ALL OLD SOLDIERS.

Sixth Annual Reunion of Soldiers and Sailors of Northwest Nebraska.

CHAPBON, Neb., July 9.- | Special to THE BEE. |-The traveler journeying eastward from Chadron along the upper Bordeaux valley on the morning of the 3d of July might have noticed, here and there dotting the road, the slowly traveling prairie schooner with its tented top, the heavy open wagon, or the lighter and more stylish topbuggy, all filled with expectant looking neople, old and young, all headed in the same direction, and responding alike to the inquiry "Whither?" "Why, to the reunion."

All day long the vehicles, loaded down with old soldiers and their families, came into the beautiful grove near Bordeaux station. Here amid the pine-clad hills and rippling brooks the most successful reunion in the history of the Northwestern Nebraska Soldiers and Sailors association was to be held. The whole of the first day was spent in active preparation for the morrow—the natal day of the republic—which was to be commemo-rated in the sacred and old-fashioned manner peculiar to our forefathers. A few hours had worked wonders in the appearance of the grove. Where quiet had been wont to reign was now heard on all sides the sounds joyous voices of youth and the more se date tones of age; the peaceful spot had auddenly taken on a military air, with the erection of the long lines of white tents, and the sound of fife and drum lent color to the

The notes of the reveille sounding out clearly on the morning air as the sun rose over the eastern hills aroused the camp to action; and soon the numerous fires betoken ing the preparation of the morning meal showed that sharpened appetites were not to be forgotten in the excitements and pleasures anticipated for the day. The early trains brought in a crowd of city folks glad to get away for a time from the hot and dusty streets and enjoy the change to the cool shade of the grove. Soon the adjutant's call and assembly sounded, calling all to the grand stand where the exercises of the day were to take place. Hon Church Howe was introduced as the orator of the day, and sustained his well-earned reputation as a brilliant and effective speaker. In the af-ternoon Colonel A R. Anderson entertained the audience in his inimitable way. The remaining hours of the day were pleasant and happy recreation, the oung in the onjoyment of hammock and swing; the older in quiet groups where gossip reigned supreme; the old soldiers here and there in little knots recalling experiences in less peaceful days.

The complimited days of the regular ware

The remaining days of the reunion we spent in a manner characteristic of the old soldier. Neither rain nor mist can dampen his ardor, although both were experienced hours passed quickly and happily by in relating and recalling the thrilling ex periences of four years of bivouac and battle. The dress parades, aside from the pleasure afforded to visitors, showed that the veteran in the long interval since the war still re-membered the pomp and glitter of the soldier's life, as well as its sterner realities Special public exercises were held by the Sons of Veterans on the afternoon of the 5th. These proved very interesting, and much good is anticipated for the order in the northwest counties, resulting from this re-union of the sons of the soldiers. On Thurs-day afternoon the Women's Relief corps charge of the exercises, and it might b added that these interesting exercises were the marked teature of the reunion. Judge Church of North Platte, commander of the department, was a welcome visitor and assisted the ladies in their evereises Thursday afternoon. This is the first visit Commander Church has made to this part of the state since the buffalo and Indian held undis turbed possession.

At the business meeting of the association several material changes were made in the constitution of the association, the most important being the admittance into member ship is the association of the members of the Relief corps and the Sons of Veterans. This will make the organization a much more general one and impart great strength to it and give it greater power for future good work. The Northwestern association is now on a good permanent working basis, and much good is anticipaned from its an nual meetings. The reunion was located at Bordeaux for five years. The following are the officers of the association for the ensu-ing year: Commander, G. W. Read; senior vice commander, John Beeley; junior vice commander, H. T. Hite. The date for the reunion of next year will be June 30 to July 4, inclusive Slashed with a Knife.

COLORADO CLOUDBUESTA

One Thousand Dollars Worth of Property Destroyed in that State.

