madam Yale looks, on the stage, about 20 years old; she condidly says she is 40. Her youthful appearance is due to the fact, she says, that she has made the most of her looks and cultivated the habit of a cheerful disposition.
