REUNION OF BOYS IN BLUE

The National G. A. R. Encampment to Be Held at Indianapolis.

ACCOMMODATIONS FOR THE GREAT EVENT

A Call for New England Veterans-Admiral Harmony's Successor Good Indian Soldiers-"Old Glory" Abused -Soldier Duty.

Indianapolis is preparing a for the greatest event of her life, and for one of the greatest in the social annals of municipalities in this country. The occasion on which she is to give the world an idea of her hospitality, energy and wealth is the twenty-seventh annual national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, which will convene September 4. The management of the complex and intricate arrangements for entertaining the hundreds of thousands who are, expected has been committed to a citizens' organization of 3,000 persons, including leading men from outside cities and towns. The various committees are working industriously and earnestly upon the lines devised for the systematic prosecution of the arrangements. All seem to take an individual interest in making the event surpass anything previously accomplished of its kind.

To the thousands at a distance whose eyes are turned to Indianapolis for the second week in September the question of what will be the railroad fare is of the first importance. The executive board has announced that the railroads have agreed to charge 1 cent per mile each way, which makes the rate less than one fare for the round trip, a rate never before secured for the Grand Army encampments, and one very rarely given for any purpose, previous encampment ever he rate announced so early, thus giving those who will attend unusual time to make all preparations. This rate is only to Indianapolis, and does not extend to the city of the World's fair. But the managers of the fair realize that the encampment being held so near to Chicago will help to swell the attendance there during September, and have begun to make arrangements for a special attraction to the veterans at the fair after the close of the encampment. With the numerous competing lines between this city and Chicago, the rate to Chicago will, no doubt, be especially advantageous, even lower than I cent a mile. The program provides a week of bustling activity and gorgeous entertainment. The crowds are expected to begin to arrive during the preceding week, when the Naval Veterans' association will hold its annual encampment. The reception of arriving guests has been placed in charge of a committee headed by Brigadier General James R. Ross of the state militia. Special details of the local companies in uniform will go out to meet incoming trains and prepare the visiting veterans to dismount and be quickly escorted to their lodging places. Hundreds of trains are expected to arrive on Sunday and Monday, but so complete are the arrangements for handling the crowd that it is believed no confu-sion will result. The railroads are making ready new stations, and new depots for the baggage are under way. The amount of baggage that must be cared for at such a time is almost past compre-

The first encamment contemplated will occur on Monday hight, when the electrical and natural gas display will be made in the grounds of the state e made in the grou house and court house. The visitors will be enabled to see a natural gas well in full blast with all its magnificent roal and force, and then the ethereal motor having performed one service, will be The gas will be liberated under water and will burn as it rises, giving a very novel effect. The electrical display will be one of great brilliance. While this is going on for the pleasure of all who care to witness it, the veterans will be holding camp fires in various places in halls and tents, and many will hear the eloquent voices of soldier orators,

including General Harrison.

A New Roster Wanted. To all honorably discharged soldiers and sailors enlisted from the New England states during the war for the union, 1861

Greeting: The last roster of the Ne braska Association of New England Vet-eran Soldiers and Sailors was issued in 1889. Since then some have left the state, others Since then some have left the state, others have settled in it, and possibly some have died. It was proposed at the reunion in 1892 at Grand Island to issue a new roster, but we have not been able to do this for want of "completed files."

I am satisfied that there are quite a large number of such veterans now residents the state whose names have never been on the roster at all, and in behalf of the asso-ciation I ask all those to whom this is addressed to send me their present address on a postal card, regardless of previous registration, stating the number of their reg-iment, the letter of the company, the name of the state, the arm of service, if in the navy the name of the vessel, and in all cases the place of enlistment. Please do this at once in order that we may get the data to make a new, complete and accurate roster.

The friends of any soldier or sailor that has died in this state since 1889 and whose name was on the roster of that year, will confer a favor by sending to me a memorandum of the residence at the time of such death, the date of the same, and the age of

Secretary of Nebraska Association New England Veteran Soidiers and Sailors, Garrison, Butler county, Neb.

Nebraska papers please copy. Approved: Church Hows, President. Another Champion for Nebraska. Shelton, Neb., Aug 1.—To the Editor of The Bee: Dear Sir—in your article in the Bee issue of July 30, referring to the con-test to take place at Indianapolis September 6 during the National encampment by the old veterans, I learned Nebraska only had old veterans, I learned Nebraska only had one man so far who had entered for the contest. I at once forwarded my name, and Nebraska will surely have two.

