H. D. Pugh and C. W. Cook, two young men from South Omaha, attended a dance Friday night at the corner of Broadway and Sixteenth street. There was a little too much liquor somewhere in the room, and they became so much intoxicated as to be unmanageable Officer Wratt, who was there to keep order, tried to quiet them, but Pugh struck him in the face. He thereupon arrested both of the disturbers, and in police court yesterday morning they were fined, Pugh $21.30 and Cook $10.80.

The Presbyterian church has been ful nearly every night the past week, and much interest has been manifested in the union revival meetings, which will close with tonight's services. This last meeting will be a jubilee and praise service, and evan gelists, pastors, workers and converts will all take part. It is expected to be the very best meeting of the series. Very much good has been accomplished by Evangelists Keables and Thompson in these meetings. About 150 cards have been signed by those who thus signify a willingness to lead Christian lives.

A Bargain.

Two gas stoves, lot small tables with tablecloths, 40 dozen triple plated Rodgers knives, forks and spoons, lot of dishes, all kinds to set, 120 plates; five sets hotel or restaurant silverware, 30 pieces, used in Masonic temple dance hall, for sale at a bargain. THE DAILY BEE NEWS FROM COUNCIL BLUFFS

How One Man's Obstinacy Hung a Jury for Twelve Hours.

GREAT FAULT OF THE PRESENT SYSTEM

Ino Much Power Vested in a Single Individual-Judge Macy's Opinion-Grimmetman Case an Illustration of its Evil Effects.

Joseph Miller, a member of the petit jury a the district court, will probably not serve on any more juries at the present term, or if he does he will be a great thorn in the flesh of some of his fellows. Last week he was a member of the jury that tried the $10,000 damage suit of D. E. H. Grammelman against the Union Pacific Railway company. Grimmelman was suing for damages on account of the death of his son, who received fatal injuries by falling into a vat of hot water in the round house. The sympathics of most of the jurymen were decidedly with Grimmelman when the case was given to them and they went out with the firm intention of giving the plaintiff at least a portion of the amount he was suing for. But Miller felt differently. For twelve hours he hung the jury and when they finally came to the conclusion that no verdict could be reached the came out and asked to be discharged by Judge Macy complied with their request.

Objected to Miller.

Soon after being discharged the eleven jurymen who had voted for Grimmelman got together and drew up a petition to Judge Macy, asking that they be not compelled to serve on any more juries with Miller. The objectionable juror refused to argue with them over the evidence, so they claimed, and sat apart during their deliberations as if he had his verdict cut and dried from the start and had no intention of changing it. They had no charge of criminality to make, and so Judge Macy did not feet called upon to make an official investigation. He would not agree to discriminate against Miller, but would not do anything to prevent the attorneys from doing so. Some of the attorneys took their cue promptly, and when Miller's name was called to sit on a case yesterday morning he was excused so quickly that his hair stood on end.

The affair excited considerable comment

among the attorneys, and although there is no way of proving that Miller had any improper reason for preferring to give a verdict in favor of the railway company the case is another illustration of the power one man can exert in trying a case.

"The legislature ought to change the law governing jury trials," remarked Judge Macy in talking of the case yesterday; "one nan ought not to have the power of saying that his side of the case shall have a diet or there will be no verdict at all. sixths of the jury should have the right to decide a case, and a rule of this sort would give each side justice and prevent a great deal of crookedness.

VALUE OF A POKER HAND,

One Place Where Three Eights Do Not Bent Two Jacks.

James Madden, a well known Bluffite, had a little experience in the poker room located at 516 Broadway Friday night, and the four men who were instrumental in giving it to him will have their share this week. The first instalment came yesterday. According to the story Madden tells, he went into the place Friday evening to enjoy a social game of poker, as he often does. Some men from Omaha were the other members of the party. A little dectrinal point arose for discussion. The question was as to whether three eights would take two jacks. Madden neld the three eights and thought they would. One of the Omaha men held the two jacks, and as John White, the par-tender, sided with them, Madden was worsted. He immediately cashed in his checks and stopped playing. Meeting John Scheffler, one of the proprietors of the place, in the front part of the saloon, he proceeded to remonstrate with him. Scheffler, he claims, replied to his complaint by coolly spitting in his face. Yesterday Mad-den called at Justice Field's office and swore out an information charging Henry Gibson, Frank Hendricks, John Scheffler and Guy Wilmott, four Council Bluffs sports, with keeping a gambling house, and he now announces his determination to prosecute them under the state law. The four men were placed under arrest, and will have a hearing Monday. Shortly after they were arrested Madden swore out a search warrant and had the place closed up. He claims they have been running an exceedingly tough joint.

roping in innocents and grangers and reliev-ing them of their wealth.

