

LANSING AND LONG QUARREL

Lancaster County Judge Accused of Dishonesty by His Deputy.

RATHER QUEER COMBINATION AT LINCOLN

Why a Nebraska Colonel with His Years Experience in Office Lost His Position—Thought the Court Record Irregular.

LINCOLN, Sept. 1.—[Special to The Bee.]

The report to the effect that Judge Lansing had discharged his deputy, Colonel Long, because the latter presumed to be a candidate for the office to which the judge himself aspired for a second term is untrue. The real difficulty has leaked out. Yesterday afternoon there was a conference in the judge's private office, and the Board of County Commissioners, Judge Lansing and Colonel Long were the participants. A few days since it came to the ears of the county judge that Long, who had some time before circulated the announcement that he was a candidate, had further supplemented it with the sensational charge that Lansing was a defaulter and that he had not reported to the commissioners fees which he should have done. Yesterday Lansing discharged Long and demanded of him that he explain the charges to the commissioners.

Long charged in effect that Lansing had received fees in the shape of court costs from Harwood, Ames & Pettis which he had not accounted for and that he had also failed to account for fees received for the making of transcripts. Lansing explained the charges fully, and the commissioners retired apparently satisfied therewith. The judge stated that the law firm had a notice in his collection. They also owed considerable court costs. They accepted his note, and he received the court costs. Long, who has been in the office for six years, has always kept the books, was absent at the time, and Lansing had a clerk take a record of the cases in which costs had been satisfied to be Long when he returned. The clerk given-pled the paper, and forgot to give it to Long when he came back.

Later on Long presented a bill and sent it to Harwood, Ames & Pettis. It came a representative of the law firm and demanded to know what it meant. The colonel was astonished and asked if it was to be returned to him to take a copy of the receipt. He did so, as the lawyer says, for the announced purpose of giving credit on the books, but instead of doing so sprung it on the judge as evidence in support of his charge. Lansing contended also that Long's action in the transaction was not proper, and charged up, but the latter alleged differently. The opinion of the county attorney has been asked on this point and the matter dropped for the time. It is now being dropped out of a vice, fat job, and proposes giving his former chief a wrestle for the judgeship.

Broke Up the Family.

Mrs. Lillian K. Shilling left last night for the home of her parents in Boone county, Iowa. Behind the simple announcement is the story of a domestic tragedy that has just reached the light of publicity. Her husband, Al J. Shilling, was a member of the drug firm of Shilling Bros., leading business men, who were implicated in some of the state drug prosecutions. Mrs. Shilling was last winter. He had a very pretty wife, who was aware that she was very pretty. She liked the society of friends, and enjoyed it more than anything else. Some time in July she went to Chicago, and not returning when she had expected, she was sent after her. As the story goes they had a quarrel in which he struck and beat her and called her vile and opprobrious names. He returned without her, and sold out his business. The wife followed, and sought the advice of attorneys, she claiming that he had disposed of his business and was leaving her a pauper. She was violent in love, and she was violently in love with her. Finding it useless he swallowed a dose of poison, and only by superhuman efforts of the doctors was he saved. This act delayed the divorce proceedings for a time and the wife went to her parents' home in Perry, Ia. When she heard he had sold out his business, she came back to Lincoln, secured the household and shipping them to Iowa following last night here. Shilling is said to have gone to his home in Indiana.

Commissioner Eron today shipped 500 volumes of the report of the labor bureau of 1891-92 to the World's fair for distribution.

Jenkins W. Davis of Monroe, Neb., filed a diploma from Iowa State Normal school, by the medical board of the state at its next meeting on September 7. Dr. Davis desires to join the ranks of the profession in the state.

Notarial commissions were issued today to S. L. Webb of Beatrice, S. S. Smith of North Loup and R. T. Patton of Beatrice. Attorney E. M. Bartlett of Omaha secured an order from the supreme court today on Receiver McCrow of the American Savings bank to pay certain checks issued previous to the failure of the bank. The court ruled that the issue of checks was equal to setting aside that amount of money for the purpose, and that for this reason such checks were preferred credits.