I enlisted in company i, Sixty-third regiment Illinois infantry December 1, 1861, served continuously until July 13, 1865, when I received my discharge, having served three years, seven months and thirteen days. I answered all the roll calls, and was in camp and on the margh with the boys when not on the picket line or other duty. in camp and on the march with the boys when not on the picket line or other duty. I was never absent from my regiment on account of sickness, and iny name is not on the roll of pensioners. I am now in my forty-ninth year, was raised a farmer, and have been in the business wholly since the war. I have lived on the farm I now own in Buffalo county since the spring of 1873. My regiment formerly belonged to the division Buffalo county since the spring of 1872. My regiment formerly belonged to the division commanded by the late General John A Logan. After the capture of Vicksburg I was assigned to the First brigade, Third division, Fifteenth army corps, commanded by John A. Logan, to the end of the war. I belong to the Union Veteran legion as well as to the Grand Army of the Republic. I have always voted the republican ticket and will continue to do so for various reasons, which for the sake of brevity I will not mention. Proof of my physical condition will be known September 6.

A Reunion at Greenwood. A reunion of the eastern division of the Grand Army of the Republic in Cass, Sarpy and Lancaster counties is to be held in the beautiful park at Green-wood, Neb., on August 22, and will con-tinue four days. The first day will be under the auspices of the old settlers and has been designated Old Settlers day. Judge Maxweil will honor the occasion with an oration on this day. The second day will be devoted to labor of the Woman's Relief Corps and to school The third and fourth days the old soldiers will be turned loose and the day will be given over to campfire speeches, var songs, etc. Besides Judge Maxwell, among the prominent persons who will deliver adresses are Hon. Church Howe, Captain Henry and General Dilworth. A sham battle will take place each night, naval engagements, and also the capture of Vicksburg will be reproduced. A boarding tent will be in connection with the reunion. Booth privileges will be in charge of Ira Tinkham, secretary, Greenwood, Neb.

Rear Admiral Weaver By the retirement of Rear Admiral D. P. Harmony, Commodore Aaron Ward Weaver becomes rear admiral. Admiral Harmony was recently detached from command of the Asiatic station and on his arrival in this country was placed on the retired list. Admiral Weaver was born at Washington city, July 1, 1832, and on May 10, 1848, he was appointed a midshipman from Ohio. He was graduated from the naval academy in 1854. After the usual routine in various ships in the seas where American naval vessels then sailed he entered on very active service at the beginning of the civil war and at its close was made commander in recognition of his services. He served in turn under Flag Officers Farragut, Porter, Dupont, Rowan, Stringham, Dahlgren and Geldsborough and in every part of the widely extended field of naval war-

He was a lieutenant on board the Susquehanna at the bombardment and cap-ture of the forts at Hatteras inlet and at Port Royal, S. C., and commanded the wooden gunboat Chippewa at the first bat-tle of Fort Fisher and the monitor Mahopac at the last battle and capture of that fort. He was also present in command of this monitor when the forts in front of Charleston were evacuated by the confederates and taken possession of by the federals. He was ordered at once to the James and arrived in time to take part in the closing events at Richmond. He participated in many minor engagements and was a lieutenant on the Susquehanna when the batteries at Sewall's Point, Va., were bombarded. His services on fresh water were almost equally meritorious. He commanded the Winona under Farragut on the lower Mississippi and was especially commended by the great admiral for his repulse of the enemy at Donaldsonville, La. He also received warm commendation and was recommended for promo-tion by Admiral Porter. Since the civil war he has commanded in turn the double turreted ironclad Terror, the ironclad Dictator and the frigate Brooklyn. He commanded the Norfolk navy yard three years and left there last Jan uary to take the presidency of the naval examining board. Dating from his first appointment, he has been in the naval service forty-five years and for the last twenty-six has had his residence at Georgetown, D. C.

Another View of Indian Soldiers.

"Yes, the Indian makes a good soldier," was the reply of Lieutenant Seay to a reporter who made a query as to the efficiency of his company, which is the Indian company of Twenty-first infantry, stationed at Fort Sidney, Neb. This is one of the five Indian companies of the Department of the Platte and is given an excellent reputation for soldierly qualities by Mr.

"It is not yet two years," continued he, "since the organization of the company. I attended to the enlistment in heads. ole the men taken were all young fellows from 18 to 20 years of age. They show great adaptability to circumstances and possess in an unusual degree that quality which is so requisite in an armyprompt, unhesitating obedience Whether they would prove as tractable if harshly trested I can't say, for I always use them well, the result being a desire to excel in drill that in less than two years has made my company the equal in many respects of the majority of white companies formed entirely from the raw material and with the same time of service to their credit. "They are Brule Sioux, a tribe that makes better soldiers than any other, I believe, because of their long ancestry of warriors. They are natural fighters and like nothing better than practising the various evolutions required of them. They learn readily everything almost but arithmetic. A display of the penmanship of some of my clerks would surprise you. With a very little practice they have acquired a degree of skill really amazing to one unacquainted with their capabilities in this line. "I know it is quite fashionable among army circles and in a less degree in newspapers to say that the Indian makes a poor soldier, that he can't learn the drill or won't, that he is lazy, shiftless and improvident, but I have found the contrary to be the case. The men in my company are anything but lazy. Their clothing and accoutrements they keep in perfect condition and as for improvi dence, I may say that they every month send to their homes a considerable portion of their earnings. Lieutenant Seay expressed the belief that with proper handling Indians could be made the most effective frontier troops. A suggestion that they might not take kindly to the idea of going to battle with their kinsmen brought an emphatic denial from the army officer, who quoted Sitting Bull's capture and killing by Sioux and the arrest of the Indians last winter in Dakota for the kitting of a cowboy. He said that obedience to a superior was the first tenet of their belief.

Punished for Disrespect.

News comes from Norfolk, Va. which, being corroborated by offi-cial orders promulgated under the directions of the secretary of the navy, cannot be doubted, and which exhibits the patriotic spirit inculcated in the United States navy in regard to showing the proper respect to our flag.

The story is about as follows:

loseph Hooper, master-at-arms of the United States cruiser Charleston, has been disrated, court-martialed and dis-honorably discharged from the naval service of the United States for disrespect to the American flag. While the Charleston was at the Norfolk Navy yard undergoing repairs. Lieutenant Fields, the executive officer, ordered the gun crews to clean and lubricate their guns. One of the quarter gunners being without cleaning gear went to the master-at-arms for some, and bringing out the "lucky bag" the master-at-arms gave the quarter gunner an old obsolete American flag, which, in some mysterious way, had been gathered in by "jimmy legs."

With "Old Glory" the gunner was making great progress at his work. Lieutenant Fields was on deck and as he kept his eye searching about the deck for some shirking blue jacket his inquiring glances were arrested by some attraction at one of the guns. Walking over to the gunner the executive in-quired when and how he came into possession of the national ensign, and did he not know better than to put the unblemished starry flag to such use.

The quarter-gunner, trembling from head to foot, told in faltering speech how he had procured the flag. Hooper, the master-at-arms, was summoned to the mast and with the ship's company at muster was disrated in disgrace Charges were preferred against him and he was transferred to another vessel where he was court martialed and sentenced to dishonorable discharge. Hooper had made a cruise on the Iroquois as a fireman and had served an enlist in Company C of the First United States infantry under the name of Mitchell.

The Soldier's Life.

Guard cuty is about the hardest service in the army, and to this the soldier is eligible about one day in every six or seven. Two roll calls a day, reveille and retreat (tattoo has been done away with, but in its place has been substituted a check roll call at 11 p. m.), if a cavalry-man stables twice a day, drills usually two or three times a week and dress parade every evening, weather permitting. Target practice is held during two months at the best seasons of the year, when enlisted men and officers alike qualify at the different ranges for the grades of marksman and sharpshooter, As a general rule those companies of any regiment serving west of the Mississippi river are supplied with two shotguns each and a certain allowance of powder, shells, wads and shot, which are intended for hunting purposes. man in any company, whenever he feels so inclined, if not detailed on some duty, can amuse himself by knocking over jack rabbits, bagging sage hens, quail and prairie chickens galore, or missing as many shots as he wants to.

