Street Sweeping Schedule. The Board of Public Works has completed the street sweeping schedule for the year. it does not suit Jim Stephenson, the contractor, in the least, and he is protesting in his usual vigorous manner. Under the schedule six miles of streets shall be swept each night, making a total for the year, with the seventy miles left over for last year, of 1,070 miles.

The schedule carries the sweeping into the midale of November. Heretofore between eight and nine miles have been swept daily, and Mr. Stephenson says that but six miles a night means a loss of money to him. This retrenchment was made necessary by the shortage of funds in the curb, gutter and cleaning fund.

Major Furay and Major Balcombe were arrested at their homes. Major Birkhauser felt the strong arm of the law tap him on the shoulder at city hall at 5 o'clock, just before he went to supper. It is said that it did not impair their appetites.

The three majors did not go to jail. They are not built that way. They promptly fixed up satisfactory assurances that they would appear in the district court and answer to the charge today. Ed Phelan, the contractor, was also arrested on the same charge of violating the order of injunction recently issued from Judge Walton's court.

C. A. Baldwin has fer some time intimated that the three majors, constituting the Board of Public Works, would be summoned before the district court to answer to the charge of contempt. Several weeks ago the judge secured a temporary injunction to prevent the board grading Pierce street, and the same still stands. At the time the contractor was grading Twenty-fourth street and when he reached the intersection of Pierce he suddenly ceased work, as it was taken that Mr. Baldwin's injunction covered that portion of the thoroughfare.

Thus matters stood for several months. The contractor was put out, and continually clamered to proceed with his contract. The majors thought a great deal, but did not say much. They were revolving in their ually clamored to proceed with his contract. The majors thought a great deal, but did not say much. They were revolving in their minds the status of the case, and when they are caught doing that particular thing something generally drops. After some discussion, the board invited Mr. Connell's opinion as to whether the injunction was sufficient to prevent the grading of the Twenty-fourth street intersection with Pierce, and if so, why. The restraining order was issued to prevent the grading of Pierce street until a change the grading of Pierce street until a change of grade was made and a tender made the property owners of the damage money.

Mr. Connell's Opinion. Mr. Connell looked into the matter with the result that the following opinion was the result that the following opinion was given the board:

In response to the request for my opinion concerning the giving of an order to the contractor for filling that portion of Twenty-fourth street where it intersects with Pierce street and making the proper approaches to Twenty-fourth street, I would say that in my opinion such order should be given. It is but just to the contractor that the order be given at once, so that he be not unnecessarily delayed in the completion of his work. He has already suffered considerable delay by reason of the complications which have existed. The temporary injunction of the district court was expressly limited to the time of changing the grade of Pierce street so as to conform to the grade of Twenty-fourth street. This change has been passed and approved. If Mr. Baldwin can prevent the filling of Twenty-fourth street at its intersection with Pierce by securing another order of the courthe should be allowed to take the responsibility of doing so, and the board, notwithstanding his threats, should perform its duty and thereby make safe a dangerous place on Twenty-fourth street which is liable to result in serious accidents and damage suits. It is not necessary to give an order to fill Twenty-fourth street at its intersection with Pierce street which is liable to result in serious accidents and damages was made. It is only necessary to give an order to fill Twenty-fourth street at its intersection with Pierce street and make such reasonable approaches as in the judgment of the city engineer are necessary to prevent accidents.

As soon as Mr. Council's opinion was received the contractor. Ed Phelan, received a given the board:

As soon as Mr. Connell's opinion was received the contractor, Ed Phelan, received a written order from Chairman Birkhauser to proceed with the work of filling the Twentyfourth street intersection. When Mr. Baldvin was apprised of this fact he gave it out that contempt proceedings would be insti-tuted against the majors. He proposed to ascertain whether they should proceed in violation of the orders of a district court. However, no papers have yet been served on the majors inviting them to appear at bar and suffer the consequences of the court's wrath.

Birkhauser Shouldered the Blame.

Major Birkhauser, who at all times is more or less pleased with himself and his goodness, was doubly so yesterday morning, when he displayed his immortal love and devotion for his fellow members, Majors Balcombe and Furay. When the rumor reached the major's ears that there was danger of the board being brought into court for contempt, his proud spirit manifested itself, and his feelings rebelled against the thought of his beloved and honored associates being brought into disgrace by a summons to ap-pear before a magistrate. He straightway betook himself to the proper persons, and then and there did of his own free will and mind make known the fact that he and he lone, was responsible for the order issued to the contractor to proceed with the work of filling with dirt the intersection of Twenty-fourth and Pacific streets. And if the court desired to exercise its judicial wrath it should do so upon his head, and not upon those of the other two members, whom he asserted were innocent, and he shouldered the whole responsibility. He then re-turned to his office, and as he informed Major Balcombe of the sacrifice he had made there was joy in the household of the majors as they fell upon each others shoulders and gave away to the feelings of love and devo-tion that linger in their breasts. It was a touching spectacle, and even moisture issued from the samples of sandstone Hugh Murphy keeps in place in the board's rooms, and Var Court's vitrified bricks turned crimson with envy at such a display of affection. But all three of the majors are now under
