ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Press Eldridge, the "commander-in-chief of the army of fun," with Reeves & Palmer's

Cosmopolitan company, comes from an old theatrical family, his mother being "Aunt"

Louise Eldridge, a charming and widely popular woman, who has done more for char ity's sake than any other woman in the pro fession. Associated with Mr. Eldringe in this company are Rouclere, the marvelous equilibrist and finished fantaisist, the absolute master of his art; Mildred, a mind reader of extraordinary ability; Prof. Abt.

who will bring the World's fair to your doors, illustrating with dissolving views the greatest treasures of that wonderful exhibi wheel, and international attractions of the Midway plaisance; also reproducing in per-fect manner choicest gems from the gallery of art; Mary Stuart, queen of comedy, sing judged from a clipping from the Boston Herald, which reads: "To properly stage The Soudan' requires the handling of more scenery than is presented in any other one theatrical organization in America, and to say that this vast amount was well handled last evening is saying a good deal, yet such was the case. Enthusiasm ran high during the fourth act. During this act the great Trafalgar square scene occurs, when 300 persons gather to witness the return of the army." The first presentation of "The Soudan" in Omaha will be given this even-

Council Meetings in Profusion.

The city council will meet this evening in special session. The principal business to come before the session will be the ordinance

$25,000 of the amount in the sinking fund in bonds of the city. While this proceeding is not technically regular, the majority of the councilmen believe that the circumstances will warrant stretching a point or two in order that the public work may proceed. The bonds that will be acquired in this manner will be sewer bonds, and with $25,000 at hand the main sewer contract can be > A Fourteen-Inch Coal Vein Discovered in the Vicinity of Rawlins.

Border Justice Eccentricities-Colorado Sheepmen at War Again-Cost of Mining at Glipin-Doings Here and There.

Some immense coal deposits are reported to have been found very recently by Malachi

Dillon, agent of a Rawlins syndicate. The find was made about ten days ago, and since that time the parties interested in the syndicate have been engaged in preparing their papers preparatory to filing. All the preliminary arrangements have now been completed, the land has been filed on, and there no longer exists any necessity for secrecy. The most important of these coal veins opened by Mr. Dillon is just three miles west of town and one mile south of Cherokee Springs. He sunk a shaft on the hillside north of the Union Pacific track, and at a depth of about four feet ran across the first indications. At a gepth of twelve feet he encountered the coal vein, and it is an immense one-a solid bed of coal for fourteen feet between sandstone wall rocks. Mr. Dilion only opened this shaft sufficiently to learn to a certainty that he had the right vein and then another shaft was opened on the same vein on the south side of the track and about a quarter of a mile from the place where the vein was first discovered. Here the coal was encountered about six feet below the surface, of excel-lent quality, and fourteen solid feet of it. The vein dips from where it was first un-covered, about sixty or seventy-five yards from the track on the north side, passes down under the track and rises about lifteen or twenty feet above the tracks on the south side. Here is where the main opening will be made and it is admirably situated for loading out onto cars.

The coal in the vein is very hard. The outcropping, exposed to the elements for centuries, shows up very hard in large lumps, and does not crumble into dust. From this hardness of the surface coal it can be readily imagined that the coal fifty or 100 feet from the surface is of excellent quality. It is a brilliant black in color and Mr. Dillor considers it even superior to the coal taken from the old Dillon mine, and that is considered by many far superior in quality to any coal mined in Wyoming, both for domestic consumption and as a steam coal. It is the intention of the Dillon company to at once put a force of men to work and get everything in readiness for extensive operations in the early spring, or bossibly this fall. No coal will be mined this winter, the company considering the output from the old Dillon mine sufficient for the home trade.

made by two miners at Fort Fetterman in the 60's. As the tale goes, some time before the civil war a party of prospectors struck the Big Horn region, dismining operations by tunnelling. They had proceeded undisturbed for some time and had obtained considerable gold in nuggets, which they stored in baking powder cans, when they were surprised one day by a party of Indians, and all but two of the miners, who had secreted themsolves in the cabin, were massacred. These two, feeling that the Indian hostilities were too hot for them, deserted the camp and proceeded to Fort Fetterman, where they exhibited their

