The owners then interviewed the Omaha police, and after a time suc-ceened in running Crawford down at a farm house a few miles out of Omaha. About 7 o'clock he and of the city jail yesterday morning not far seven of his men got into a boat and rowed from 4 o'clock, when he noticed a brick fall across the river from the Nebraska side to begin their day's labors. There is a rope stretched across the river for the purpose out of the south end of the building and drop with quite a thud to the ground. He stopped to watch, and a second later saw another brick fall, together with some morof alding boats to cross at right angles with the current, but it tar. He notified the jailer and the two re-turned to the rear end of the building and has stretched and the weight of the water has stretched and the weight of the water it had absorbed brought the rope almost to the surface of the river. The men started quite a way up the stream, but in descend-ing the current not the better of the men at cars and carried the boat under the rope. Four of the occupants were swept off into the water, while the rest managed to retain their seats. Two of those who were knocked into the water managed to seize hold of the beat soon had the men who were working away Inside covered with their revolvers. George Meredith and Thomas McGinty, who are serving out a sentence in the streets for assaulting Officer Murphy, turned out to be the two fellows who were trying to make their escape. They are suspected of being all-around crooks, and are thought to have all-around crooks, and are thought to have been implicated in some burgiary or other scrious crime. In some way or other they had managed to procure a couple of heavy iron bars with which they pried open the locks which fasten the door to the rear corridor. They had then used their iron bars to tear locse the brick wall, which, being somewhat shaky at best, soon suc-cumbed to their efforts. When discovered they had a hole about six inches source water managed to seize hold of the boat again and were lifted in. A third caught the rope and climed hand over hand to the shore. The seven men had all reached land before any one discovered that Wride was missing. Some one then recollected to have seen him swimming along behind the boxt, but in the excitement and rush that accompanled the recovery of the others, the fore-man was allowed to shift for himself. The cumbed to their efforts. When discovered they had a hole about six inches square made in the wall, and it would not have been long until they would have had an opening large enough to admit of their work-ing their way out. Their anxiety to get and was allowed to shift for infined. The accident took place near the most casterly of the wooden piers, which is known as "No. 3" by the Milwaukee gang. As soon as Wride's disappearance was noted a force of men were put at work dredging the river for the body, but to no purpose. The current was were weit and away has strengthened the suspicions of the officers that they are wanted somewhere, and an effort is to be made to find out purpose. The current was very swift and probably carried its burden miles before where.

Six o'clock-shops and offices pour out their crowds of workers. Who would imagine the buildings held so many? Tired, monotonous expressions on most of the faces.

Heads of firms, clerks, shon-girls, all end the day tired. It is evident from their anxious, worn expressions.

When worry and anxiety are added to this excessive activity, digestion be-comes impaired, the sight of food distasteful, a wear of feeling creeps over the body, and the mind get confused and despondent.

Cupid is omnipresent. The latest caper of this dealer in hearts, is to perch in an Omaha employment office. "Wives while you wait," would make the intelligence broker an exceedingly popular individual, if the traffic became general. But cases of a job and a husband with each order are rare. Instances of a position with a choice of three Instances of a position with a choice of three husbands are still rarer. Out in Fairview precinct, near Papillion, Thomas Parrish follows the plow. He is a gentleman of culture, in fact agri-culture. Parrish owns a good farm. The other day he took an inventory of his effects. He had everything but a wife. Then Parrish felt Cupid's light, taporing ingers playing a love selo on his heart. He decided to get a sife.

solo on his heart. He decided to get a wife, but he had no time to fritter away on icc cream sociables and a long courtship, Finally an idea struck him and he struck Parrish stopped in front of an employment office in this city last Tuesday. He paused, smoothed his necktic, blushed a few times and then sped up the stairway with all the grace of a man with a connubial quickstep. Once inside he confided in the employment agent. He wanted a housekeeper and would give the agent $20 extra fee if the house-keeper would become Mrs. Parrish. It would save wages and supply a domestic want at the Parrish farm. The deal was made. Pretty Mabel Jordan, aged 18, accepted the position, but would not give a definite answer on the other proposition until she arrived at the farm. On the way to his home it is said that Parrish pressed his suit in a manner that would make Romeo's ghost turn an ethercal envious green. The answer that he looked for never came.

Race for Heart and Hand.

Near the Parrish home resides William Bowman, a handsome young bachelor farmer. He fell in love with the flower the Omaha employment office, was a race for heart and hand between Parrish and Bowman. The woods were full of marriageable mon. Every tree, in fact, seemed to be filled with love-sick farmers. Tom Boyer, another agricultur-farmers. Tom Boyer, another agricultur-ist, shied his caster in the arena. Boyer is said to be the Bunthorne of the neighborhood. He knew the powers of his persuasive eloquence, before which feminine hearts bowed in obeisance. Boyer, however, finally made a proposition to Bow-man, so it is said, to throw his influence in favor of Bowman for the sum of $5.

Parrish Was Not in It.

Bowman acquiesed. In the meantime, Partish was on the ragged edge of uncer-tainty. He had imported the fair house-keeper and now there was a conspiracy to rob him of the pride of his heart. But the combination won. The county clerk issued a marriage license to William Bowman and the fair Mahel Thursday lagt and the web the fair Mabel, Thursday last and the wed ding took place at Boyers'. Parrish naturally feels grieved over the affair, but Boyer proposes to do the fair thing by him and has agreed to come to Omaha next week and get Parrish anothe housekeeper whose personal charms will pos-sibly equal those possessed by Mrs. Bowman the bride-elect.

AND VICINITY. Boston, April 15, 1893. Dear Sir:-On account of the extra work I was doing, working late nights and losing sleep, the strain on my nerves became so great that I was suffering with nervous prostration, to the extent that I was losing my memory, and had a peculiar dizzy sensation in my head, that at times took nway my eyesight and numbed my sense of feeling so that I was unconscious of what was going on around me.

I became greatly alarmed, and on recommendation of my wife, who had learned of the peculiar virtue of Paine's celery compound, I began to take it. At first it seemed to do me more harm than good, but after the first dozen doses or so, I began to feel better, and the rheu-matic pain in my right lung which had also been troubling me began to subside. I am now beginning on the third bottle and all the nervousness and dizziness is gone; my memory especially is especially bright, and I now sleep like a baby.

All my friends speak of the change in my looks, and ask me what I have been taking

In these days of worthless patent medicines, I believe it a daty to my friends, and to suffering humanity in general when I find a medicine that is good to let people know it.

I can highly recommend Paine's celery compound, and for those who are suffering from overwork and nervousnothing is better to restore them to their former strength and vigor.

Yours truly, Jos. G. CLINI Messrs. Wells, Richardson & Co. JOS. G. CLINKARD. Burlington, Vt.
