

SAD RESULT OF A WRECK

Apprehension for Her Child's Safety De-thrones Mrs. Hill's Reason.

ATTEMPTED TO KILL HERSELF AND BABY

Burlington Official at Lincoln Considering a Serious Case—List of Lancaster County Individuals Who Were Injured on the Fourth.

LINCOLN, July 5.—[Special to The Bee.]

Mrs. Jack Hill of Gunnison, Colo., is confined in the county jail, a raving maniac. The Burlington eastbound train was wrecked yesterday noon at Roggen, Colo., and two women, passengers, and the engineer and four cars went over an embankment, and the delay caused the train to reach here six hours late, about 4 o'clock this morning.

Mrs. Hill was one of the injured, and shortly before the train reached here she created intense excitement in the train by leaping up and attempting to throw herself and the babe from the train. Twice she made the attempt, but each time she was frustrated. She insisted that her baby was killed in the wreck and the one that was with her was not hers.

At the State House.

A. S. Woods, F. J. Bortwick and E. L. French filed articles of incorporation at the state house today for the American Sanatorium, located at Omaha. The capital stock will be $300,000.

Yesterday's Accident List.

W. M. Shuch of Thirty-second and Potter streets attempted to shoot off some rockets while out driving with his family last night. The horses frightened and ran away. Mrs. Shuch was picked up with a broken collar bone, her baby was badly bruised, and her mother painfully but not seriously hurt.

W. Jordan, secretary of the Lincoln Printing company, was not aware that a dynamite firecracker could be exploded without being lit. He knew it was lit now, but would much rather have the missing portions of his fingers than the experience he acquired. It was not necessary to amputate any part of them, the dynamite did that for him.

Herman, son of Chris Bauer, had his leg broken by being thrown from a wagon as he was driving with his father and sister along the West Lincoln road, which is being newly graded, when he ran onto a projection, and the wagon was thrown over the embankment with the above result. The others were bruised up some.

Charley Miller was thrown from a hayrack at his home in Knob Hill last evening. This morning he was very ill, and an examination by a physician disclosed for the first time that he had broken three ribs on his left side. He was removed to the hospital.

Lon Bacon, an ironman, was admitted to the hospital this morning suffering from a knife wound in his chest, not serious in its nature. He declines to state how he received it further than that he attempted to disarm a drunken companion who wanted blood, and was cut.

George Hart's Crime Recalled.

GRAND ISLAND, July 5.—[Special to The Bee.]—The pardon of George Hart from the state penitentiary is meeting with a great deal of comment here. His deliberate shooting of Michael Cress is well remembered by old-time citizens. He was released from jail while awaiting trial, but was captured near Hastings while hiding in a hay stack. His scaffold had been prepared and tested, and the news of the commutation of his sentence reached here only a short time before the execution of the sentence of death was to be carried out. His friends are glad that the witnesses against him are remembered. On the other hand, some of those who have seen him recently in prison are of the belief that he will be a law-abiding citizen in the future.

At the Central Chautauque.

FREMONT, July 5.—[Special to The Bee.]—The regular program at the Chautauque was very successfully rendered today, closing with the popular lecture by Dr. A. B. Winship of Boston, "America of Tomorrow." Tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 Dr. Winship will deliver his last lecture here. Tomorrow will open the opening of the Odd Fellows' encampment on the Chautauque grounds. John DeWitt Miller of Philadelphia will deliver his popular lecture, "The Uses of Religion," tomorrow evening. Friday, July 7, will be farmers' day. The speakers will be United States Senator Stewart of Nevada, Hon. A. C. Clegg of Colorado and Hon. A. L. Louks, president of the National Farmers alliance.

David City School Affairs.

DAVID CITY, July 5.—[Special to The Bee.]—The July meeting of the David City school board was held last night. After the old board had closed its business for the past year and elected S. Clingman to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of H. Pepper, who has removed to Colorado, the new board organized with five members present, two of whom are ladies. A. J. Evans was elected president. Mrs. Haskell vice president and S. Clingman secretary. The number of children of school age returned by the enumerator is 705, a gain of nineteen over last year.

Hebron People Hurt.

HEBRON, July 5.—[Special to The Bee.]—The son of W. A. Lockwood was shot in the leg yesterday morning by Ernest Correll a boy of 14, while playing with a revolver. The bullet was cut out. Herman Lehmann, one of the men who entered the horse races at Hebron, fell from his horse and was trampled upon by the other horses. He received ten cuts which crushed his skull and rendered him unconscious. The physician says his recovery is doubtful.