According to Carter his party had started out from Montana, visited many mining camps, and in pushing on finally reached the Big Horn mountains, where the subject of the Lost Cabin mine came up. One of the party, who had visited that section before, said he believed that if they reached a certain camping spot he could figure out the location of the lost mine. Though nearly famished and their horses in poor condition, they pushed on another day, The mine was not located that day, the 5th of August. With the exception of two men. Carter and his partner, the party gave up hope and suggested that they return. The next morning, Sunday, the party scp-arated, Carter and one other man only con-tinuing the search for the lost mine. After a few hours' travel Carter claims that in pushing through the thicket he came upon some logs about two feet above the ground. They were rotted, but still showed evidence of being used in the construction of a cabin. The building had been put up without the aid of axor hammer, as the trunks, branches, roots and all had been laid together. The door was constructed, not in the end or side of the cabin, but in one corner, by merely not bringing the side and end of the cabin together. There were no windows, and the roof, which had been formed of twigs and branches, had decayed and fallen in. The whole structure was completely covered by young trees, and it was by the merest acci-ent that the men came upon it. Having satisfied themselves that they had ound the cabin, they proceeded to look for the gold. Nothing can express their delight when, not many feet from the cabin, they found the tunnels, partly caved in and cov-ered with a heavy growth of brush. They collected a small quantity of the rock and collected a small quantity of the rock and proceeded without delay to Casper.

On reaching town they were in bad condition—hungry—horses and men, and without money. The rock was pounded in a mortar by Mr. Lilly, and three colors of gold were found—sufficient to arouse the curiosity of enterprising townsmen, and hence the organization to the party.

A report from the expedition is expected in about ten days. in about ten days.

It is said that "nothing is more uncertain than the decision of a petit jury," but the acts of the frontier courts will, many of them, beat a petit jury. In a recent case of highway robbery in South Dakota the money was identified by the victim and the prisoners duly bound over, when the attor-neys for the defense, seeing no chances for George Francis Train, the great apostle and medium of psychio science, will lecture at Boyd's theater on fext Monday evening on a variety of topics. "His principal subjects will most likely embrace the causes of the present financial situation, the World's fair and politics. Mr. Train also announces his intention of forming a excursion of 5,000 of Omaha's school effidren to the World's fair, and claims he has a scheme whereby the city of Omaha and the railroads will be induced to defray expenses. This will be Mr. Train's first appearance in Omaha since fees, moved that the money be returned to the parties from whom it was taken by the officers, and the justice granting the notion, it was transferred to the prisoners, thence to their attorneys, while the rightful owner of the money looked on in open-mouthed astonishment.

In the same court a juror was called out of the box in a cattle case and placed upon the stand as a witness, then ordered to again take his piace as a juror. A new discovery of a well defined ledge of iron pyritic ore was recently made in the vicinity of the old Greenwood mill on Box Elder creek in a gangue of talk slate, similar to that now being mined and milled at the Keystone property. In the new discovery, however, the slate is of a much finer texture, velvety to the touch and perfectly free from grit. The vein is reported to be fifty feet wide. Present workings consist of an open wide. Present workings consist of an oper-cut, tunnel and a drift across the vein Good prospects are obtained by pan and mortar tests, by which but a small per cent of the value is received. This discovery again illustrates how the old camps built up again limstrates how the old cambs out up in early days were prospected. At one time Greenwood, or Laffin as it was known, boasted of quite a large population. One of the finest and largest stamp mills in the country was erected on a prospect hole, which, after the mill was in operation proved to contain nothing of value. Some $500,000 was expended on the property before it was discovered to be a fraud of the first water. The mill, which was perfect in every respect, containing 230 stamps, burned down over a year ago. The investment proved a total loss to the original owners. A reliable and competent miner went out yesterday to examine and report on the new discovery. If proves to be as good as the samples it proves to and develop it, and Laffin may once more become a flourishing camp.

More Trouble with Sheepmen.

It is reported that war has broken out be tween the cattlemen and sheepmen; on the Mesa, north of Parachute, and that three cattlemen are killed and the sheepmen are senned up in a canon and fighting stub-bornly. The trouble arises over the attempt of the cattlemen to drive the sheepmen out of the country. Mr. Billeter, a well known sheepman, arrived from Parachute and reported that a party of about thirty armed and masked men appeared on the Mesa and the sheepmen put a rope around one man's neck and drove the balance of the herders and sheepmen out and warned them not to drive the sheep back into the country under penalty of death. Latera formidable band of sheep men started to drive the sheep back again The fight is supposed to be the result. A number of cattlemen came into Debque for arms and ammunition and reported the fight. Particulars are meager, as the scene of the Glipin's Stamp Mills.

