CARDINAL GIBBONS' JUBILEE

Mgr. Satolli, Archbishops Corrigan and Ireland and Other Prelates to Be Present.

WILL BE A NOTABLE CELEBRATION

Clergy Gathered in Baltimore to See the Spiendid Ceremonial Which Begins at the Cathedral Today-Short

Sketch of the Cardinal. The celebration at Baltimore of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the consecration of Cardinal Gibbons as bishop, which it set for today and tomorrow, will bring as distinguished a gathering of Catholic prelates and clergy as ever assembled in the historic old cathedral. The members of the hierarchy have shown nusual eagerness to accept invitations to pe present on the occasion, and thus far every archbishop in the country has expressed his intention to be present, and bishops and the lesser clergy will come by the hundreds. The English and Irish hierarchy will also probably be represented, and the various prelates, in their rich robes, will present an imposing spectacle as they enter the cathedral and are directed to their proper places by Master of Ceremonies Father M. Callen, who comes from Montreal in order to take charge of the exercises.

It was originally intended to have the celebration on August 16, just twenty-five years after the consecration. But the cardinal was at that time at Cape May, recuperating from the strain of his unusually hard work and difficult duties arising from the conten tions at that time in progress among priests and bishops in various parts of the country At his suggestion the celebration was de-ferred until a later date, when he might himself be in better physical condition and harmony again prevail in the Catholic

It is significant that two of the most prom inent participants in the ceremonies will be Archbishop Satolli and Archbishop Corrigan, while Archbishops Ireland and Ryan have also been honored with places on the

An interesting feature of the ceremonies not included in the original program will be the presence of Rev. Dr. Rooser as the spe-cial messenger from the pope, who comes to bring a gift from the holy father and a mes-sage whose import will be very flattering to the primate of the church in America. The ceremonies will be characterized with all the dignity and pomp and splendor of vestiture and the elaborate music that the Catholic church gives to its most solemn oc-They will begin today with a sol emn high mass, over which Archbishop Sa-tolli will preside, while Archbishop Cor-rigan of New York will preach the sermon. On Thursday morning, and probably during the afternoon, the cardinal will hold i PROTECT YOUR EYES | public reception, when the great outpouring of Catholic laymen from this vicinity will have the glad opportunity to greet him.

At night will take place the great dinner to be given by the Catholic club, at which the cardinal will be the guest of honor. Vice President Stevenson has accepted the invitation to be present, and many members of the national legislature will come from Washington to sit about the board with the prelates of the Catholic church. Arch-bishop Redwood of Australia has been invited to preach at the cathedral on Sunday. Many Beautiful Gifts. The pope's gift will not be the only one the cardinal will receive. Various members of the hierarchy will present testimonials of love and veneration, and some of them, it is love and veneration, and some of them, it is said, will be very rich, though the cardinal is known to be averse to receiving for personal uses anything of monetary value. When the jubilee celebration was at first mooted the plans proposed included the gift of a large purse, to which Catholics throughout the country were to be invited to contribute. The cardinal promptly vetoed this feature, and urged that the event should be a glorious celebration for the church, and that alone.

With the arranging of the plans for the jubilee celebration came various suggestions for the erection of some memorial of a permanent character in bonor of Cardinal Gibbons. This has revived the agitation of a new cathedral, which was mooted some years ago, during the life of Archbishop Bayley. The present structure, on Cathedral street, is imposing and associated with many important events in the history of the many important events in the history of the Catholic church in this country. But in view of the increased importance of this city in the Catholic world the project of a larger and grander building is more strongly-urged now than it was before.

Where the Cardinal Laves. Back to back with the cathedral stands the cardinal's residence, large, roomy and old-fashioned, but unpretentious on the out-side, and generally very plainly furnished within. It has been brightened up with new carpets and other modern embellishments lately, and the unsightly wall which encompassed it has been taken down, giving a much more inviting appearance to the old house, and improving the looks of the vicinity as well. But the neighborhood, once the most fashionable in the city, is being rapidly encroached upon by retail stores, and the value of the property in the neighborhood has greatly depressed. nood has greatly depreciated. The project is to secure a large lot in the northern sec-tion of the city, now the most desirable part, and there, besides a new cathedral, to also bund a larger parish school for children in place of the cramped quarters to which they are now confined. When the subject of presenting a purse to the cardinal was suggested this idea was also submitted, and a scheme was outlined also submitted, and a scheme was outlined which was thought to be feasible. The cardinal was not at that time disposed to assume the burden of debt which the building of a cathedral on the plan proposed involved, but his enthusiastic admirers are hoping that the jubilee will furnish the basis for the building of a Baltimore St. Poter's. It is suggested that if begun in this jubilee year the cathedral could easily be completed before July 7, 1996, which will be the centennial anniversary of the laying of the corner nist anniversary of the laying of the corner stone of the present cathedral, and that the centennial of the old and the dedication of the new might be celebrated at the same

whose unassuming manners and modest re-serve would give no indication to the passerby of the dignity he holds in the church or the influence he wields upon thou-sands of people. One could scarcely notice

him in the passing throng, so quickly does ho stride along, and so modestly. He rarely raises his eyes, save when his attention is attracted by the salutation of some acquaintance, and then the greeting is some acquaintance, and then the greeting is as courteously returned. Nothing in his attree gives any indication of his rank, save that his frock coat is a trifle longer and his stovepipe hat a trifle higher, and both apparently somewhat more worn than in the case of the ordinary individual. If the passerby turned around he might catch a glimpse of the cardinal's cap protruding just a little below his stovenine and the back of

A walking cane is his usual companion, which he uses energetically to help propel him along. cetic in his eating, and regular in his mode of living, the cardinal is, despite his fifty nine years, his arduous duties and delicat responsibilities, a hearty, lithe, young man, who can walk faster and further than those who have thus far challenged him. He is an agreeable companion on a walk, but is generally unaccompanied, as few persons

Personally he is very affable and gentle in his manners, and until his duties became. so burdensome and the calls upon his time so great, was atways approachable. ## Cardinal Gibbons' Career.

The cardinal was born in Baltimore July 23, 1834. When a lad he was taken by his father to Ireland, and his return, having received an academic training, entered St. Charles college. Here he was graduated with honors and with equal success completed his theological training at St. Mary's pleted his theological training at St. Mary's seminary, being qualified for the priesthood in 1861. He was assigned to St. Bridget's in 1861. church at Canton, a manufacturing suburb of Baltimore. After receiving several larger charges he finally came to the cathedral and was chancellor at the time of the second plenary council, which was held in this city. In 1868 he was created vicar apostolic of North Carolina, and upon the death of Bishop McGill of Richmond, succeeded to that vacancy. Then he became coadjutor to Archbishop Bailey, at the lat-ter's earnest request, with the right of succession, and at the latter's death succeeded him as archbishop of the diocese. The cardinal's hat was conferred upon him in 1886, Archbishop, then monsignor, Satolli being the bearer of the beretta. The services attending the investiture, were very imposing. Cardinal Gibbons soon afterward went to Rome, where the pope placed the red hat upon his head, with the usual impressive public ceremonies.

Cardinal Gibbons has contributed largely to the religious and secular periodicals, but his most stable effort in literature is "The Faith of Our Fathers," which has run through a very large addition, and is constantly referred to by Catholic, as well as Protestant writers.

The water was then turned on and the indicator on the engine showed a water pressure of seventy pounds without the aid of steam. The steam gauge registered as follows:

With a steam pressure of 135 to 140 pounds the water gauge showed a pressure of 180 pounds.

A test was made to see how high a stream of water could be thrown. Seven-teenth street was chosen for this display, and after the engine got down to work stream was thrown on top of the New York Life building. The wind, which was blowng at the rate of thirteen miles an hour, greatly handicapped the department and caused the stream to break at the top of the building. The stream was then taken to the front of the Life building and the man in the cupola got a good wetting. Every time the water hit the roof the crowd cheered and seemed to enjoy the exhibition. This engine is supposed to throw 750 gallons of water a minute, and did it yesterday. All of the commissioners were well satisfied with the The best medical authorities say the proper way to treat catarrh is to take a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla.

TAPPED ON THE SHOULDER

Detectives Meet a Noted Crook and Place Him Under Arrest.

THEY PICK UP MR. CHAPLES BAXTER

One of the Really Smooth Bad Men of the Country Resting in the City Jail-Record that All the Crooks Envy.

About 9 o'clock yesterday morning City Detectives Savage and Dempsey were meandering along Douglas street as is their custom when on day duty, when they spied a "mark," which in police parlance means a thier.

The man was the notorious Charles Baxter, alias Tracy, etc. Baxter had grown a heavy black beard since he was last seen in Omaha, but this partial disguise did not prevent the officers from recognizing him. The two detectives waltzed right up to their man and without any ceremony or preliminary talk, placed Baxter under arrest and walked him to the city jail, where he is booked as a suspicious character. On the way to the jail Baxter tried to tear up a check on the Nebraska National bank payable to J. H. Martin and signed by T. E. Lambert & Co. The figures on the check called for $550, while the amount written out was for $250. Of course the written out was for $250. Of course the prisoner was prevented from destroying the paper and it is now in the possession of Detective Savage.

H. Baxter has a record all over the west and is known to the police as a "strong arm" man. He is the alleged leader of a gang of safe blowers. This is not, however, the only accomplishment Baxter boasts. He is a smooth confidence man and can almost talk gold out of a piece of granite. Besides this he is as neat a pickpocket as is ever met in the west. The prisoner does not deny that he is a thief, but laughingly remarked that the officers could not prove it. Immediately after being searched the prisoner was locked up in a strong cell and was oner was locked up in a strong cell and was visited by Captain Mostyn, who ideutified him as Baxter. Several other policemen and detectives also identified the prisoner. Baxter, by the way, has quite a criminal record. Not long ago there was, inside of two months, something like twenty-three safes in postoffices in western Iowa and eastern Nebraska broken open and robbed.
The postoffice inspectors and detectives worked hard on the cases, but failed to get the gang until one day Baxter was arrested in Lincoln, and when searched it was found that he had quite a lot of postage stamps on his person. This clew was followed up and the secret service men succeeded in break-hat full of diamonds. Baxter stood trial for this crime, but through the aid of friends succeeded in proving an allbi and was turned A funny thing about this robbery was that Baxter brought the diamonds to Omaha and tried to dispose of them at a Douglas street pawn shop, well knowing that the detectives were hot on his trail. The thief had only left the pawn shop about ten minutes when the detectives entered. They tried to pick up his trail, but could not and Baxter never

Then the brave undid two or three folds of his blanket and dug up a paper which was handed to the judge. The document was a little old, being dated 1886, but it told what a good Indian the bearer was and that his name was Yellow Smoke, a powerful chief of the Omaha tribe. At the bottom a request for alms was made. When the judge read the paper he hansed over a shining 26 cent plece, "Goody Boss," remarked Yellow Smoke as he slid the coin down into an old sock. He then turned his attention to the crowd and collected quite a sum in small coins. After the big chief had got all there was in the crowd he started over to work the prisoners, but was stopped by Court Officer Walker, who told him that the judge had worked that were down the started over the bad worked that were down the sale was the prisoners of the court of the prisoners of the court of t the prisoners, but was stopped by Court Officer Walker, who told him that the judge had worked that crowd for all they had.
