The young man is described as slightly built, with short band dressed like a farmer.

Where Are the Doctors?

Several inquiries have reached THE BEE office from those who read in yesterday's paper the account of the won-derful cure of Mr. Moore of Omaha, and who wanted to know where Drs. Depew and Sweetland could be found. As there are others, too, who may be in ignorance as to the address of these wonderful physicians, the information is given that they have located their offices in the new block on Broadway, up stairs, enposite the postoffice.

DAILY BEE NEWS FROM COUNCIL BLUFFS

Details of a Peculiar Transaction in Dry Goods Brought to Light.

HOW BANKRUPT VAVRA SOLD HIS STOCK

He Was in Business at Hawarden, but Sent His Goods to His Brother in Council Blufts-The Latter Under Arrest.

J. J. Vavra, a young man who started up a dry goods store at 142 Broadway about three months ago, is in serious trouble on account of business transactions in which he is more or less implicated with his brother, A. S. Vavra, a storekeeper at Hawarden Woodbury county, and which are charged with being crooked. According to the story told by E. D. Wigton, a Sloux City attorney, and Captain Wicks of the Sioux City police, Vavra has been stocking up his store with a lot of goods which did not cost him a cent, but cost creditors of his brother several thousand dollars. A. S. Vavra, the Hawarden merchant, broke up in business three days ago. Hefore he did so, however, he sold out to his sister, a Mrs. King. He then proceeded to disap-pear, and so effectually did he do it that all efforts to locate him have been unavailing. He was heavily indebted to various Chicago and Omana wholesalers, and when his creditors learned that he had disposed of his property they began a lively rustle to see what there was for them to hold besides the

At first sight the store seemed to be well filled with merchandise. The shelves were loaded with boxes and the only thing that detracted from the general air of prosperity was the fact that the front doors were locked. They began to look through the boxes and were amazed to find that most of them were empty. Just what the value of the stock in the store is has not been ascertained, but it is much less than was supposed at the time store is has not been ascertained, but it is much less than was supposed at the time the sale took place. For a couple of weeks prior to the sale it is said that Vavra was busily engaged every night in emptying his store by the back door. Wagonload after wagonload of merchandise was taken out and shipped to his brother in this city and put on sale at this end of the line.

The charge against J. J. Vavra is really that he has been engaged in a conspiracy to defraud, but the information on file against him charges him with obtaining goods under faise pretenses. The false pretenses were with reference to the amount of his property. He is said to have obtained $8,000 or $10,000 credit on the strength of sworn statements to the commercial agencies, in which he greatly exaggerated his financial ability. His stock here is estimated to be worth about $2,500. A large portion of it consists of merchandise that was shipped to him by his brother, and it is probable that replevin suits will be instituted in the ourse of a day or two by the parties from whom it was purchased to recover it.

Stories of the Transaction. Vavra was asked yesterday after he had been placed under arrest how he happened to buy the goods of his brother instead of some wholesale establishment. He replied that his brother needed the money, and he bought the stock he had on hand so as to help him out. He claimed to have no idea that there was any doubt as to his brother's right to sell it. He said he pald his brother $1,500 for the merchandise, but did not pay by means of a draft or check. Instead, he put the money in a letter, anywhere from $60 to $75 at a time, and sent it by mail. He also said that his brother owed him $5,000, but that did not prevent him paying his brother for all the goods he bought of him.

A warrant is out for the arrest of the brother and he will be apprehended as soon as he can be located. Mr. Vavra left for Sioux City last evening, accompanied by Attorney Wigton and Captain Wicks.

Boles, Mitchell and Jackson to Speak i the City This Week.

This week is an important one for the city of Council Bluffs in a political way from the fact that it is to see visits from three of the candidates for governor. Bennett Mitchell, the candidate on the prohibition ticket, made his debut at the Broadway Methodist church last evening, but the notices given out in advance were to the effect that it would not be a political speech, so there was no particular demonstration made by the the prohibs in his honor. The fact that it was Sunday night also had something to do with keeping down their inherent tendencies to have a torchlight parade.

