BETTER CROP CONDITIONS

Last Week Made a Very Decided Change in the Situation.

GOOD REPORTS FROM OVER NEBRASKA

Only a Few Counties in Which the Conditions for a Boundiful Harvest Are Not Excellent What the State Weather Bulletin Says.

The Nebraska weather terop bulletin for the week ending August 15 has been issued by Captain George E. Hunt, director of the United States weather bureau at Omaha.

Good rains have fallen in many sections of Nebraska since a great number of the following weekly reports were mailed, and the prospects are favorable for showers through-out the state again. Reports are generally favorable from the southeast section, except in Butler and Polk counties, where drouth and winter wheat has been sown and fall plow-ing is progressing slowly. In the northeast section reports are all favorable, ex-cept in Dodge county, where in some localities corn is badly fired. Rains have greatly benefited crops in the greater portion of the western section. The late potato crop is very promising; oats generally turning out below the average yield; pastures improved and soil in good condition for fall plowing, with prospects good for a large acreage of winter wheat being sown. Wheat threshing continues with little change from former estimates as to yield. In Kearney county it ranges from eight to thirty-nine bushels per acre, ports are generally unfavorable from entral siction, except Buffalo county, where a good corn crop is already assured. All other counties in this section were suffering for rain, which, no doubt, they have had by Southeast Section. Butler County-Corn is suffering for rain ground too dry for plowing; frequent showers, but not of any benefit; considerable damage by native grasshoppers.

Fillmore County—Weather of past week has been very favorable to all growing crops; the prespect for corn continues excellent.

Jefferson County—The outlook is poor for all crops.

Nemaha County—The eastern part of the county had good rains which was very beneficial to corn and potatoes.

Pwanee County—The dry weather of the past week has injured corn somewhat.

Polk County—The drouth has greatly damaged corn. Potatoes are about dried up.

York County—A light shower on the 12th, thich was beneficial to potatoes and which was beneficial to potatoes meadows, also to wheat already sown. Northeast Section. Antelope County—Corn will be a corp. Pasture is short. Wild hay light. Cuming County—Stacking about finished Threshing commenced and it is generally believed oats are lighter than expected Wheat about average. Corn continues favorable for a little above the average Douge County-Corn badly fired in some localities; must have rain soon to save crop. Central Section.

Buffalo County-The showers of the past week have assured a good crop of corn; small grain all handled. Merrick County-Rain very much needed; corn seriously damaged in some localities. Weather very hot.

Wheeler County-Very dry and warm. Corn has suffered very much from drouth on high ground; hay will yield half crop. West Section. Furnas County. - Rains of past week very beneficial to corn; fate potatoes will be a good crop; grass much improved; oats below average yield Fall plowing commenced with prospect of a large amount of winter Wheat being sown. 2 Kearney County-Winter wheat threshing out at a very great range from eight to thirty-nine bushels per acre. Oats are bet-ter than estimated; corn safe for an average crop; potatoes also have a wide range and ow promise two-thirds crop or better. Red Willow County—Corn is very good most section, while in others it is badly fired. Webster County—Corn drying up very fast, n some localities it cannot possibly make half crop if we get rain. WHAT WILL THE HARVEST BE?

Lack of Rain and Pienty ot Grasshoppers Promise a Short Crop for Hillinois Springfield, Ill., Aug. 15 .- The crop re port shows that the rainfall during the past week was badly distributed, and in sections where the rain did not fall much corn is reorted injured beyond redemption.

Grasshoppers in some of the northern and entral counties are doing much damage. It will be a short crop. Wayne county reports cattle, horses and hogs dying from anthrax. Iowa's Crop Outlook. DES MOINES, Aug. 15 .- The crop report states that showers have been abundant in others. In the greater part of the state there is still promise of an average crop of The damage to potatoes is irreparable. The threshing yield shows oats, 50 to 65 per cent of the average; wheat, 11 bushels to the acre, much of it light weight. Winter some sections of the state and deficient in

SIMPLY LEGAL ROBBERY.

A Scandal Develops Over Fees Charged by a United States Marshat. Indianapolis, Aug. 15.—A special examiner will be asked to come here from Washington and make an investigation of the fee system in force in the office of the United States marshal. Silas P. Jones, the deputy in the office, because his conscience hurt him, as he said, makes public the fact that the office has for years been juggling with the fees to which it is entitled under the law Under the last three marshals it is believed the custom of the office has been to collect three lines of fees allowed for the transportation of prisoners-10 cents a mile for the prisoner, 10 cents a mile for the deputy marshal and 10 cents a mile for the guard. It is not often found necessary to take a guard along and in order to receive pay from the government for the services of a guard some outsider is asked to sign the return as a guard. The brakeman on the train carrying the prisoner is usually asked to perform that service and for his services he is paid from 50 cents to $1. By this proceeding the marshal is able to make a fee of $14.50 every time a prisoner is transported to Michigan

The law allows the marshal to have five bailiffs here during the session of the court. It has been the custom in the marshal's office to write down the names of five employes of the office as bailiffs, and it is often the case that the office has drawn pay for men who did not render any service in a bailiff's capacity. The statement that deputies in the office, in addition to serving as bailiffs, have drawn money as witnesses, is emphatically denied in the office of the marshal. It is said by the government officials that the same system is followed in the United States marshal's offices all over the country. Attorneys say the practice should be broken.

Buchanan, the wife murderer, who was yesterday sentenced to be electrocuted he first week in October, was convicted last March of poisoning his second wife in order to secure her money. In many respects the case was similar to that of thirty-four years ago in Halifax, N. S. He began life as a clerk in a drug store He turned to the study of medicine, went to Chicago and was graduated there in 1883. He returned to prac tice in Halifax, and married Annie Bryce Patterson, the daughter of a respectable family. Then he went to Edinburgh to further study medicine and returned to practice in New York city in 1886. He obtained a divorce twenty years his senior and the keeper get control of her fortune. He neglife began to tell her friends that she would soon die, although she was in perfect health. The woman began to get hysterical on account of Buchanan's ill treatment and a doctor was called. The latter prescribed chloral, and Buchanan administered the medicine. He gave her several doses, but she died after one of them. It was subsequently dis-covered that he had given her morphine. Three or four weeks after his wife's death he remarried his first wife and they were about to go to Europe when Buchanan was arrested.

Prodigious Destructive Power Claimed by Turpin for His New Gun, M. Turpin, the inventor of melinite, is naturally very reticent on the subject of the new engine of destruction which has planned. A correspondent of the London Telegraph had a brief conversation with him in the small house at Colombes, to which he has removed from his large villa near the railway station of the same township, and he said it was not his intention to give any information about the formidable weapon to the public, as his secret is reserved for the French government. He did not, however, deny that some of what had already leaked out as to the nature and capa bilities of the weapon was true. The public has already had a short account of the alleged destructive powers of the gun, and to this may now be added some startling statements just made on the subject by the inventor M. Turpin goes as far as to say that the figures already given as to four discharges in a quarter of an hour, each belching 25,000 projectiles, only represent a minimum. believes that his gun could, in fact, be brought to such a pitch of perfection as to enable those using it to sweep several army corps off a field of battle as by a gust of wind. M. Turpin remarks that people have already referred to him as being insane, owing to his incredible schemes. Judging from his appearance, he is the last person whom one would suppose to be afflicted with a tendency to lunacy. He is a middlesized, stoutish, florid-featured man about 40, the picture of health, notwithstanding his recent prison experie nces, and he speaks with all the sincerity and calmness of one not given to enthusiasm or exaggeration. He is, therefore, the more easily able to impress those with whom he converses even when he says that his gun will do a hundred times more damage than heavy siege ordnance, that fortifications will be of no avail against it, and that pronclads will be rendered absolutely useless through its effects. As to the principle on which the terrible weapon works, M. Turpin says that it has an electrical basis, and is of the utmost simplicity. His secret, as he emphatically reiterates, when spoken to about the matter, will only be divulged to his own government, and under certain conditions. These are that a committee of officers should be appointed to try the experiments with him on a secluded headland on the Finisterre coast, with a cordon of troops around in order to keep back the inquisitive. As to taking out a patent, he means to do nothing of the sort, as his secret might thus be communicated to a German, Englishman, Italian, or, as the inventer expresses it, an Armstrong quelconque. His melinite is now used in every country from Germany to Japan, and he does not want his gun to become in the from his wife and seventeen days later same way the common property of married Anna B. Southerland, a woman nations. These are the latest statements extracted from M. Turpin, but, as of a disorderly house in Newark. The will be seen, they only refer at some-woman had $25,000. Horses and chariots will not drag any more from him, and unless the government agrees to his conditions he may keep his secret to himself.

VICTORIA'S REIGN.