Price Gibson's place on North Main street was also the scene of some trouble Friday night. William H. Richardson, a colored man, who lives in the building, swore out an information charging him with keeping a gambling bouse, and he, too, will have a hearing Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock before Justice Field. Gibson has kept a resort which was exceedingly popular with colored people and white people also. Craps, poker and other games of the same kind have, it is alleged, been played in the place. alleged, been played in the place.

AN OMARA MAN'S EXPERIENCE, And How a Council Bluffs Doctor Lost $50

but Gained Some Valuable Information. A young medical practitioner of Council Bluffs parted with $50.00 yesterday afternoon. It was a lost wager, and it was paid in clean, hard-earned money, but the information the young doctor obtained was cheaply bought and he does not regret the expenditure. The matter happened in this wise: A genleman who had used some of Drs. De-Pew & Sweetland's remedies, the California physicans who have located in council Bluffs and Omaha, announced that he had received magical relief. and, as he believed, was permanently cured of a dangerous chronic disease The young physician had made a specialty of the disease and was the disease and was positive that a cure could not be obtained except by a long and careful system of treatment. The man who had suffered thought he knew something about it, too, and incidentally mentioned two or three other similar cases where positive and radical cures followed the use of a few doses of the medicine. "I will give you $50.00 if you will show me a single case of motor paralysis that was even helped by the use of a single bottle of any medicine. eried the young dector warmly. "Cerebro-nervous diseases that have baffled the brightest medical talent of the age cannot be conquered by a single bottle of anything, even though it was an ambrosia brewed by the gods." The gentleman accepted the wager promptly. and it was finally agreed to let a representative of THE BEE interview the other patients and report the facts. The address of Mr. J. Stockham, 1136 North 17th street, Omaha, was given, and reporter visited him and obtained his statement.

Mr. Stockham is quite an intelligent gentleman of upwards of 50 years of age. He is a merchant engaged in the shoe ousiness at 706 North Sixteenth street, Omaha, and has a beautiful home. When the newspaper man was shown into the drawing room the gentleman arose from a sofa where he had been sitting reading and advanced to the center of the room, walking slowly but without uncertainty. When the object of the visit was explained he stated his reluctance to be quoted in print, but after a moment's hesitancy declared that it could not do any harm but might do some good. "It was upon the advice of another sufferer that I was led to try the new medicine," said he, "and my experience may encourage some other poor sufferer who has abandoned hope." He then rapidly and clearly sketched the history of the last year, into which it seemed fate had concentrated all the physical misery of his life. "The last of February I was steicken with paralysis, involvng the entire left side. I cailed in the best physicians we have in this city, and for five or six months I was under their treatment. They are good physicians. would stand at the top of their profession in any city in the world, and they treated me well, doing everything that nedical science could do to relieve me. I will not contrast them with anybody, and I particularly want it understood that I am under the deepest obligation to them. At the start they gave me but little hope of permanent relief, assuring me that it would take time and constant care to relieve me. After six months careful treatment there was no improvement. On the contrary, my helplessness was daily increasing, and I knew that death was not far away. Yes, it is true that the magical benefit and all the relief I have has come from the use of a small quantity of Drs. DePew & Sweetland's remedy, and that was given me by Mr. Mace, the California street livery man. A year ago he was a com-plete physical wreck, and now he is strong and hearty, a result that he attributes directly to the remedy in question. Mr. Mace took a deep interest in me and brought Dr. Sweetland up to see me. The physician examined me silently and swiftly, and told me the cause of my disease and every symptom I had felt. "You are liable to drop dead at any moment," said he. "That's the way you will die if you are not re-lieved. Soon you will feel a pain in the back of your head," and he placed his finger without hesitation on the spot where I had felt a heavy pain for the first time that day. He told me that my paralysis did not come from any injury to the motor nerves in the brain, but from stomach, bowels, liver, kidneys, the elogging and ulceration of all internal organs. The doctor left, and the next organs. day Mr. Mace brought up a small part of a bottle of the remedy and begged me to try it. There were no directions, and Mr. Mace could only assure me that might drink it all at once and it would not hurt me. I took it industriously all one day and part of the night. The next day I felt strange sensations in stomach and bowels, movements that I had not experienced since a long time before my prostration. That night I spent the greater part of the time the water closet. Terribly fetid discharges came constantly, in lumps and masses. The odor was putrid and horribly sickening. After the first operation I felt a strange relief, as if some terrible weight had been lifted from the top of my head, a lightening up of my limbs, and a delightful revivifying influence pervading every muscle and vital organ. I took too much of the medicine and it physicked me terribly. I had already received my first relief from the use of the small amount of the remedy Mr. Mace had brought me, and the familiarity the doctor showed with all the symptoms of my disease led me to place myself under his care, and now after the total expenditure of only $12, and that largely for syringes and instru-ments for internal bowel treatment, and with a portion of my first bottle of medieine on hand, I am able to walk around without the aid of even a cane." The only anxiety Mr. Stockman seems to feel was that something might be said that would reflect upon the physicians who had treated him, and with a parting caution he accompanied the reporter to the door of his handsome home, a bappy and enthusiastic man.

The young doctor paid the $50 forfeit. and is making a careful investigation of the Sweetland remedies, and will use them in the treatment of some chronic cases that have steadfastly resisted all standard treatment. The young physician will no doubt hereafter be a frequent visitor to the new office Drs. S. DePew and Sweetland have opened in the new Merriam building on Broadway opposite the postoffice. W. E. Chambers will commence his dancing classes in Masonic temple Wednesday, October 4.

Domestic soap is the best. Witness with a Pass.

The case of Scott Wilkins against the motor company occupied the greater part of the day in the district court yesterday. A number of witnesses were examined and the facts in the case were brought out in detail as they have been published from time to time. There is one witness who has not tion a year ago. They have just received their new uniforms, which are much better time. There is one witness who has not shown up so far. It is claimed that he was to escape, but was over an eyewitness to the accident, and if he could be found his testimony might throw some light which would assist the jury in making up their minds. Immediately after the accident the president of the motor com-pany sent this gentleman a pass, and the gentleman has been riding ever since for nothing. It is stated that he is out of the city now, although he was here a few days ago. There is a possibility of his being called upon to testing if he can be found.

FRED CRAFTON WILL HAVE ANOTHER TRIAL

Supreme Court of Iowa Declares Newspaper Accounts of a Crime Prejudicial to an Extent for Grounds of a Change of Venue.

DES MOINES, Oct 7 .- Special Telegram to The Beg. -The supreme court this morning reversed the decision of Judge Holmes of the Polk county district court in the case of Fred S. Crafton, the alleged murderer of Mabel Swartz, a case which has attracted much attention. The defendant was indicted and tried for the crime of murder in the first degree and convicted of murder in the second degree. He was adjudged to be confined in the penitentiary at Anamosa for the term of fifteen years and from that judgment the appeal was taken.

Crafton, on the night of March 28, 1892, shot and kulled Mabel Swartz, a young woman who had been living with him for some time as his wife. The coroner's jury said that the shooting was felonious, either by criminal negligence or by intent. Before the trial regan the defense made application for a continuance, arguing that they had not time to presare for trial, as well as making other declarations, all of which Judge Holmes rejected, and the trial lasted several days. The appeal was, for the most part, based on the elaborate articles appearing in the newspapers at that time, which defense held prejudiced the jury, and further in-sisted that the court was not fair in ordering the trial to proceed without giving Crafton time to secure certain witnesses that were in Sloux City and St. Joseph. The supreme court laid the most stress upon the newspaper arguments. Newspaper Accounts Prejudicial.

This is the first time the lowa supreme court has ever recognized that newspaper accounts of a crime are prejudicial to an extent for grounds for a change of venue. The defendant is the 25-year-old son of Major Crafton of Springfield, Ili. The girl whom he killed was Mabel Swartz, the daughter of ex-Mayor Swartz of Sioux City.

Crafton claimed on the trial of the case that the shorting was

Crafton claimed on the trial of the case that the shooting was accidental, that he was twirling a revolver in his hand when it exploded. Circumstantial evidence was in-troduced, however, showing that Crafton had enticed the Swartz girl from her home in Sioux City and it was believed killed her for the purpose of getting rid of her to avoid unpleasant developments. Crafton's wife, the beautiful daughter of Captain Dufford of Atlantic, In , pawned her jewels to employ lawyers to defend her husband, and it was through her efforts that the case was carried to the supreme court. Crafton was sentenced to fifteen years in the penitentiary and he has served one year Crafton has a brother living in Kansas City and is well known through the west.

DENVER, Oct. 7 .- The vote of the engineers, firemen, trainmen and telegraph operators on the proposition of President efferey of the Denver & Rio Grande, that they accept a 10 per cent reduction in their salaries until January 1, was counted this evening. While, of course, there were individual votes against the acceptance of the cut, the vote of the different organizations was unanimously in favor of submitting t he reduction

The proposition referred to reduces the salaries of the telegraphers 16 per cent from August 1 last until December 31. The engineers, firemen and trainmen get the same reduction, but it is effective from but September 20 to December 31. The engineers and conductors were paid $0 per day for services on committees in adjusting the trouble. Speaking of the result. Mr. E. E. Clark, chief grand conductor, said: "We think the men have exercised good judgment in accepting the reduction. We do not care to give the vote in detail but it is entirely estimated. the vote in detail, but it is entirely satis

It was reported that on Cass street there lives a young lady who has until recently had a young lover. They quarreled and the young man demanded that the girl return to him a ring which he had given her, likewise his affections. She refused both requests, and about 10 oclock last night the youth, armed with a gun, made his way into the house, grabbed the ring and escaped. He did not regain his affections and the police are trying to locate him for carrying concealed weapons and making awful threats.