Today Governor Boies will make his first appearance in the city since two years ago. A committee appointed by the local democracy will take him in charge from the time he sets foot on Council Bluffs soil. He will be taken first to the residence of Dr. Macrae and after that to the School for the Deaf. In the evening he will discuss political matters at the opera house from the standpoint of a man who wants to occupy the guberna-torial chair a third time contrary to his own wishes. W. H. M. Pusey will occupy the chair and Dalbey's band will furnish the

The climax of the week will be Friday night, when Hon. Frank D. Jackson, the republican candidate for governor, will speak at the opera house. Mr. Jackson is conceded to be one of the finest speakers in the state of lowa, and interest is added to his appearance by the fact that a good many people think he is to be the next governor of the Burned l'eterson's House. There was a fire in what is known as "Danctown" Saturday afternoon. The residence of August Peterson, on South Sixth street near the corner of Twenty-fourth avenue, was set on fire by a spark from a cigarette fiend. There were two houses next door to Peterson's and not over six feet away. It took all the efforts of the fire de-partment to save these two dwellings, and they managed to do it in spite of the fact that there was no city water in that vicinity and the only water they could get was from wells. The chemical engine delayed the progress of the battle by exploding just at the wrong time. Peterson's house was fully insured.

PRODUCE POINTERS.

The crop of pecans is reported to be of good size this year, but the large dealers are not bragging much on the quality.

England and Scotland report a heavy crop of potatoes, and shipments to this country are expected to commence as soon as cold weather sets in.

A considerable proportion of the large peach crop of Maryland went into cans, the pack at Baltimore the past season being the argest on record. Reports received by local houses from Cleveland would indicate that choice apples are being taken very fast, and that in a week more it will be no easy matter to pick up a car just when wanted.

W. R. McClellan writes from Lucerne,
Colo., that the potato market there took a 5-cent drop. The growers, however, are not offering very freely since the drop. The digging is about two-thirds done and the next ten days will see the work finished. Chestnuts have taken a great drop in the leading markets of the country during the past week or so. Parties who bought early have been unable to move them before the drop came. A house would sell a dealer, and before the nuts could be shipped some other house would quote still lower prices.

An lowa shipper writes an Omaha commission house asking about the market on onions, and remarks in the way of a post-script to his letter that he secured the name of the Omaha house from the roster of the National league of the commission men, sent to him by Phillips & Son of New York City. Shippers are not slow to avail themselves of the advantages of an organization that has for its object the promotion of fair dealing Apples will be high priced articles this winter, says the Chicago Tribune, and the Michigan, Missouri and Illinois crops are failures. A few apples are coming in from Wisconsin, but the fruit is still scarce and already commands from $3.50 to $5 a barrel. The supply as estimated now is about 50 per cent of what a normal demand will be. The result of this is felt, too, in the advance in evaporated apples and the scarcity of sundried fruit. Chicago merchants will get their largest supply from New York, Maine

E. L. Goodsell, the much-talked-about fruit auctioneer of New York, has intro-duced a novel feature in his salesroom. which gives buyers a chance to see the con-tents of a full barrel of grapes without stopping the sale. It consists of a long table, divided into four compartments, with a trap door in each compartment, allowing the grapes to fall into barrels beneath the trap doors. Some idea of the rapidity of this method can be grasped by the following: At a recent sale 286 lots of grapes were sold in a trifle less than two hours. That means 146 lots per hour and over two and a half lots each minute. Prof. A. J. Rider, secretary of the American Cranberry Growers association, sailed the first of the week for Eng-land, to be gone about three months. He will make a strong endeavor to interest the foreigners in cranberries. and, if possible, increase their sale. Cranberries are not grown abroad, and very few have been exported. He thinks that by interesting fruit dealers and offering liberal commissions a great market can be secured on the other side of the ocean. His first move will be to establish daily sales at auction in Liverpool and other distributing centers where cranberries are now only oc-casionally catalogued and sold.

The crop of apples this season has been light in nearly all sections. The south is buying freely, there being a scarcity even in sections which usually produce a good crop. In New York they are predicting that, as the season advances, the market will probaprevail. In many sections, where most of the fruit is evaporated and dried, the crop was light, and consequently the proportion of fruit dried this year is very moderate, and for some time past the market for dried apples has been very firm, with values grad-ually hardening. It is claimed that few apples are being placed in storage, most dealers preferring to sell the fruit as fast as received. In dried fruit there is more of a endency to hold for higher prices.

COUNCIL BLUFFS AND OMAHA

Largest Line of Sample Cloaks, Cloth Garments, Fars and Fur Garments Ever Brought to the West.

Bennison Bros. have quietly perfected arrangements for a cloak and fur exposition that will be an event in the history of Council Bluffs, There will two magnificent lines of garments shown by representatives of two of the largest houses in the world. One line will include everything made this season in fine cloth garments, both imported and domestic goods, from one of the largest cloak manufacturers and importers in New York City. Every form and shape of garment made in cloth, every style from London, Paris and New York will be shown, mag-nificent garments with Worth collars. storm collars, and every new idea in the cloak line that has been developed in the fashion centers of the world for the fall and winter trade of 1893. Ladies can see everything as well as though they were in the manufacturers' and importers' sample rooms, and they can select whatever pleases them and have it made to a perfect fit if desirable. Not only all the styles will be shown, but all the cloth fabrics, and there will be no possibility of any lady, no matter what she desires in the way of a garment or wishes to pay, going away without finding just what she will be sure will suit

The second line will be a grand display of fur garments, in charge of a special representative of Kays & Ein-stein, New York City, one of the oldest houses in America, the largest in the city and one of the largest in the world, who have been making and importing fur garments for generations. The line will include all of the finest things in furs, sealskin garments, the finest otter, marten and mink, sable, silver gray fox, ermine, Russian sable, of almost priceless value, that will be worth a good deal to see, astrachan, and everything else that the fur-bearing animals of the world yield for the comfort and satis-faction of the ladies. The styles in these will, of course, include every new idea, and no lady who wishes to spend from $5.00 to $50,000,00 will go away disappointed in not finding what she wants. She will have, in short, everything there is to select from.

This grand exposition will occur at Bennison Bros.' on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, October 24 and 25, and will last these two days only. A cordial invitation is extended to all the ladies of Council Bruffs and Omaha and the surrounding towns and villages to be present, regardless of the fact whether they are ready to buy or not. The exhibition of the goods will be an event of itself sufficient to justify a long journey.

DAKOTA CITY, Neb., Oct. 22.- Special Telegram to THE BEE. |-The jury in the case of Alberts against Perry Bros. & Co., after being out thirty-six hours, brought in a verdict for the defendant today. Alberts was suing for $10,000 damages for alleged defamation of character, growing out of his being arrested by the defendants for disposing of mortgaged property.

What the Science of Sanitation Has Accom-The probabilities of life have largely increased during the last five-and-twent years. And this is so, says the New York Ledger, because science has advanced sanitation, and sanitation has defeated death. Of course all must die, but none need do so through the neglect of plainly written laws. Cholera and cleanliness are deadly foes; and, in fact, the latter habit sternly opposes every contagious disease. The unfortunate Muscovites who have made the plague-spot of 1892 are the victims of habits of filthiness, which have brought upon guilty and innecent alike a sad Nemesis. Turn to the west for the brighter side of the picture. The number of deaths from cholera in New York city for 1849 was 5,071; for 1854, 2,509; for 1866, 1,210; for 1892, a few isolated cases not counting a dozen. The death rate of our country is being surely lowered every year. but much remains to be done. here and in England there are 250,000 preventable deaths every year, and ,000,000 of needless illnesses which an elementary knowledge of hygienic laws might have averted.

Even the cholera alarm has proved the sanitary inspector of nature, forcing us to cleanse our streets and drains. purify our water supply, and lower our death rate. But human sacrifice is entirely unnecessary. Have we not yet learnt our lesson? The simple principles of sanitation should be and are being taught, thanks to an enlightened age, in our common schools. Hygienic laws must become the common property not only of medical experts and quarantine authorities, but also of every parent, householder and landlord. The public officers of the law must have the knowledge and authority to deal with any case de-manding treatment. If these easy matters are seen to, the disease, which has been gradually brought low, can be now and always completely stamped out.
