Lansing. Oliver was arrested this morning and gave ball for his appearance in the sum of $2,500. Yesterday morning, it is said, he called on his lawyer and told him he was going to kill Lansing before noon. The lawyer remonstrated with him, but he was obstinate. As soon as he could be sent word to Lansing telling him of Oliver's intention and advising him to get a double-barrelled shotgun and be ready for business. Trouble is anticipated between the two men when the case comes up tomorrow morning.

The city council is in a perpetual state of sitting now. It began as a board of equalization this morning, but every once in a while adjourned and took up some matter of public interest. At the meeting last evening Mr. Webster read a communication from A. W. Jansen in which he offered to carry the $13,000 paving bonds of district No 2, due June 1 last, and $31,000 of districts 3,5 and 6, due July 1, 1893, for six months longer at the rate of 9 per cent per annum. There also a $1,470 interest claim for carrying bonds due him at present. Webster said he had conversed with a number of local financiers and had been assured that there was no possibility of getting money with which to pay these bonds, and therefore recommended that it be adopted. Considerable discussion was had on the proposition, and it was finally left open. At the meeting this morning it was accepted and the claim for back interest allowed. Jansen carried bonds last year for 8 per cent.

LEONARD'S LUCK.

Fortune Smiled and Then Frowned on a Chicagoan.

James C. Leonard hails from Chicago, but that did not prevent his learning something after he got to Omaha. He arrived yesterday and inscribed his autograph on the register at the Paxton, after which he got along very well until he drifted into Oerter's gambling house on Douglas street, where he became speculative, and almost before he knew it had won $125 at the fare table.

Not satisfied to stop at that he tried his hand at stud poker. The venture was disastrous, for when he rose from the table he was $425 loser and dead broke. He then did what was the most natural thing in the world under the circumstances-repented of his folly and quit gambling.

Yesterday morning his wife arrived, but whether it was due to that or some other reason can not be told, for Leonard went to the police station and swore out a warrant for the proprietors of the place, charging them with gambling and keeping a gambling house. He did not sign his own name, but hooked on to the complaint the autograph of a mysterious individual named Howard and let it go at that. That the unlucky Chicagoan did not prose cute because of a sudden conviction of the immorality and lilegality of the act of the gamblers was shown by the fact that he first visited the gambling house and demanded his money back, threatening to have the gamblers arrested unless they promptly shelled out. They refused to shell, hence the arrest. And now Mr. "Howard" is confronted with the unpleasant fact that he has himself violated the gam-bling law, and is guilty on one of the charges that he has brought against the men who are now eating off his money. He has about concluded that it would have been cheaper to have stayed at home and lived on World's fair sandwiches, even at Midway plaisance

Weather Making Under Difficulties. Captain Hunt of the weather bureau not only energetic and practical, but he always tries to be right up to the times. In fixing up the new headquarters for the weather office in the top story of the McCague building he has hit upon a neat plan of furnishing light for the instrument box which has to be visited durinstrument box which has to be visited dur-inst the night by the observer in order to keep a correct record of the temperature and the barometric pressure. Heretofore the observer has been obliged to carry a lantern out on the roof in taking the readings of the instruments, but the box is now provided with an incandescent light, which will be a great convenience

In locating the weather vans Captain Hunt found some difficulty to get at the exact meridian owing to the presence of so much iron on top of the building. The compass was badiy queered by the metal. It was found necessary to station a civil engineer at the First Presbyterian church, two blocks west of the McCarach building two blocks west of the McCague building and with the assistance of a compa-s located there the weather vane on top of the McCague building was turned to and clamped on the true east and west line.

School Census for 1891 and 1892. OMAHA, July 12 .- To the Editor of THE BEE: In your editorial in your issue of the 10th, regarding the inconsistencies of the school census, in speaking particularly of the Eighth ward, you say, "It is highly probable that the figures for 1891 and 1892 run too low." Permit me to say that the census of the years named was correct. Each residence was visited, without a single failure. More than 100 dwellings were empty and they must have been created. failure. More than 100 dwellings were empty and they must have been crowded full of children since the census of 1892 to bring the figures given for 1893.

Atter an Ex-Inspector Ex-Sidewalk Inspector J. M. Wilson has incurred the wrath of the powers that be, and he will be called into court to explain why he has openly fractured a city ordi-

The trouble arises from the construction of permanent sidewalks on Chicago street, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth. The exmapector changed the walk in front of his premises without the sanction of the city engineer, which is a direct violation of existing ordinances, and Mr. Rosewater promises that he will be prosecuted unless he complies with the law. Mr. Wilson is obdurate and will right the case, so he says.

While Debany was narrating this cause for his horrible crime, he worked himself into a frenzy and gesticulated wildly, and at the climax of his partially incoherent story he illustrated his crime by stepping up to the bars of the jail, thro ving his hand behind his back and with a spasmodic jerk leveling an imaginary pistol, while his eyes gleamed with the fire of a devil. He denied emphatically being intoxicated on the occasion of the commission of the crime, alleging that he was perfectly sober, but that he that he was perfectly sober, but that he couldn't stand having his wife's relatives and neighbors urging his wife on to trying to make him deed away his farm to her.

HALL COUNTY'S FINANCES.

Report of an Expert Accountant on the Situation.

GRAND ISLAND, July 12 .- [Special Telegram o THE BEE.]-Expert Accountant Fawlie, who was engaged by the County Board of Supervisors to examine into the records of the county for the past ten years, made a report today to the board on two terms of ex Treasurer Hooper, from 1884 to 1888. He reports that there is a shortage of $1,719.41 in the state and county funds. There is an additional shortage in the amount of fees turned over though the exact smount of fees turned over though the exact smount of this will depend greatly upon the legal con-struction of an action of the county board during that term. Hooper, in the last year of his term, applied for additional clerk hire and the board granted his request. By law he was allowed $2,700 for deputy and clerk hire. If the action of the board permits the use of money over $2,700 for fees in that year there will not be so much of a shortage. Hooper's reputation for honesty has never been questioned and but few, if any, believe the shortage to be fraudulent.

FREAKS OF LIGHTNING.

Taking Photographs, Magnetizing Iron and Playing Other Pranks. The Etruscans of old believed in three cinds of lightning-one incapable of doing any injury, another more mis-chievous in its character, and consequently only to be issued with the conent of a quorum of twelve gods, and a third carrying mischief in its train, and for which a regular decree was required from the highest divinities in the Etruscan skies. Curiously enough, modern scientists, following the lead taken by Arago, have also decreed that the varieties of lightning are threefold. The first comprehends that in which the discharge appears like a long luminous line bent into angles and zigzags, and varying in complexion from white to blue, purple or red. This kind is known as forked lightning, because it sometimes divides in two or more branches before reaching the earth. The second differs from the first in the range of surface over which the flash is diffused. From this circumstance the discharge is designated sheet lightning. The third class differs so widely from the more ordinary manifestations that many meteorologists have denied their right to be treated as legitimate lightnings. They neither assume the form of long lines on the one hand nor sheets of flame on the other, but exhibit themselves as balls or globular lumps of fire. A very singular story is told concerning the vagaries of one mass of globe lightning. A tailor in the Rue St. Jaques, in the neighborhood of the Val le Grace, was getting his dinner one lay during a thunder storm, when he heard a loud clap, and soon the chimneyboard fell down, and a globe of fire as big as a child's head came out quietly and moved slowly about the room at a small height above the floor. The spectator, in conversation afterward with M. Rabbinet, of the Academie des Sciences, said it looked like a good sized kitten rolled up into a ball and moving without showing its paws. It was bright and shining, yet he feit no sensation of heat. The globe came near his feet out, by moving them aside, he avoided the contact. After trying several excursions in different directions it rose vertically to the height of his headwhich he threw back to prevent it touching him-steered toward a hole in the chimney above the mantelpiece, and made its way into the flue. Shortly afterward—"when I supposed it had had time to reach the top, tailor said—there was a terrible explo-sion, which destroyed the upper part of the chimney, and threw the fragments onto the roofs of some adjoining build-ings, which they broke through." In the forest of Nemours a tree was once struck. Two pieces were rent from its trunk. The smaller was tossed to a distance of fifty feet, and the larger, which eighteen men could not move, to a dis-tance of twenty feet or so in an opposite track. In 1838 the topgallant mast of H. M. S. Rodney was hit by a flash, and literally cut up into chips, the sea being strewn with the fragments, as if the carpenters had been sweeping their shav-ings overboard. Shortly before the top-masts of H. M. S. Hyacinthe had suf-fered in a similar manner, and when the Thetis underwent a like visitation in Rio harbor Captain Fitzroy described the foretopmast as "a mere collection of These are a few of the examples of the mechanical effects of lightning. It works chemically as well. It has the power of developing a peculiar odor, which has been variously compared to that of phosphorus, nitrous gas, and most frequently shurning sulphur. Wafen mentions a storm on the Isthmus of Darien which diffused such a sulphurous stench through the atmosphere that he and his marauding companions could scarcely breathe, particularly when they plunged into the wood. The magnetic effects produced are often very curious. A chest containing a large assortment of knives, forks and other cutlery was, not many years ago, struck in the house of a Wakefield tradesman, and magnet-ism imparted to the whole of the articles. Arago, in his "Meteorological" Essays," speaks of a shoemaker in Swadia whose tools were thus treated, to his indescribable annoyance. "He had to be constantly freeing his hammer, pincers and knife from his nails. needles and awls, which are constantly getting caught by them as they lay to-gether on the bench." The same authority knew of a Genoese ship which was wrecked near Algiers in consequence of some pranks played by lightning among the compasses, the captain innocently supposing that he was sailing toward the north, when, as a matter of fact, he was steering due south. Subterranean thunders have occasionally been heard preparatory to an aerial eruption. The sea has cast up volumes of water, as if volcances were exploding below. The ground has burst open, and floods of water have gushed forth from the sides of hills or from fissures in the rocks. Taking another class of effects, cures have been performed by lightning—gouty men have been enabled to walk freely, epileptic persons have been healed, amaurosis has been removed, and rheumatism dispelled by a flash. But one dare not look too closely into the subject of medical electricity nor venture to recommend any one to tempt lightning in the hope of experiencing its curative effects.

Katharine Bates, who wrote "A Year in the Great Republic," thinks that the idea of "tipping" servants in America with gloves instead of money is a very good scheme. Killed by Ice Water. Cases of death from drinking ice water when one is overheated have been reported. Great care should be taken in regard to this matter says the New York Ledger. The craving for cold water when the heat is great and a person has been exerting himself is sometimes absolutely irresistible. But the craving should be but sparingly indulged. In fact, it would be better at such times not to drink very cold water at all. Water of only moderate coolness would be a great deal better. Dom Casa, a South American, Suicides at an Omaha Hotel.

DESPONDENCY OVER FINANCIAL MATTERS

Evidently a Gentleman of Rank in Brazil-He sold Jewelry in America-Filled a Pauper's Grave-Took a Dose of Morphine.

A man supposed to be Dom C. D. Casa of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, South America, committed suicide in the Millard hotel some time Tuesday evening. His body was discovered just before midnight. It is said that the body and effects were sent to the morgue at once and the matter kept quiet until morning. On the corner of the table in the room where Casa was found was a note which contained the following unsigned statement: "To the Coroner: No inquest is necessary. I took morphine.

"I have no relatives or friends in this country to notify of my demise. 1 beg forgiveness of all I may have wronged, and heartily I forgive those who have injured

"I beg that you dispose of me as quickly as possible. "May God have pity on me and save my soul. Amen."

The above was written on both sides of a small card and the writing denoted a scholar. The card was enclosed in a small white envelope, on the back of which was: "R. M. Manafield, Memphis, Tenn," A card case containing a gold and silken emblem of religious indulgence, or probation, dated 1877, was enclosed in a small paper on which was in one of his pockets was found an invoice of personal effects which had been deposited with the "G. S. D. Co.," but the name of the city where the goods are located does not appear on the invoice. The goods are valued at $968. He also had a captain's check, showing a first-class passage from China to this country.

Waited for a Remittance. The man came here from Chicago on July 7. He said he had been visiting the World's fair and would stop in Omaha to await a remittance from friends. The man has been a guest at the Millard since coming to Omaha, but never spoke of his domestic affairs or relatives. He is between 50 and 55 years of age and from some remarks he made a day or two ago, it is thought that he is a jewelry salesman for some feeeign concern. He was always well dressed here and was evidently a gentleman of some rank in his own country. He did not get the remittances he expected and for a few days has been morose and despondent. This is probably the cause of the man's desperate deed. After learning the particulars of the man's death Coroner Maul directed that the remains be interred in Forest Lawn cemetery in a pauper's lot. There is no way of knowing where the man belonged or what is his true name, as he destroyed all papers of recognition. He probably overlooked the marking on his linen. The coroner has telegraphed to the safety deposit companies in San Francisco, asking if they have any such articles as described in the invoice and if they know anything about the man. He has also telegraphed the Brazilian commissioner at the World's fair bing if he knows Casa. No yet been received.

Stranger to Poverty. From conversation with people who have met Casa since arrival in Omaha, it would seem that the man had traveled extensively and met many foreigners of prominence. He has evidently seen better days and was unused to poverty.

The articles mentioned in the safety deposit invoice are all expensive and he could have raised considerable money on them had he so desired. Nothing of value was found in his effects and the remains will rest in an unmarked grave in the potter's field unless friends get trace of him and learn of his death.

Mr. Kaley's Statement.

County Attorney Kaley has shied his castor into the ring and declares that instead of shirking and slighting the duties of the office, he has administered the affairs in good shape and has made a record that outshines any that was ever made by any of his predecessors.

As proof of this he points to the court records, claiming that during the May term of court 1893, in the criminal division there were sixty-nine convictions, as against thirty-eight in 1892, when Mr. Mahoney had charge of the criminal business.

Mr. Kaley denies that Judge Keysor has ever called him upon the carpet and read him lectures, though he says that he and the court have differed upon some important facts which have entered into the trial of some of the criminal causes. Regarding his troubles with the county commissi attorney says that with one exception the members have always a ceoted his opinions as good law. The case was the one against the National Bank of Commerce. In that matter, Mr. Kales states that he advised the board; that his advice was rejected, but that in the end the courts held as he had needicted that they would be advised to the courts held as he had predicted that they would.

In his open letter the county attorney de-clares that the commissioners have been giving him the worst of the deal, and in sup priving him the worst of the deal, and in sup-port of the charge he shows that they fur-nished Mr. Mahoney an office, the services of a stenographer, telephone and other office equipments. In his case he avers that all that the members of the board have done for him has been to turn over a box of pens, a few lead pencils and a gross of cum strings. a few lead pencils and a gross of gum strings

With guns and clubs the law-abiding residents started out Tuesday night and gathered an even dozen of the mangy curs to their fathers. So far this season this section of the city has been boycotted by the dog catcher, and purely for the purpose of self-protection the citizens have become enforcers of the city laws.

IN TROUBLE AGAIN.

Ernest Gibson Accused of Having Obtained Cash Under False Preteuses.

Ernest Gibson is under arrest on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. The complaining witness is William Waibridge, who asserts that Gioson filmflammed him out of a dollar by representing that he (Gibson) was a state organizor for the Junior Order of United American Me-chanics and was authorized to solicit memberships and accept money therefor.

Waibridge swears that he was desirous of joining the order, and owing to the faise representation made to him by Gibson, allowed him to take in his name and pay over to him a dollar as a part of the initia tion fee required by the order. He also swears that Gibson's representations were wholly false, as he is not an organizer for the order, and is not now a member in good standing. Gibson had in his possession a standing. Gloson had in his possession a badge as officer at the athletic grounds of the Young Mens Christian association, which was taken charge of by Chief Seavey. Gibson has been in trouble several times before, but has always managed to get out of it without a conviction

SUMMER DISEASES.

What Causes Them, With a Few Hints for Their Certain Prevention-This is Valuable Information.

Cholera morbus and summer diarrhea occur principally during the summer and aufumn Cholera morbus is caused by improper food and sudden chilling of the body after exposand studen chilling of the body after exposure to great heat. Certain substances will produce it to certain persons, such for instance as yoal, raw milk taken with fish, or shell fish, and all dishes cooked with milk, such as rice pudding, cream puffs, and even loc cream when kept too long. Unripe or over-ripe fruit, especially if taken with large draughts of loc water, will cause it. Avoid becoming chilled during sleep. In a climate as changeable as ours this is an ever-present danger. Forsistent summer diarrhes it usually caused by malaria, sewer air or impure water. The knowledge of how to avoid or remedy these danger-cous complaints will save much suffering and avoid many a doctor's bill. Medical science tells us that the use of pure spirits, preferably whiskey, in moderation, is a sure safeguard against diseases of the kind mentioned. There is but one pure medicinal whiskey, and that is Duffy's Fure Mait. If it is taken regularly at this season it keeps the stomach it healthy condition, purifies the entire system and gives tone, strength and stimulus. It has been used for years by the American public, and is the most popular remedy of its kind in this land. It is true there are interested parties who try to sell other socalled whiskies when they are asked for Duffy's, but such people have an in terested motive that is not for your good. Do not be deceived, andinsist upon having just what you call for ure to great heat. Certain substances will