From the Court House.

Judge Stride was engaged all morning in hearing arguments on the motion to dissolve the injunction secured by the Rock Island National bank to restrain the receiver from paying out money on the 10 per cent dividend on the decision was rendered until Monday. The bank claims $6,000 as a trust fund, the amount of a note sent the Capital National for collection, and the proceeds of which are among the assets of the bank. The main point involved was a question of jurisdiction, although it was also contended by the defense that the injunction was not valid, and was subject to the state court, which gives the remedy of injunction when the plaintiff believes that an act of the defendant may result in irreparable injury, and secured an injunction. During the hearing Mr. Lambertson asserted that the comptroller had reserved $50,000 to meet just such emergency as that which occurred. Mr. Barr didn't believe it, and sarcastically remarked that one United States officer, the bank examiner, had said Dick Outcalt had given security for all his indebtedness when he had done nothing of the sort.

The Lehigh National bank of Lehigh, Pa., was closed by the national bank of one of the Western Manufacturing company notes, which Mosher unloaded upon it.

Mary L. Warwick asked the court to compel her husband, Arthur, who is suing for divorce, to put up $100 now and $50 a month, as the claims to have helped build up the property he owns.

City in Brief.

George S. Slade and wife of North Lincoln were painfully but not seriously injured this morning in a runaway accident. While coming down to their home took fright at a cow and ran away. The horse was overturned, dragging the couple some distance.

Two years ago Mrs. J. A. Hawkins did some work for D. W. Miller and was to receive in payment a $100 tombstone, which she picked out. Frowfowler failed to put up the stone, and a week ago Mrs. Hawkins brought suit to recover for her labor. When Frowfowler heard of the suit being commenced he hustled around and got a tombstone put up on the lot. Dr. Miller, who is Mrs. Hawkins' father, refused to accept the stone as not being the one she had picked out.

Wedded Near Auburn.

Prof. H. B. Duncanson, professor of botany, geology and zoology of the State Normal school, and Miss Myrtle E. Ord were married at the bride's home last Wednesday evening near Auburn. The professor and his bride arrived in Peru yesterday evening and began life in the beautiful and well furnished residence of the professor on Normal avenue.

INTERVIEW WITH JOSEPH H. MILLARD

Predicts that Salaries Will Be Restored—No Receiver—An Interesting Talk on Subjects of Interest—Federation Plan Among Employes—Notes.

Yesterday was Joseph H. Millard's railroad day. Banking cares have so greatly occupied the attention of the president of the Omaha National bank in the past sixty days that he has not devoted any great amount of time to the condition of the Union Pacific, of which he is one of the prominent directors, but today he dropped his banking duties and talked to a representative of The Bee upon the affairs of the "Overland" system.

When asked about the funding bonds maturing yesterday, Mr. Millard said: "The twenty-year funding bonds falling due today have given the company considerable uneasiness, but their receipt will then realize their redemption has been provided for. I think the amount of those bonds is something like $5,000,000, bearing 8 per cent interest. Arrangements have been made to issue a new bond to those desiring to continue bondholding at a lower rate of interest, 6 per cent, but was originally attached to the old bonds.

"There are many persons who are satisfied with the condition of the road to invest their money in the company, and these the old bonds will be exchanged for new ones running I think for ten or fifteen years. But should the holders of the old bonds desire their money, the company is in a position to pay them the amount of their holdings.

"As to the condition of the finances of the company I am pleased to say that it is in a position to take care of present liabilities, and with the increased business soon to occur I see no reason for all the visionary talk going the rounds regarding a receivership. All that talk is purely mythical, as the company, while suffering like all western roads, is on a solid financial basis. Of course, the strictest economy must be practiced, the management must cut and save wherever possible and the road must be conducted very conservatively. With these missions of the immediate future accomplished, I have no hesitancy in predicting that brighter days are in store for the corporation. Of course, the road so much for Omaha and Nebraska, notwithstanding that the Ames, the Dillon and the pioneers in the building of the system, have been vilified and slandered by the people of this community.

"Suppose that there should be a strike on the entire system, and not a wheel be turned for thirty days, when they come to realize such a panic as never before, which goes to show that Omaha and the Union Pacific ought to have interests in common, because the Union Pacific is a road which has done Time was when Mr. Dillon imagined that the town on the other side of the river would become a great city, and he had a plan, but I am pleased to say that toward the close of that very busy life Mr. Dillon realized his mistake and gave Omaha all the credit she deserved.

"I have thought that the men working on schedule would accept a reduction?" "I cannot see why they should when they come to understand the situation. It is a well known fact that the Union Pacific pays better salaries than almost any other road, and naturally the men are satisfied with the wages they can get, but as a reduction temporary in its nature is imperative, I think they will see the wisdom of the situation and accept a reasonable reduction. I know how greatly the men at the head of the system hated to issue the order reducing salaries, but they were absolutely necessary, and the general order was issued. Of course salaries will be restored, but when, is entirely dependent upon the business of the company."

"The site for the new depot," remarked Mr. Millard, "should be at the foot of Farnam street and I believe all the ground necessary for depot purposes could be purchased for $300,000, possibly less. It would be nowhere near as much as people think and would be a lasting credit to the city. Of course the subject of a new depot has revived some of these days, when I hope it will be pushed to completion without embarrassing the city in any other matter. Times are considerably better now. I know the Union Pacific people are very hopeful over the outlook."

"I have a New Depot." Then Mr. Millard drifted to that most-covered subject, the Union depot, and was frank enough to state that the removal of the present accommodations provided for the public, but on account of the financial condition thought it was impossible to improve matters at present.

"I hope, however," said he, "with that rare smile which sometimes illumines his features, 'to live and let live' is the motto in Omaha, but unless they commence pretty soon I have my doubts about living to see its completion."

"The site for the new depot," remarked Mr. Millard, "should be at the foot of Farnam street and I believe all the ground necessary for depot purposes could be purchased for $300,000, possibly less. It would be nowhere near as much as people think and would be a lasting credit to the city. Of course the subject of a new depot has revived some of these days, when I hope it will be pushed to completion without embarrassing the city in any other matter. Times are considerably better now. HAVE NOT OBJECTED.

No Protest to the Proposed Wage Reduction on the Western and Milwaukee. Chicago, Sept. 1.—Today was the date set for the inauguration of the 10 per cent reduction in wages on the Rock Island, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and Washburn roads. All other lines reported that they had experienced no trouble, and in view of the vast number of unemployed on which the roads could draw in case of a strike they were expecting none. The friends of the matter is, however, that the roads have not made any such sweeping reductions as at first intended. This has as much to do with the absence of strikes as the numbers of idle men.

The Western Passenger association has decided on a one fare rate to Chicago and return from Nebraska, and the fare on points in Nebraska will be held September 10 and 11, good to return up to and including September 17.

The July statement of the Washburn road shows an increase of earnings over the same period of 1892 of $3,241. The total earnings for 1892 were $1,000,000, and the operating expenses were $97,213, an increase of $5,340 over the same period of last year.

Plan for Federation. The committee representing the several trades and organizations on the Union Pacific, after canvassing the situation among themselves, decided upon submitting three propositions to the men on the system which should be considered in their lodges. These propositions have the same idea in view, which the men would consent to a reduction and the per cent of reduction that would be acceptable to the rank and file.

The circular as prepared by the representatives of the engineers, trainmen, switchmen, conductors, telegraphers, federated machinery constructors, Knights of Labor and other federations went out to all the lodges on the system last Tuesday and yesterday, and the men were asked to consider in their lodges. The circular also contained a consideration in every lodge throughout the western country.

