MRS. LEASE AND IKE HASCALI

Echoes of Populist Oratory Heard at a Mass Meeting Last Evening.

DOUBLE BILL AT EXPOSITION HALL America Denounced as the "Land of the Rich and Home of the Stave"-

Specenes by Candidates - Other

Meetings Last Night. A quartet of colored singers, a brass band, Mrs. