City Officials Discuss Various Plans for Disposal of Bonds.

MAY PLACE THEM ON THE LOCAL MARKET

Officials Consider the Advisability of Issuing the Long Time Bonds in Small Denominations and Selling Them at Rome-Some Opinions.

The proposition to place the long and short time bonds of the city remaining unsold on private sale for thirty days seems to meet with approval at the hands of city officials. The scheme is to issue the bonds in small denominations of $100 or less and permit the citizens who have buried their savings to invest them. It is estimated that with the money that is hidden away and has been withdrawn from the banks that all of the bonds could be floated. The investment is undoubtedly as safe as any that could be made, and as the bonds bear 5 per cent it would prove a paying one.

It is necessary that the long time bonds be floated. If they are not but little public work will be done. The sewer contractors have proceeded with their work with an unflerstanding with the officials that in case the bonds did not sell the council would provide funds to pay for the work to date and have it properly laid aside until the bonds can be floated. No bids on the sewer bonds were received. It was expected that some of the contractors would bid, and their failure to do so may mean that they cannot handle the bonds. In case they will not accept the bonds in payment for the work and it is impossible to sell them the work on the main sewers will cease and they will be banked up and permitted to lay until such a time as the money market will warrant the floating of the bonds.

With the paving men it is different. Hugh Murphy has bid in the intersection bonds for the districts he has under contract and will go ahead. The Barber and John Grant Asphalt companies will take bends for whatever contracts they secure. The final ordinances have been passed on twenty two ordinances have been passed on twenty two streets and they will undoubtedly be paved. Of this number six will be paved with stone, eight with apshalt and eight with brick. The eight brick districts are not provided for the contractors on that ma-terial not submitting bids. Unanimity of Sentiment.

The following expressions of officials of the city on the proposition to place the bonds on private sale reflects the sentiment generally existing.

Mayor Bemis—I regard it as the proper step. While it would have been better to have been able to float the bonds in the east and add that much to our circulating me-dium in Omana, yet as that is impossible our own people should come to the rescue and get the thousands of dollars hoarded away into circulation by purchasing the bonds.

Treasurer Bollo—I believe the proposition is a good one. We have a sufficient number of short time bonds in small denominations to accommodate the smaller purchasers. We ought to dispose of about $125,000 of the long time bonds. I believe 125 citizens of Omahs can be found who will invest $1,000 each. The money necessary to purchase bonds to the amount of four times what we have for sale is hearded away in this city. With more than $3,000,000 withdrawn from our banks surely there can be found enough to take the bonds. All of that money is lying idle and it is not in circulation.

City Attorney Connell—I believe that the council can give the treasurer full and legal power to place the bonds on private sale. The bonds can be issued in whatever de nominations desired.

City Engineer Rosewater-It is the proper thing to do. The investment is safe and people who are afraid of the banks will be perfectly secured. The bonds can be registered by the purchaser to guard against any possible loss and the money can only be Charman Winspear of the Board of Public Works—It is just what should be done, I know of one person who will take probably $1,000 worth of the bonds. I feel confident that if the press will bring the people to realize the gravity of the situation and im-press upon their minds that now is the time for the citizens with money hoarded away to come to the rescue of the city that all of the bonds can be disposed of at the private sale. Chairman Wheeler of the Finance Com-nittee—It seems to be the only resource we have left. I have not the greatest confidence In the bonds being sold in that way, but it would do no harm to make the effort. While the bonds are perfectly good and as safe an investment as man can make, yet the people are still imbued with that feeling of distrust that they have no confidence in anything. There is more money stored away than we require, and if we can impress the people with the idea of what a secure and safe investment the 5 per cent bonds would be per haps we can induce them to purchase. Councilman Steel says he will present to the council this evening a resolution author izing the city treasurer to place the long time bonds on private sale. Mr. Steel regards the investment as very good. He says that as soon as confidence is restored Omaha scrip will again bring its premium of from 5 to 8 per cent and those who have invested at par will reap the profit.

Finance Committee's Action.

Councilmen Wheeler and Steel of the ance committee, City Attorney Connell, ty Treasurer Bolln; Comptroller Olsen and Chairman Winspear of the Board of Works met yesterday afternoon to discuss the bond proposition.

All of the gentlemen were in favor of placing the unsold bonds at private sale and making every effort possible to induce the people of this city to take them at par. The gentlemen urged that such a step should meet with success. A lorg-time bond of the city bearing 5 per cent is a security at the present time not to be sneered at. ssue of long-time bonds of the city sold at a premium of over 8 per cent. The opinion was expressed that inside of six menths or one year the bonds will again command a premium equally as good as formerly, if not better. A person investing in a $1,000 bond would realize the 5 per cent interest and 7 or 8 per cent premium if the bond was sold one year. This would be a clear interest of 12 or 13 per cent on the investment.

It was ascertained that the city has an obligation of $8,000 on the main sewer that will have to be cared for from some fund until the bonds are disposed of. The con-clusion was reached that the treasurer be authorized to place the bonds at private sale, and a resolution to be presented to the council to that effect was prepared. The sewer contractors will be permitted to proceed with the work until the experiment of discretized of Omaha purchasers is tested. If it is a success the work will go on. If not, there seems to be no remedy except to bring the work to a standstill until funds can be provided. This was the opinion of the gentledisposing of the bonds in small amounts to

There is at hand the always reliable evidence of the largest and best of the daily newspapers, which are upon the exchange list of this office. Wherever the Adam Forepaugh shows have ex-hibited thus far this season the news-papers of this class, as well as the smaller nes, express an astounding unanimity in their praises of the Adam Forepaugh shows. Judging from the tone of these papers, in which may be placed implicit confidence, the Adam Forepaugh shows are not only the largest and best of tented exhibitions, but with the enormous addition made to them of the scenes and battles of 1776—the American revolution—they are simply unparal-leled in their extent and in their merit, while the actually waterproof tents, the prohibition of all sorts of peddling, gambling and every manner of offenses to law and good taste and the compulsorily correct and gentlemanly deportment of all attaches, place the Adam Forepaugh shows absolutely beyond criticism. The regular meeting of the city council last evening was adjourned as a mark of respect to Councilman Prince, whose father died during the day.

Previous to adjournment the members adopted a resolution directing the city treasurer to offer for sale any unsold 5 per cent bonds of the city in sums of $100 or more to suit purchasers and instructing the comptroller to prepare the necessary bonds. SAME OLD CHESTNUT.

Holdups Continue and the Robbers Make

Their Escape. Another daring holdup took place at a late hour Monday night. The scene was near Thirtieth and Cuming streets, and Ed Moran, the well known representative of an eastern printing house, was the victim. Mr. Moran had just alighted from a Cuming street car and started for his home a short distance away.

The car was hardly beyond hailing distance when Mr. Moran was confronted by two burly fellows, who demanded in commanding tones a deliverance of his wealth. The demand was backed up by an univ pair of revolvers and resist. revolvers and ance was not to be considered at such a crit ical moment. He quietly forked over his pocketbook containing quite a sum of money and with admonitions from the highwaymer to move on and keep the affair out of the newspapers under penalty of instant death Mr. Moran wended his way home. Yester day morning he found his pocketbook near the place where the holdup occurred. It had been rifled of its contents and one lone nickel was all that was left.

MOTOR ACCIDENT.

Conductor Northrup Feil from His Car and Was Badty Injured. While attempting to pass from the motor to the trailer yesterday forenoon Conductor Northrup slipped and fell just as his train, on the Hanscom park line, passed Jackson street. He struck his head on the side of the trailer, knocking him under the wheels Probably his presence of mind saved him from losing both legs. As it was one wheel passed over his left leg before the train ould be stopped.

The limb is badly injured and the man is considerably bruised up. He was placed on a stretcher and taken to his home, 1320 North Eighteenth street, in the patrol wagon. Dr. Somers was called and di-everything possible for the injured man Unless he has suffered internal injuries he will pull through all right and possibly may not lose his leg.

Kicking Against Kent. For some time there have been murmurs of discontent in the ranks of the city's street department force against what are claimed to be the high-handed and unusual methods of General Foreman Kent, who has charge of the street work. These murmurs grew into rumblings, and may now be confidenty expected to wax into roars within the next few days.

Mr. Kent's subordinates claim that for the purpose of ousting union men and also to provide places for his friends he has been extremely exacting and arbitrary, at times insisting on an amount of work from one gang or another that was wholly beyond human power to accomplish and giving them less than half a chance to accomplish it.

Scheme for the Survivors.

A E. Hutchinson, stationer of the Union Pacific, whose office suffered among the first in the reduction in employes, has a scheme which he hopes will prove acceptable with the remaining members of his force. He proposes to give each of the employes re-maining in the stationer's department a two weeks vacation without pay, with the hope that this reduction will materially cut down the expenses of his department. The headman continues to ply his trade at Union Pacific headquarters with cheerful regularity these August days, eight men having received their time checks in Claim Agent Hancock's office on Saturday.

Warrant Served on Ward.

"Dr." Joseph D. Ward, alias Peyson, was brought down from the county jail at 10 clock yesterday morning, and the warrant charging him with murder in the first degree was read to him by Detective Dempsey.
Later on County Attorney Kaley called
Ward up to the judge's desk and read the complaint sworn to by Chief Haze of the detective force. Ward pleaded not guilty and his trial was set for next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The prisoner looks rather worn and confinement is no doubt telling on him. Beyond pleading not guilty he had nothing to say, and after a short private talk with his attorney was taken back to the county jail.

INQUEST ON RUSSELL.

Coroner's Investigation of the Death of the English Captain.

Coroner Maul held an inquest yesterday on the remains of Captain Vernon Russell, who was found in the river Monday night. J. F. Sweezy of the Brunswick testified to the habits of the deceased and said that he frequently went fishing. At times he acted peculiarly. The three young fishermen who went out in a boat and brought the body to shore all told the same story about seeing the corpse floating and towing it in. The brother of the dead man was expected in on a morning train, but as he had not arrived the jury adjourned until 2 p. m.

After the adjournment of the jury Coroner Maul, accompanied by the foreman of the jury and a reporter, visited the rooms re-cently occupied by the deceased and ex-amined his effects. The object was to see if the dead man had any amount of money in bank or any place, and to see if he had left any message of any kind.

A thorough search was made but no bank ook was found, and there was no money in the several wallets and pocketbooks found in the room. Several memorandum books showed that Captain Russell was a careful man as regarded his expenditures, for every little item of expense was noted. Other papers showed that the deceased had been at one time during his seven months residence here a solicitor for Webster & Howard, insurance agents. In a little pocket book which was found in a writing case was a pawn check which showed that on Thursday, August 10, the de-ceased had pawned at 1305 Douglas street a pair of gold cuff buttons and three gold shirt studs for $1.75. This discovery rather dis-sipated the idea that the captain had any money. Other papers proved his connection with the English many and showed where he had frequently sold his pay-to a Captain Middleton in London

Middleton in Loudon.

At the pawn such the goods put up were examined by the coroner and found to be solid gold, but very light, they were worth probably $10 or $12. The pawnbroker said that the man had pawned the same studs before and had always said that he was waiting for a remittance. When in there Thursday he appeared to be quite cheerful. Employes at the Bachelors quarters say that the captain was "funny!" he acted queerly at times and never wanted to be alled. He spent a great deal of time in his room. No one knew when he left his rooms Friday.

Mrs. L. Wolf said she was acquainted with the deceased and that she met him at the Brunswick hotel. He had told her of several of his fishing excursions to East Omaha and remarked that on one occasion he said that he had a arrow escape from being precipitated into the river by a caving bank. She thought it uite likely that Captain Russell had fallen nto the river accidentally.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict of "accidental drowning in the Missouri river." The deceased was a native of Hotland and was born in Amsterdam, November, 1806, At the age of 7 years he migrated to England and afterwards resided for some time in Ireland, where in 1841 he was made a Royal Arch Mason at Waterford. Soon after that e came to Boston, where he conducted usiness as optician for a nuc of years. During the war he held the con-tract to furnish field glasses for the army officers and the great war correspondent Carlton Coffin, made favorable mention of his name in several newspaper articles. The deceased was quite a writer on Masonry, and his writings in the Occident of New York attracted a great deal of attention. His tavorite pastime was also writing poetry.

MURRAY MOURNS.

Sad Because His Shacks Are Memories of the Past.

Thomas Murray wants Building Inspector Tilly, City Engineer Rosewater and Fire Chief Galligan to pay him the small sum of $66,800. Sylvia Hicks, a lady of color and a tenant of Mr. Murray, is also after some of the surplus cash those gentlemen possess, and she wants $2.046. The suit grows out of the condemnation of the Murray row of tumbled down shanties at Fourteenth and Jackson streets, and their subsequent demolition. The people of this city gazed at those rookeries for a number of years. Complaints were frequently entered that they were nuisances, fire traps and dangerous to the life and limb of the occupants. The three gentlemen from whom the plaintiffs seek to recover constitute the board for the inspection of buildings, and when these numerous complaints reached their ears they investigated and found them to be true. The reokeries were duly con-demned and ordered torn down. Mr. Murray was served with proper notices and given sufficient time in which to carry out the orders of the board. This he neglected to do, and Colonel Tilly, with a force of men, swooped down on the row one beautiful day last week and leveled the piles of decayed lumber to the ground, greatly to the chagrin and discomfort of the millionaire landlord, and Sylvia, the occupant of one of the shanties.

For these reasons they have rushed into the district court, and the defendants in the case are required to answer September 11. The case has been placed in Mr. Connell's hands, and he laughs to scorn the proposition to recover from the gentlemen sued.
