-A Furious Struggle. MADRID, Oct. 3 .- Dispatches received here today from Tangier give details of a desperate tight which has taken place between a large force of Moors and the Spanish troops who were engaged in erecting a new fort at Queretch, near Mellilla. The fight, as exclusively cabled to the

It is now anounced that the Moors engaged in the battle numbered 5,000 fighting men and that the Spaniards had only 300 troops to oppose them. The Spaniards throughout behaved with the greatest bravery and discipline, but were compelled to retreat when their ammunition was so far exhausted that only two or three rounds remained and they had to defend themselves with their bayonets against the charges of their Moorish enemies. The battle lasted from dawn until night and it was with the greatest difficulty the troops managed to beat through the lines of their enemies. In their retreat, however, the Spanish rescued the laborers who were employed upon the fortifications which were being erected. A picket of soldiers engaged in protecting the laborers at the works were for a long time in great danger of being massacred. The Moors surrounded them and repeatedly charged with the intention of not only builts the states. of not only killing the picket, but of massacring the laborers.

The Moors were armed with Winchester repeating rifles of a high class, and they used them with great effect. They fought with the fury of religious fanatics, pursuing the Spaniards to the high walls of the fort, and in the teeth of a fierce fire directed upon them from the upper works of the ramparts of Mellilla. From the ramparts a continu-ous fire from rapid firing guus was poured into the ranks of the pursuing Moors, their horsemen circled in clouds of dust around the retreating Spaniards, and their footmen dashed upon the Spaniards' ranks with all the rage and courage of the Moorish nature. oppose the Moorish horsemen the ought to be this much of honor in you, unless you rank beneath the thieves and politicians you mention. I desire simply to state the facts as to our interview and let a fair and discerning public judge who is playing the "despicable role." You sent me an urgent invitation to call at your office by a personal friend of mine, who added his personal request to the invitation; and when I called I sent in to to you my name written on that gentleman's card. This is the "voluntary" interview which you hastened to publish. I listened to what you had to say. I did not make the statement voluntarily or otherwise that I would support Maxwell in the Douglas county convention. I did not say to you that our Ninth ward delegation would vote in favor of instructing for Mr. Powell. I did not pretend or assume to speak for any other member of the delegation. PHILE. WINTER. W. Bowman & Co,; C. J. Carlson; F. S. The sufferings of the Spanish troops throughout that day of battle beneath a burning sun and without food or water are There is no disposition to crush Mr. Winter with a powerful paper. Mr. Winter's memory appears to be defective in several essential particulars. He may disclaim, but ZACHARY almost beyond comprehension. The Span-iards tried as much as possible to rescue their wounded from the Arabs, but the inferior he cannot truthfully deny that he informed Mr. Hutchison of the Ninth ward that he favored Maxwell and that at least two number of the Spanish troops prevented them from saving many a brave soldier, who, wounded, was killed unmercifully by the Wholesale RUBBER Goods. • TAYLOR Wounded, was killed unmercifully by the charging Arabs. The Moors would charge upon the small body of the Spanish, and, after killing a few of them, would whirl around and get, in most cases, out of range before any effective fire could be brought to bear upon them. The Spanish horsemen would dash after them in the most gallant manner, cut other, Maxwell delegates of the Ninth ward would vote with him for Maxwell. The ting right and left those they were able to catch up with. The guns of the forts were admirably handled and their fire wrought terrible havoc among the Moors, but the number of Moorish soldiers killed will possibly never be known, owing to the fact that the Moors carried off their dead and dying. The Spaniards destroyed the Arab villages on the heights. They also destroyed a num-ber of mosques and houses. After the Moors had retreated from be-neath the walls of the fort it was seen eighteen Spaniards had been killed and thirty-five, including two officers, had been

Surrounded by Fierce Enemies.

The Spanish troops are left in a very menviable position. They are surrounded unenviable position. They are surrounded by a force of Arabs, which is being increased and for the time, are very and pressed. A mounted messenger hard hard pressed. A mounted messenger sent to the coast has brought the news of the battle and of the gallant fight of the Spanish troops, and it is an-nounced that reinforcements of troops have been ordered to leave Malaga and Seville for the front. As this dispatch is sent the rein-formants are already leaving. Social and forcements are already leaving Spain, and before many days have passed the garrison at Mellilla will be in a position to take the offensive. At a cabinet meeting today the situation was discussed and it was decided to dis-patch a diplomatic note to the suitan of Morocco, whose authority is merely nominal over the desperate tribes of Arabs and Moorish horsemen, to protest against the action of the Moors and insist upon redress. In addition a Spanish war ship will be im-mediately sent to Tangler in order to support the diplomatic note referred to.

Ground Dropped Several Feet.

LONDON, Oct. 3 .- There has been an alarming subsidence of land under the village of Saltwood, near San Legate, two miles from Folkestone, Kent, where the subsidence of Boy took place. The ground has fallen soveral feet and it is feared the parish church will collapse. Many houses have already been damaged by the land fall. This sinking of the land upon which Salt-wood is built is said to be due to the drouth.

Governor Stone of Missourl next spoke for the state and accorded a most hearty welcome to the convention. In his remarks he referred to advantages possessed by St.

Louis and asked what necessity there was for going 1,500 miles farther east to trade. As to the charge that the convention was sectional in its ideas of commerce he held that the advancement of sections advanced the whole. Indeed the states from which the delegates came possessed patriotic peo-ple as did other parts of the 'country; none

The settlement of this matter admitted of the submission of the report of the com-mittee on permanent organization, the followmittee on permanent organization, the follow-ing names being announced as the selection of the committee for officers of the conven-tion: President, Governor L. D. Leweiling of Kansas; vice president M. E. Benton of Missouri; secretary, Olney Newell of Colo-rado; assistant secretaries, Samuel B. Cook of Missouri and W. H. Culp of Arkansas. Governor Waite of Colorado, Governor Stone of Missouri and S. H. Snyder of Kansas escorted the president to the chair. Governor Lewelling briefly thanked the convention, urging that the deliberations of the assemblage be carried on with care and caution, that the results desired might be accomplished without allocating those who would be friends. The convention was who would be friends. The convention was small in numbers, yet there were enough be-fore him, if guided properly, to set going principles and a work which shall ac-complish wonders. But he preferred to yield to those who, he felt, could speak better than he, and with that he presented Mrs. Mary E. Lease of Kansas, for whom he asked of the convention a hearing.

Entertained by Mrs. Lease.

Mrs. Lease, when the echoes of her greeting died away, opened with the declaration ing died away, opened with the occuration that a crisis was now on, more dangerous than that which confronted the American people in 1776. With that introduction, she proceeded to argue for the union of the west and south against the bondholders of the cast. As she stepped from the platform the warmth of the applause attested to the feel-