No Other Sovereign Has Come Near it for The New Haven Palladium has this to say of the three sovereigns who have remained longest on the throne of Great Britain than any English sovereign except her grandfather, George III., who reigned ifty-nine years and ninety-seven days. few days ago she passed the period of Henry III., who reigned fifty-six years and twenty-nine days. In one respect she has exceeded the records of either of those kings, for they were both in sane for several years while they were on the throne. All conservative Englishmen hope the queen will yet live many years, for they dread what may come after her. She is likely to be the next to the last sovereign of Great

Neither Henry III. nor George III. can be rightfully said to have ruled or reigned so long as Victoria. Her grandfather, crazy more or less of the time after he had driven the American colonies into rebellion, was seized in 1810 with his final attack, and during the remaining ten years of his insanity (which lasted as long as his life) his son, the dissolute "first gentleman in Europe," ruled as regent, becoming in 1820 George IV. His father's reign did not really last for a longer period than forty-nine years-for a lunatic is not properly a king. As to Henry III., born in 1206, ten years must be taken out of his long and wretched nominal reign; for he was called to the throne when a child of 11 years. • A coward and notorious liar, like his father, King John, he was forced, like that despicable fellow, to yield to the forces in arms that his misrule had evoked. As his father by compulsion signed Magna Charta (1215), so his weak son, forty-three years later, agreed to the transfer of his power to the barons. A few years later, when events, not his own force of character, had seemed to restore him to the throne, he was again beaten, by his relative, Simon de Montfort, and compelled to agree to even more humiliating conditions. To call such a person's life a royal reign may not be to discredit the average run of British royalty, from John to George IV., for no excess of vice or meanness could well discredit much of it; but it is the fair and just distinction of Queen Victoria that her reign has not only been a virtuous and clean one—conspicuously in contrast with that of many have reigned in England—but it has been, in reality, longer than that of any of her predecessors. Whether she is or not to be placed in history as "the next to the last sovereign of Great Britain' is a question that time has not yet de-The prediction may not improbably be verified by the fact.

Making Confederate Money

A very curious industry was estab-lished in 1861 in New York city and lasted to the end of the war. It was the manufacture of confederate money. A regular business was done in this, re markable as it may seem. A man who has twice been in congress since the war from a northern district made a fortune out of the stuff. It could not be told from the genuine, the only difference being that the northern article was rather better than that made in the south. Plantations were purchased with it, and one of the finest places in Mississippi was bought and paid for in confederate currency that people who used it only about $1,200 in

INTERNATIONAL PEACE CONGRESS MEETS

Gathering of Delegates from All the Prin cipal Nations of the Earth to Urge that Arbitration Take the Place of International Strife.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15 .- The nations of the earth declared peace last night in the hall of Washington, and in peetry and prose pronounced against carnage and the inhumanity of war. It was the International Congress of Arbitration and Peace which had called together delegates from all parts of the globe. Many eminent advocates of the cause espoused were present, and among those occupying seats on the platform were: Rev. Dr. W. Evans Darby, London; Robert Treat Payne, Boston; Mr. Hung and his interpreter, China; Josiah Quincy, Washington: Hezekiah Butterworth, Beston; Mme. Wissinger, Austria; Dr. Adolph Richter, Germany; Prince Mamalu Massaguoi, Africa; Mrs Belva Leckwood and V. Z. Eggio, Royal Italian commissioner. After Dr. Bonney had formally welcomed them all, Thomas B. Bryan, chairman of the committee on organization of the congress, called attention to the fact that all of the principal nations were represented. Subsequently the general secretary, B. F. Trueblood of Boston, introduced a number of the delegates from other countries, who made appropriate responses to the words of Hezekiah Butterworth of Boston read an ode entitled, "The White City by the Lake," which was listened to with close attention, and heartily applauded. The chief event of the evening was the address of Hon. Josiah Quincy, secretary of state and president of the congress, which covered a large field of information upon the financial expense of war and the beneficial results of arbitration in the settlement of international disputes. public opinion, under the formative influence of the press, had become a concrete and intelligent thing and the best thought of the world was making itself felt against all international warfare. If the congress now in session could in any measure promote amicable sentiments, it would deserve to be called a success. America, occupying a position of absolute security, was the most striking historical example of the peaceful influence of a great nation. It was fortunate for the world that so large a part of the North American continent was under one government. The reasons for America's peaceful inclinations were many. Chief among them was the subordination of individual ambitions in an atmosphere of democratic principles. Another important reason was that the supreme court in its constitution bears a close analogy to an international court—the ideal of the peace movement. He cited statistics showing that America had only one soldier to each 2.640 citizens, against one soldier to each eighty in Germany, and one to sixty-eight in France. After speaking comparatively of the cost of war preparations in several countries, he said: "In the last twenty-five years, this country, either through the president or one of its foreign ministers, has successfully acted as arbitrator in seven cases of differences other powers. Within the last century the United States has in thirty-three in stances made agreements with other powers, nine of them being with Great Britain, for the settlement of disputed questions through some form of arbitration. The present year has added to the list another conspicuous instance of successful arbitration between the same nations. By the public attention which it has attracted, the eminence of the counsel who have appeared before it, the novelty and importance of the questions of international law to be desided, and of the whole character of the proceedings, the Bering sea tribunal