Heavy Rain in Nebraska.

ROCKSBURG, Neb., July 5.—[Special to The Bee.]—A heavy rain commenced to fall and continued for several hours last night. A good crop of corn is now assured. Small grain on table lands in the northern part of the county had suffered and will grow about one-half a crop.

DAVID CITY, July 5.—[Special to The Bee.]

About half an acre of corn was cut last night, which was very much needed.

Work of Thieves at Fremont.

FREMONT, July 5.—[Special to The Bee.]—During the parade yesterday some one entered and thoroughly ransacked the residence of F. M. Smith in this city, taking a gold watch and chain.

The chief of police received a telegram from Cedar Bluffs today saying that a lady by the name of Crounse lost at the Elkton depot last night one note of $5,000, one of $100 and $75.40 in cash.

Basin a Joint.

BELLEVIEW, July 5.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—Judge Langdon imposed a fine of $100 on Frank Miller for running a boot-

WHISTLING FOR DOWN BRAKES

Western Passenger Agents Act as Peace-makers in the Rate War.

UNION PACIFIC HOPS INTO THE RACKET

Lomas Signing for the Scalp of the Sage of St. Paul—Prospects of Peace in Passenger Circles—News in General.

The roads belonging to the Western Passenger association have been in the act of peace-making for some time past.

The roads belonging to the Western Passenger association have been in the act of peace-making for some time past. The Union Pacific did not enter the fight, but now that road has shed its castor in the shoring and henceforth will be strictly in the "push."

The Union Pacific passenger agents are now selling first-class limited tickets from Sioux City, Omaha, Kansas City, St. Joe and Leavenworth to points in Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington for $30. The eastern rates are the same between these points and east of the Missouri river. They are offering a special rate of $25 west of the Missouri river. The Union Pacific does not meet any of the second class rates of the Great Northern, but it is thought that the Union Pacific will meet the Union Pacific and go it a few points better.

FAVORED LONG PINE.

United States Fish Commissioner Arranging to Locate a Plant There.

LONG PINE, Neb., July 5.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—Dr. B. W. Everman, United States fish commissioner, with a party of scientists, are here today for the purpose of making an examination of the Long Pine river to decide in reference to the location of the United States fish hatchery for which the town has made application.

The Chautauque had the good fortune to secure the consent of the commissioner to have his name placed upon the program and tomorrow he will deliver an address upon "Northern Pacific and Boring Sea."

It is understood among passenger agents of other roads that the Northern Pacific has determined to push the fight against the Great Northern and that within a few days it would put in effect a higher rate than the Northern Pacific points and Idaho, Montana, Washington and Dakota points of $10 to St. Paul and Chicago.

Northwestern Agents. Passenger agents for local lines report a good excursion business on all the roads yesterday.

Won't Allow Joint Rates. Chairman Midgley of the Western Freight association has issued notices ordering the cancellation of joint work tariff through the eastern seaboard of the Mississippi river at less than the duly authorized basis.

Sparks and Cinders. Passenger agents for local lines report a good excursion business on all the roads yesterday.

Elevator at Nation Burned. SETON, Neb., July 5.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—James Cannon's elevator was burned at this morning. The grain was not insured. The engine was saved. Loss, $5,300. The building was insured as follows: Germania, $10,000; Commercial, $10,000; Underwriters, $900. Cannon expects to rebuild soon.

Hastings' School Board Work. The school board at its last meeting ratified the selection of teachers made by the retiring board, and re-elected as president of the ensuing year Jacob Hallock, and Ira Ford, secretary. James N. Clarke was elected vice president.

Sentenced a Burglar. HASTING, July 5.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—M. S. Adkins, a Phelps county burglar, was sentenced to one year imprisonment in the penitentiary.

Fighting in Kentucky.

IMEZ, Ky., July 5.—Water Deakins was shot and killed Sunday at Nolan, W. Va., by Andrew Farmer during a drunken row. The assassin was pursued by a posse and was overtaken and surrounded Monday night, but he fled on his pursuers and fatally wounded George Deskins and a man named Thompson. In the confusion he made his escape, but the posse continued the pursuit, and he is now surrounded by a mob, which threatens to lynch him. He undoubtedly will be caught by tonight, unless the sheriff consents to give him up, blood will flow freely. A skirmish occurred today, but full particulars have not yet been received.

Foreign Exhibitors Arrested.