Tours of detached service are simply pienies, and no man would stay in a garrison if he had half a chance to get out and off over the prairie for detached service of any kind. We catch all sorts of material for soldiers—the beer drinking Teuton, the bull dog Englishman, the fun loving Irishman and, in fact, all nationalities and all climes. They come to us as bright as meteors and as verdant as unripe cucumbers, but no matter how ignorant or green a recruit may be at the time of joining he usually leaves the army well satisfied with his five years of discipline and experience, and also a fine marksman in the bargain. In our service the training of a soldier to be a fine shot is the principal object, while, as a rule, most European armies neglect this important adjunct of a military man's career, depending more on numbers and volley firing than on individual skill. As for the commissioned officer, he is as hard worked as the private soldier. I know the general impression is that the commissioned branch have a good, easy time of it, with nothing to do but play cards and draw their pay. As a matter of fact, more than nine-tenths of the officers in the army today fairly earn every cent of their pay, and more, too.

There is one drill practiced by a cavalry troop which is not only useful and instructive but also decidedly in-teresting to witness. Out on the prairie have been crected numerous posts the height of an ordinary man from his feet up to the shoulders. A number of large leathern balls the size of a man's head and filled with straw are placed on the posts before drill commences. Now the troopers are hauled up in line and each individual is set to work ting off the various leathern heads from the posts. When a man's turn comes to draw his saber, the command is given and away he goes at a mad dash down upon the enemy, cutting off the first head with a down stroke, and the next one with a back sweep, and the third is slashed on the crown or decapitated in some way. The drill also includes firing blank charges with a revolver at the

A MODEL MANAGER.

Stories Illustrating the Kindness of a Lamented Railroad Man. Since the death of W. S. Mellen, late general manager of the Northern Pacific read, his friends are exchanging reminiscences illustrative of his ability as an official and of his largeness of heart and kindness of disposition as a man. One of the most conspicuous traits in Mr. Mellen's character, says the Chicago Post, was his sympathy fyr those in subordinate positions, his readiness to listen to their complaints and to make a personal investigation, as well as to afford redress wherever he found there were just grounds for dissatisfaction with their circumstances. With many of the employes of the road, even with those holding menial positions, he was personally acquainted, and took a kindly interest in their welfare. At the same he exacted from them all faithful service for the road and none of them could hope to escape the consequences of duty neglected on account of his personal intimacy with general manager. He was not in the habit of standing on ceremony with this class. The door of his office was usually open for those who had complaints to make or favors to ask, and none could ever say that he did not listen patiently to the one or grant the other where it could be done without detriment to the service. Indeed, he seemed to take a particular delight in doing kind things o those under him, but he always did them in such a quiet, unostentatious way that none but the actual recipient of the favor ever knew that it had been conferred. On one occasion a switchman in the yards at St. Paul had a very sick wife and had no one to attend to her wants while she was ill. There was a rush of business at the time and a dearth of competent hands. The switchman re-ferred to applied for leave of absence for a few days that he might nurse his wife, but was peremptorily refused by the yardmaster, who curtly informed him that if he absented him-self from work he would be discharged and another engaged in his stead. That very night the man's wife had a serious relapse, and when the next morning arrived it did not appear that she would. survive through the day. The man could not leave her. An hour or two passed after the time he should nave reported for work, and then a message arrived from the yardmaster ordering him to report immediately for duty, and renewing the threat that if he did not instant dismissal would follow. The man refused to leave his suffering wife. He stayed by her until he had nursed her through the crisis and back to where she was able to attend to herself again. Then he reported at the yards, but was told that his place had been filled and that there was no vacancy for him. Having heard of the general manager's sympathy for the suffering he betook himself to Mr. Mellen's office and asked for an inter-

"The general manager is very busy and cannot be disturbed," said the private secretary of whom the request was made

"Well, seeing I am not in much of a hurry myself today," replied the discharged man, "I believe I will wait till he is at leisure."

"What is the nature of your business? Is there no one else who could attend to it?" "No, I believe not. I would rather talk to the 'old man' myself."

Just then the door leading to the gen eral manager's private office opened and Mr. Mellen himself appeared in the opening. Casting a hurried glance around, his eye fell on the unfortunate switchman.

"What is it, my man?" he asked. "Did you want to speak to me?" "Yes. I should like to have a word with you if you are at leisure.

"Come right in, then. Now, what is the trouble?" The man told his story as best he could. Mr. Mellen listened attentively till he got through and then said abruptly:

"Report here again tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. That is all I can say now."
And with that he pressed an electric button which brought the private secretary into the office. Send a messenger to Yardmaster - morrow morning at 9 o'clock. If that man who has just gone out returns at that time admit him at once." Nine o'clock next morning found both yardmaster and switchman at the office and tell him to report at this office to-

of the general manager and they were admitted without any ado. "This man says he was discharged be cause he stayed at home to nurse his sick wife," the general manager said on seeing them, addressing himself to the yardmaster. "Is that so?"

"Yes, that is so. He absented himself contrary to express orders and at a time when his absence caused great inconvenience." 'Did you take pains to inquire if his wife was in the condition he describes? "No. I did not doubt his word about that. I had no reason to suppose she wasn't sick."

"Well, let this man be reinstated at once. Pay him for the time he was absent and remember in future no employe of this road may be discharged for absence occasioned by the sickness of himself or any member of his family. Both of you go back to your work." On another occasion Mr. Mellen was passing while a gang of yardmen were getting paid off. With one of these, a ing over the money.

"Oh, come now, Mike: you would not be mean enough to make your wife keep

"And what's the matter with her

"Not as long as there's a breath in me body. Mike Flaherty's not that kind of a man, he isn't." "Well, here, Mike, take this to the treasurer's office. Get a reply and take it to your wife with my compliments and best wishes for her and your happiness."

On the slip of paper handed the yardman were the words: "Pay bearer $10, which charge to my account. "W. S. MELLEN." Mr. Mellen had a habit of calling on employes who were sick and not able work. On one occasion he learned that a locomotive engineer had been ill for some time and was feeling extremely blue over his circumstances. He called to see him, sat by his becside and talked to him cheeringly for a considerable time and then rose to go. Before departing he leaned over the bed, took the sick man by the hand and shook it warmly. When he released his grasp a roll of bills of considerable size had been transferred from the general manager's hand to that of the sick em-It was in ways like these that Mr. Mellen won for himself the esteem of his

CHEAP AND ROMANTIC. A Formidable Bill of Expenses Would Be

Avoided by Runaway Marriages. A staid and in all respects well regulated American citizen, who has long since sowed his wild oats, and who is the father of a large and attractive family of daughters, was heard by a New York Sun man not long ago to in accents fierce that Gretna Green was a great institution, and that there ought to be one in every state and country. When one recalls the old picture of an irate father galloping at a breakneck pace to the Scottish border and demolishing his whip and his vocabulary in the pursuit of the unhappy runaways, the American citizen seems to have found a new point of view. He has. It is economy. There is no room in the mind of the New York paterfamilias for jests on the subject of matrimony. A city wedding is an expensive luxury, as the following figures must explain This is not a scale of prices for such affairs as the Bradley Martin-Craven wedding, but it is a schedule suitable for the daughter of a well-to-do banker or broker. If the family belong to the church selected for the wedding the use of the edifice is given free, but the sexton and assistants expect liberal fees for their time and trouble. The sexton gets, perhaps, $25, the first assistant $15 and the second $10. These fees are paid by the bride's parents, of course. The awning generally means another $25. The organist is on the qui vive for the same amount or, if he is a well known player, he would look askance at less than twice that amount.

About $200 will furnish modest floral decorations, though in many cases the sum runs up into the thousands. policemen at the door who manage the crowd expect a fee of $5 apiece. riages cost at the rate of $5 each, and of course only two fluffy bridesmaids can be put into one carriage. Therefore six bridesmaids, one maid of honor and six ushers will, as it were, trample $35 of papa's money under their horses hoofs. The groom furnishes his own carriage. He also pays the clergyman, provides the bride's bouquet and gives souvenirs to the ushers. The reception following the ceremony inaugurates another drain on the parental exchequer. There will be $500 or so for floral decorations, $50 for the orchestra, while the caterer will charge fully for the "spread," with additional charges for wine.

All this is entirely aside from the cost of the trousseau and the farewell lunchcons and so on which precede the wedding proper. No wonder that a shrewd business man would prefer to spend a few hours from the office in fruitless chase of the fugitive lovers and, if need be, lose horse, whip and a whole vocabu-lary in the affair. It would be much cheaper.

Busy people have no time, and sensible Busy people have no time, and sensible people have no inclination to use pills that make them sick a day for every dose they take. They have learned that the use of De Witt's Little Early Risers does not interfere with their nealth by causing nauseapain or griping. These little pills are perfect in action and result, regulating the atomach and bowels so that headaches, dizziness and lassitude are prevented. They cleanse the blood, clear the complexion and one up the system. Lots of health in one up the system. Lots of health in these little fellows.