Secretary Gilliland, who has charge of the bureau of information, is withholding the circular from the press until Monday, when it will be given to the public, his design being to place a circular in the hands of every employe of the system before it is given to the press. As soon as the lodges have voted on the proposition Mr. Dickinson will be acquainted with the ultimatum prepared by the chairman of the several organizations.

CHRISTIAN CONFERENCE.

Last day of the Session Devoted to Sunday Schools.

Council Bluffs prefaced a solo with a few practical suggestions as to methods in the Sunday school room. The latter part of the morning session was devoted to an "experience" meeting as to the good that had been done by the convention, and the probable effect that it would have in the various church fields in the year to come.

Noon brought the end of the Sunday school convention, as the afternoon and evening will be devoted to the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, and the series of conventions will adjourn side die at the close of the evening session.

The plan followed this year has not proven the most brilliant kind of a success, and it will not be repeated. A number of the delegates who have attended former conventions were enthusiastic over it as an experiment, but the practical working has not been what they expected. It was thought that to get the delegates from all departments of church work together at one and the same time would be productive of the awakening of a great deal of interest, and that the expenses of the conventions would be reduced. The result has been, however, that the first convention on the list absorbed the interest as well as the bulk of the money, and the last ones on the program fared the worst.

To obviate this feature the convention work will be divided next year, the Missionary society, the Ministerial association and the Christian Women's Board of Missions holding their conventions jointly at Bethany, and the Sunday school convention and that of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor going to Fairfield, the latter being held August 29, and the time for the latter being changed to the last Tuesday in June.

The officers that have been elected by the various branches for the coming year are as follows: State Missionary Association—President, J. A. Beatty, professor Cotner university; first vice president, A. J. Hery, president Fairfield college; second vice president, H. P. Marfording, Lincoln.

Ministerial Association—President, W. T. Mauldin, North Bend; vice president, H. E. Crambie, Omaha; secretary, Theodore Christian Women's Board of Missions—President, Mrs. C. W. Henry, Lincoln; state organizer, Miss Annette Newcomer, Falls City; secretary, Miss Annie Clayton, Omaha; treasurer, Mrs. Nixon, Omaha.

Tired of Her Husband.

Rosetta Taylor is in the courts asking for the severing of the ties which bind her to her husband, Joe. She alleges that Joseph for more than two years has devoted his spare moments to knocking her down and then dragging her about the floor, and as things of this kind are not permitted by the code, she proposes to have a bill of divorce.

Chief Galligan says that the World-Herald is holding a Widow's Money.

Chief Galligan went on duty yesterday and about the first thing that caught his eye when he read The Bee was the complaint of Mrs. Cox about the nonpayment of money raised for her benefit.

Chief Galligan said: "All the money that I have collected has been turned into the fund except $25, and I guess I have got that." Here the chief pulled five big $20 gold pieces out of his clothes.

goods and possessions, was apprehended in Kansas City yesterday.

Yesterday The Bee told how Stelm obtained possession of the goods by promising Miss Bartels permanent employment as a cook. The articles were valued at $119.25. Detectives here learned they were shipped over the Missouri Pacific to Kansas City. Officers in that place were notified, and when Stelm called for the goods yesterday he was placed under arrest.

Detective Dempsey will go to Kansas City after Stelm today. The prisoner is given a name by the police.

Courtland Beach Gosple.

The Salvation army held a field day at the beach yesterday.

On Monday evening the Bicketts give their last serial performance at Courtland. The halloo will only make three more ascensions, one tonight and two tomorrow. Leavenmark continues his high dives each evening. He makes two dives on Sunday, and his last dive for the season takes place Monday evening.

Manager Griffiths enjoys hunting as much as he does a good meal. He remains at the beach quite often at night and goes hunting early the next morning. Yesterday he bagged a number of ducks, snipe and rail birds.

A large gathering is expected at Courtland beach tomorrow. The Union Pacific will run an excursion train to the beach from Grand Island. The Elkhorn will run one from Norfolk, while the Burlington expects a big crowd from Plattsmouth. The attractions for the visitors being ample.