CHICAGO, July 5.—Vivan Lovett and Legare Kabanovitch, representing the Russian silver-smith company of Moscow, who had charge of an exhibit in the Madison building at the World's fair, were arrested today charged with selling exhibits on which duty had been paid. They admitted their offense and were held to the grand jury. The government will prosecute the men and all similar cases hereafter.

They Robbed the Company.

LEXINGTON, Ky., July 5.—A combine has existed on the freight department of the Cincinnati Southern railroad for some months, whereby the road has been robbed of between $40,000 and $50,000. Eighteen conductors and eighteen engineers, together with the timekeeper have been issuing fraudulent time checks. The checks were made out by conductors and engineers and honored by the timekeeper. The trouble is on the Somerset division.

MAJORS AT SOUTH OMAHA.

Mad Dogs Seem to Be Proliferating on the Streets at Present.

During the electrical storm on the morning of the Fourth lightning struck the residence of G. F. Wight on Twenty-sixth street between D and E. It was about 1 o'clock and the family were given quite a fright. The chimney was torn to pieces and the shingles were ripped from the roof for a space of several feet and the house was filled with smoke and the family rushed out into the street in their night clothing, thinking that the house was on fire. Nothing burned however, but the damage will be about $25.

Another Case of Rabies.

A dog owned by Mr. Perrine, the commission man, living at Twenty-third and I streets, went mad yesterday. The actions of the dog frightened all the children in the neighborhood. It ran around biting and snapping at everything it came in contact with. Finally it ran up onto the porch and rolled over into a tub of water. The dog then went into spasms and was killed by Mr. Perrine.

Noonan Broke the Record.

At the South Omaha butchers' picnic on the Fourth Larry Noonan broke the championship record of skinning a steer. He did the act in four minutes and twenty-eight seconds under the watchful eye of the Kansas City man who was to compete with him in present, but would not enter the contest. He had his men skin a very large skinned two sheep in five minutes and ten seconds.

Magie City Gossip.

Al Keenan is assisting his friend Tom Flynn in the latter's gents' furnishing store while the latter is away replenishing his stock.

Russell Condon received the congratulations of his South Omaha friends yesterday when the bicycle race at Lincoln on the Fourth.

Miss Eva Mason, cashier at the Home bakery, was one of the motors in East Omaha on the Fourth. She was in the collision.

It was a very bold thief who entered the residence of Louis Ritz at 109 South Twentieth street yesterday in broad daylight and helped himself to a new suit of clothes. The family was at home all day to the thief and his entire wardrobe was there. He effected an entrance through a window which he left open upon leaving.

Michael Markinson, captain of No. 2 engine house, was granted a day of absence for five days by Fire Chief Smith yesterday. He will leave in the morning for Weston, Ia., for a brief visit, and his friends say that he cannot back to his job without the expense of two instead of one. Mike has always said that there were no girls in Weston to compare with the kind they raise in Weston.

Martin Egan was in the act of scarping with all corners on Hillside avenue Tuesday evening when he ran into the corner of Oliver Thomas. Egan at first concluded not to be taken by any one, but as Oliver Thomas is a man of very few words and considerable power, the young man suddenly changed his mind and went to the station. He was held in the cooler until last evening when he was called before Judge Fowler and fined $10 and costs.

COX BENEFIT. Splendid Program Presented and a Good Sum Realized Last Evening.

The benefit at Boyd's theater last night, tendered to the widow of Captain Cox, the brave fireman who lost his life in the performance of his duty during the Chicago fire, was a decided success and was attended by a large audience, notwithstanding the torrid condition of the weather. Nearly 1,000 tickets had been sold, though they were not all represented at the benefit.

The parties who took part in the program were all well known musicians and eloquent orators of the city. They were there without reward, or hope of reward, except a widow's gratitude. After an overture by the Gate City orchestra, Dean Gardner of Trinity cathedral, who acted in the capacity of master of ceremonies, delivered a short address, saying that the gathering of the citizens was in a good cause. They were there to express their sympathy and to praise the brave hero of a brave city.

They were men, he said, who in responding to the calls to duty, took their lives in their hands, and were long remembered in the hearts of Omaha would say all honor to the people.

A violin solo by Prof. Dzworak captivated the audience and resulted in an encore, while the bass solo by A. H. Findlay was received with high appreciation of the gentlemanly Mr. Frank B. Miller was on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was unavoidably detained at her home by sickness. This was a sore disappointment, but the number on the program was filled by Jules Lombard, the famous bass singer, delighting his audience with "I Fear No foe." A banjo solo by Prof. H. H. Smith was also on the program for a solo, but was