The total number of stamps at work in Gilpin county equals 470, and the number not at work 187, making a general total of 657. The stamps and the mill sites, all the buildings, steam power, copper tables, etc. are estimated to cost $1,000 per stamp. The cost to keep these drills up in good order and to repair all portions as they wear out is $10 per stamp per year. This is a liberal esti-

There are 470 stamps now at work, and from 400 to 500 men at work under ground, on day and night shifts. These 500 men support a population of 4,000, and they take out the gold that does it. The wages of 500 men at $2.50 per day equals $1,500, and some who work under lease and contract make more. There is no outside money to speak of that goes into the camp, except a little now and then from some small sale of property. Once a mine is started up it must pay its way or quit, and very few of them quit.

There are 1,000 mines and locations, held nnder patents, as good as those now at work. The owners as a rule prefer to lease rather than sell, but they will do either or both. A system of tramways have been built that reaches a large number of the mines and will be extended and made to reach the other mines as fast as needed.

A New Breed of Sheep Robert Jones of Fort Steele, says the Rawlins Republican, is enthusiastic over a new bread of sheep which he and Richard Savage intend to introduce into this country The sheep are known as the Oxford Down breed, and Messrs Jones and Savage expect shortly to make a trip to Canada for the purpose of purchasing a car load, or about 150 head of thoroughbred bucks.

These sheep are very large, matured wetters, oft-times tipping the beam at 300 pounds-equal almost to three common westorn wethers. They are also very heavy shearers, and it is believed that with proper care and feed their clip in this country will this they are very prolific breeders, it being no uncommon thing for a ewe to produce three and four lambs in one season. the wool is rather long and coarse it is claimed that the outer ends mat together so that it keeps out the snow and enables the sheep to endure bitter cold winter weather.

Three years ago a farmer named Zienert living near Tyndall, stocked his artesian lake with German carp, since which time the fish have thrived and multiplied at a rapid rate. Some days ago the farmer noticed that the fish were dying off, and a day or two afterward the number was so great that he was obliged away by the wagon load. In about two days 8,900 pounds of dead carp were removed and hauled away. At that time the remaining fish seemed better, and though inactive and refusing to eat it is thought that not many more will die. It is believed that the number of fish was too great for the body of water and that the hot weather and evaporation caused the water in the lake to become impure, thus resulting in the death of the

The Jay Bird Group.

The Jay Bird mine, located on the south-ern slope of Breece hill, in the Leadville district, is again the object of attention. The groupe covers about thirty acres of patented ground and belongs to Dr. J. J. Crook. A careful examination of the property, says the Herald-Democrat, indicates that it is one of the best looking gold prospects in the camp. This section of Breece hill is practically barren of silver, but in many places veins of low grade gold ore are found in an immense porphyry dyke that has cut its way up through the different formations.

The Antioch is located on this dyke and treats by the milling process thousands of tons yearly, the average value being $5 per ton. The Jay Bird, in its older workings, shows are of like value. The mine, however, lacks milling facilities. Some months ago a new tunnel was started straight into the hill. It is now in about 200 feet and a vein of mineral has been met with. Should this respond favorably to tests under way Dr Crook will work the mine with a large force

A fine, clear flow has been struck in the artesian well at Northville, S. D., at a depth of 950 feet. The pressure is strong and a portion of the water will be utilized in running a flouring mill soon to be erected. The owners of the J. R. mine are said to have cleaned up 178 ounces and ten penny-weights of gold after a nine days run made a short time ago. They are now handling ore from a shaft which they have sunk to a

An important incident in connection with the drilling of the Bullock well at Belle Fourche is the cutting, at 280 feet, of a two-foot vein of apparently excellent bituminous coal. This discovery has attracted the attention of capitalists, and arrangements are now under way for a series of diamond-drill avestigations in order to fully determine the extent and quality of the deposit, and if the result is satisfactory, coal mining will soon room up at that point as an important in dustry.