DENVER, July 9 .- Southern Colorado was visited yesterday by heavy rains, which did much damage. At Lamar one and a half inches of rain fell in an hour. During the storm lightning struck the county jail but little damage was done. Scuth of Lamar a cloud burst in the Witlew Creek valley and an immense body of water rushed down the creek, carrying away the Bed Rock ditch flume and striking the Bent ditch, which brought the torrent into Lamar, covering the streets grom one to five feet deep. Many families had to move to places of safety.

At La Junta the heavy rain caused several irrigating ditches to overflow and the streets were covered with three feet of water. Fifteen head of horses and a large number of hogs and fowls were drowned in this vicinity, while the crops were badly injured.

DUKE DE VERAGUA'S FINANCES. His Fortune Shattered in a Bull Fighting

Venture in Paris. New York, July 9 .- The friends of the duke de Veragua in this city are much exercised over the story from Chicago that he has lost his fortune, and that when he returns to Madrid he will be without money. Whether the duke lost the money in speculation in Paris or not it is certain that his finances were in a bad way when he left

Madrid for this country to become the guest of the United States. A Spanish gentleman who lives in this city said today; "I heard from a cousin of mine several days before the duke reached this country that the finances of the duke were not in good shape. What the trouble is I do not know, but he had been embarrassed for some time before coming to the United States." Another gentleman speaking of the duke said: 'Veragua lost a good deal of money in Paris during the exposition of 1889. He was one of the promoters of the built ring which was started there. It was an expen-sive undertaking, and the restrictions put upon it by the government were costly."

Henry Rose, a well known member of the Circulo Colon-Cervantes said that he did not think there was any project on foot in this city to raise a fund to help the cuke de Veragua out of his financial troubles. "I Veragua out of his financial troubles. "I don't think he, as a Spaniard, would accept any aid."

Although the duke may have been finan ially embarrased while in this country he lived well. During his last visit to New York he was not the guest of the nation but he paid his own bills like any other gentleman. He stopped at the Waldorf and occu-pled the best rooms in the house, and while there he had the best the hotel afforded His party was large, and he entertained a great deal during this last visit. Senator Allen Expresses His Views on the Extra Session Call.

H. L. LOUCKS HAS CONSIDERABLE HOPES

Talks with Men Who Travel - Chicago Thieves Steal a Cottage and Pluck the Shields from a Policeman's Breast-Short Stories.

United States Senator William V. Allen arrived in the city yesterday from his home at Madison. He ate his Sunday dinner at the Millard. The senator found his time pretty well occupied by friends and politicians who called on him. He said he came to Omaha to make arrangements preparatory to his journey to Washington to attend the extra session of congress. Senator Allen was asked what action he thought congress would take on the silver question. He replied: "I have been so en-grossed with my personal and business affairs since my return from Washington that I have really given the subject no thought, and the information I have had on the question was that which I have been able to derive from the telegraph columns of the daily press.

"I don't believe anything I could say would be worthy of publication just at pres ent. Before the extra session is called to order I will have become more thoroughly posted. I will go to Washington some time before congress convenes. I think that President Cleveland did a wise thing in calling for an extra session. I hope that it will result in much good and be the means of restoring public confidence in financial mat-ters. This extra session will be of the greatest importance to the whole country."

Judicial Titles in Texas. At a small gathering of colonels, majors and captains and honorables at the Paxton recently they were talking about the application and misapplication of titles, and Congressman Lafe Pence of Colorado chipped in as follows:

"Back in the early 60's, President Lincoln appointed Judge E. C. Wells, still a resident of Denver, to the territorial bench of the future centennial state. Judge Wells was not as old then as he is now, and the new title (he had been a plain attorney before his appointment) fitted him just about like a small boy's first pair of boots, or a West Point graduate's first regulation uni-form. To say that the judge was proud of his title is putting it mildly.

"One night there was an impromptu gathering of notables at one of the leading hotels, at which Senator Wigfall of Texas was an honored guest. Judge Wells was present, and had his title with him, sticking out where everybody could use it. When any one addressed him as 'Judge,' his delight was quite apparent. Finally there was a bering that no one had used his title for a long time, turned to Senator Wigfall and

"Er-Senator, I am told that nearly everybody in your state wears a title of some sort or other. Er-how do they grade the titles, Senator, or rather what does a man have to do in order to be called 'General.' for instance?' Senator Wigfall turned slowly around and in an impressive manner set forth the requirements.

"Down in Texas," he said, "If a man i well-to-do, dresses well, drinks lots of whisky, has lots of niggers, spends money freely and has a military bearing, he's a general. If a man meets all the other re-quirements but is not real wealthy, we call him 'Colonel.' If one is eligible in other respects but hasn't a military air, he is known as 'Major.' And if he's a plain, ordinary, everyday citizen, 'Captain' is his handle as a

"I just want to remark that the Chicago footpads have the greatest nerve of any people I ever heard of," said Bitly Khent, a commercial pilgrim at the Murray, who handles hardware and has a nerve which takes the edge off of his cutlery samples. "The footpads and burglars of that city would steal anything from the pennics on a dead man's eyes to a red hot stove. I suppose you heard of a thief whom Chief Detective Jack Shea put in the 'sweat box' as a suspect some time ago. Well, that fellow wert up to Shea's house and robbed him of severa valuable pieces of jewelry and then wrote the chief a letter, telling him where he could find his diamond pin and watch. The fellow and his diamond pin and watch. The leifow had pawned them, and Jack was red hot to think the fellow had got the best of him. But the worst thing they did was several days ago. You have heard that the police-men travel in pairs in the down-town districts. Well, two of Carter Harrison's husky pets were walking along on a Lake street beat, near the river. Just as they came to a dark doorway a couple of knights of the sandbag came out, made the fficers throw up their hands, robbed then of their guns, watches and what money they had. "What do you think will be the influence of the extra session of congress on the financial situation, Mr. Loucks!"

"What effect can any legislation likely to be enacted by the present congress have!" was Mr. Loucks' counter-query. "I see that a great many people have an idea that the worst is over, and that the calling of the extra session of congress will be the means of restoring confidence right and left, with the result that when the Sherman act has been repealed, the country will at once be in been repealed, the country wiff at once be a sound financial condition. "Say," drawled one man, who hails Chicago and wants everybody to know it, "I've heard of that town. St. Louis-St. Louis-how big a place is it, anyway? much of a population do y nosop'se it has?"

He would recline nonchalantly on the grass in the back yard, and estimate the exact number of trips his little brother would have to make to pile three and three-fourths cords of wood in the three and three-fourths cords of wood in the shed, eleven sticks to the armful; and he could calculate to a nicety the time he might consume in loating, when his mother sent him on an errand, without getting licked. Not the Financial Boon that Was Anticipated by Muny.

CHICAGO, July 9.—The attendance at the World's fair today was very light-so light as to raise doubt in some minds as to whether the open Sundays are to prove the financial boon to the fair that was expected. While the exposition officials express satisfaction over the attendance, it is no secret that concessionaires are generally greatly disappointed at the lack of the bristling multitudes that were fondly anticipated for this period of the fair. As nearly all concessionaires are compelled to pay 25 per cent of their gross receipts into the exposition's coffers, they are of course, the first to feel the results of light attendance. The Wellington Catering company and nearly all other catering and restaurant establishments are cutting down their forces, and the Higea Water company, the most enterprising institution on the grounds, has made radical reductions in its working force until the attendance shall become such as to justify previous expectations.

The regular Sunday services were the only special attraction at the park today, and the now established fact that many exhibits are entirely closed on Sundays no doubt worked somewhat to diminish the Sunday attend

Commissioner General Palitschek-Palm forst of Austria says he is in favor of permit ting the sale and immediate delivery of goods by exhibitors. He said he was not asking more than had been granted at previous international exhibitions, nor morthan was allowed certain American exhibi tors at the present World's fair. The latter as was becoming generally known, he were selling goods quite openly, and he has been informed that the guards have been instructed to close their eyes to the practice at least so far as a certain few were con cerned. The commissioner insisted that it was only right that all exhibitors should be put on the same footing. He added that it was an unwritten law, or at least a privi lege, at all expositions that restrictions against the sale of articles brought in as ex hibits should not be enforced.

Paris Permitted Sales. At the Paris exposition such sales amounted to 10,000,000 francs. There were rules similar to those of the Columbian exposition, but they had served their purpose when they had shut out those who would have come in with gewgaws and fraudulent wares for the mere sake of traffic. Foreign exhibitors, or many of them, did not care for the doubtful reward of medals under the present system of judging; their only hope of compensation for the trouble and expense to which they have been put lay in the di-rect saies which they could make.

There could be no possible harm in these legitimate sales, if all exhibitors were given the same privilege. Beyond the negative argument in favor of the removal of restrictions, there was the positive one that tors would be grievously disappointed if they could not purchase souvenirs from among foreign goods. Already it has been shown that they were not satisfied to buy for future delivery; nothing short of carrying the articles bought away with them would suffice. Chief Aliison of the Manufactures Liberal Arts building, complaining of the disorderly conduct of Columbian guards on duty at night in the Austrian section of the Manufactures building, said the guards made free with all articles on exhibition, using the choice Bohemian glassware to trink beer from, forgetting to replace Showcases have been opened by guards who had crawled inside to find a comfortable place to sleep. FEARFUL DROUTH IN EUROPE

Rain Withheld for Many Months and Crops an Absolute Failure.

RUIN FOR THE AGRICULTURAL CLASSES

Reports from the United Kingdom are Es pecially Gloomy - Roumania Loses Turough a Flood-Germany's Fields Thoroughly Baked.

Loxpoy, July 9 ... The break in the decuth seems to have been little more then momentary. The weather continues persistently dry in all parts of the United Kingdom, and, although at times the sky is more or less densely clouded, the threatening conditions pass away without even a sprinkling of rain. It is now many weeks since rain has fallen in many parts of the kingdom, and the small amounts measured at the commencement of June constitute but a slight interruption of the prolonged and persistent drought. The type of weather is certainly not thoroughly settled, and with the conditions now prevailing rain would probably occur in many places under ordinary circumstances, especially in the north, but, taking account of the experience of the present season. It is not probable that rain will become at all general at present. The continued drouth is causing som concern in military circles as to the prospect of carrying out the intended great army maneuvers in September, it being regarded as possible that the absence of rain may so retard the crops as to make it difficult to clear the ground in Wiltshire by the dates for which arrangements are being made. The difficulty of the water and fodder supply is also giving rise to anxiety. Meantime preparations are going on for the assembling of the troops at the time proposed, and the army service corps has commenced to form depots at Hazeley, Heath, Crookham, Churn and other sites selected between Aldershot and Swindon.

Many Farmers Will Be Rained.

Although the east coast of Essex has recently been visited by heavy rains and storms, the dry weather in the inland disricts of the county has continued unbroken for the last two months. It is feared that for the last two months. It is feared that many farmers will be ruined. There is virtually no hay crop, and there is very little food for cattle. The farmers say that there has been no rain to speak of since February. The hay crop is a failure, the pastures are parched and bare, and the corn is suffering severely. Vast areas of crops are exceedingly, ratchy, if they are the restricted to the suffering terms of the suffering the suff ingly patchy, if they are not absolutely spoiled. Labor is reduced to a minimum, water has to be carried long distances, and the attempt is being made to water crops by The prospect has seldom been so cheerless and disheartening as at the present

Reports have been received from various points in Europe on the harvest prospects. In Germany they are very unfavorable, and intense anxiety is felt. In West Germany the drouth still continues. The condition of the fodder crop is becoming every day more hopeless. In certain places cattle are being sold at ridiculous figures and in some cases the animals have actually starved to death. The calamity is not only an agricul-tural, but a national one. The crops in Hungary have somewhat improved, owing to a fall of ram, and wheat and rye have almost recovered, while the anxiety as to the sup ply of fodder has been removed. In Holland the dearth of water is causing great hardships, and agriculture has been seriously af fected. The winter crops, however, of wheat and rye are satisfactory, but the oat crop is in a backward condition. The dearth of forage is the chief calamity and forage is fetching a fabulous price.

Suffered from an Inundation.

VIENNA, July 9 .- The desponding accounts which came from Roumania during the re-cent inundation gave rise to grave apprehen-sion lest an agricultural disaster should enas beyond question, and threatened to exercise an unfavorable influence on Roumania's commercial intercourse. Happily the re ports now received dispel these sinister fore bodings. Owing to the speedy subsidence of the waters the floods have done no damage but have, on the contrary been found of advantage in several districts. At the date of the reports it was only in a few low lying valleys with clayey soil that any injury to the seed was apprehended. All over the rest of the country with the exception of certain districts in the southern Carpathian region, the crops have rapidly recovered and are now in a satisfactory condition.

In the district of Jassy wheat, barley and oats are well advanced, while hay promises to yield a more than average crop. Though the vines suffered greatly during th winter, and many of them were destroyed, the condition of those that remain is now good, and the outlook is considered very promising. The rye, though somewhat thin promising. The rye, though somewhat thin, owing to the cold, dry spring weather, shows satisfactory progress, as is likewise the case with rape, though there is no hope of the deficiency of from 50 to 70 per cent in the latter, occasioned by the severe winter, being made good. While it is impossible at present to give an accurate estimate of the coming harvest, yet with a continuance of favorable weather an average yield may be anticipated.

Germany Has no Fodder. Bealin, July 9.—The long continued drouth, broken only by short intervals of rain scarcely sufficient to make any impression on the parched soil, has given rise a serious want of fodder in many parts of the empire, and especially in Hesse-Nassa and the Rhine provinces. The fears enter-tained for the harvest are justified by the official statistics on the condition of the crops in Prussia. In no single instance are the crops classified as good. Clover especithe crops classified as good. Clover especi-ially has suffered greatly, and to make up up for the lack of this article of fodder recourse has been had in some districts to ent ting young oats which are so dried up as to afford no promise of ever coming into ear. In the neighborhood of Cassel and Aix-la Chapelle water is becoming very scarce The outlook is not quite so bad in those districts which have been favored wit showers, but the amount of rain has been so small and so unevenly distributed as not to affect the general situation.

What it is deemed possible to do for the relief of the country from the lack of fodder is being done. The Prussian minister of pub-lic works has ordered a considerable tempor-ary reduction of the freight tariffs for fodder on the Prussian railways, and also on those of Alsace-Lorraine. In Wurtemburg also the government is occupied with the same question, and a meeting of experts has been summoned to frame proposals for relief, Amsterdam, July 9.—There has been little rain in Holland for the last few weeks, and a severe drouth prevails in many parts of the country. In several districts, indeed, the municipal authorities are taking steps to provide a supply of drinking water.

CHOLERA AMONG PILGRIMS. Causes Great Anxiety on Account of the Number of Meeca Travelers.

VIENNA, July 9 .- The outbreak of cholera

among the pilgrims to Mecca has caused no small anxiety, the pilgrimage being this year larger than usual. The Dresden conference did not meet one day too soon, and be it said to the credit of its principal promoters, its proceedings were confined to practical precautions for immediate applica-tion in view of the fresh outbreak of cholers which has taken place in othe directions besides Asia Minor. The discus sion of many useful measures was post-poned to a future occasion, as it was feared that, had they been submitted to the conference at Dresden, they would have delayer the adoption of the more urgent portion of the program. The execution of the measures de program. The execution of the measures decided upon at the first sanitary conference, which met at Venice, has been postponed. They were of a fundamental character affecting international sanitary regulations, and some preparation was necessary before they could be carried out. Meanwhile the present outbreak of cholers occurred, and in order that the sanitary council at Alexandria should not be impeded in its action by a change of system in the midst of an epidemic, it has wisely been resolved to defer the application of the measures adopted at the conference at Venice eighteen months ago until next November.

Unfortunately, the sanitary council at

Constantinople has not undergone the reor ganization which is universally recognized as indispensable. The suitan's apprehension that it would involve foreign intervenhitherto prevented the question from being submitted to international investigation. The accidental circumstance that Constanti nople has escaped the recent cholera epi demic seems to have satisfied him that the sanitary council at the Porte requires no improvement. The time has come, however, for this matter to be taken seriously in hand

Prevention Measures Useless. The Revue d'Orient, commenting on the present outbreak, says that the disinfecting stoves at the Cameron lazaretto and the other preventive measures taken on the Red sea have been useless, not because of a failure of the stoves or any defect in the regulations, but because both have been in-competently used. Elaborate memoran-dums hide the worthlessness of the Ottoman sanitary system from the eyes of Europe and of the sultan himself; and yet the example of Egypt during the last ten years ought to open the eyes of those who control sanitary affairs in Turkey. The reform of the sani-tary council at Constantinople is, therefore, of the first importance in view of the rav ages made by cholera in the Asiatic provinces Turkey during the last five or six years The present council is neither Ottoman nor international. Of the twenty-one members of which it is composed, thirteen represent various powers, and of these ten are medical men. The influence of the majority, however, is more than counterbalanced by the right of veto reserved by the Porte, ever, is more than counterbalanced by the right of veto reserved by the Porte, which it often exercises. Further-more, the council is handicapped by the want of any accurate definition of its powers. The choiera regulations of 1867, which are based on the results arrived at by the conference held at Constantinople in the previous year, are altered, restricted and extended by a number of circulars, decrees and instructions of which the council itself has not a complete list. The Revue d'Orient states the Turkish text of the rules, which has alone been sanctioned by the Porte, does not agree in all respects with the French text, by which the representatives of the powers are guided.

Sanitary Condition Extremely Bad. According to the reports of the Ottoman delegates at Teheran, the sanitary condition of Persia during the last three years has been extremely bad. It has, nevertheless, been found impossible to induce the shah and bis advisers to establish a sanitary corps on the eastern frontiers and in the southern parts of the empire. Count Kalnoky, refer-ring to this subject in the delegations, mentioned that France bad undertaken to inau gurate an inquiry with regard to the sanitary situation in Persia. Though no date had been fixed, the foreign minister was per-suaded that the French government would not lose sight of the matter. He had no official particulars as to an outbreak in Persia, but he felt sure that all the necessary measures in connection therewith would be taken at St. Petersburg and Constantinople.

THREE HITS IN THE NINTH

Lucky Combination that Saved the Nonpareils from Defeat Yesterday.

CARAMELLA'S DROP IS SO DECEIVING

He Fooled the Southsiders Handsomely, but His Support Was Very Poor-Jelien Off in His Fielding-Other Sunday Sports.

The Nonpareils won the game with the Clippers yesterday by a lucky bunching of hits in the ninth. Croft, McAuliffe and Jerry Mahoney, the three first men up, hit Caramelia safe, Jerry stopping at first after sending McAuliffe and Croft home on his two-base push. Had the "Clips" supported Christopher Columbus Caramella at all the smoked Italian would have landed them winners. He had a drop ball with him yesterday that went down as regular as the mercury in Weather Clerk Hunt's thermometer last January. Every one of the players in his team contributed to the error column, except Lawler, who replaced Hayes at the middle of the game. Jellen fielded poorly, but his support from Lacey was gilt-edged. Graham's one passed ball was the only blemish on the back-stop work of both catchers. Lawler's corking home run hit in the eighth was a beauty, bringing in a couple of runs. He is a promising sticker, pitcher and all round player. A fair crowd filled the seats at Nonpareil park. The score:
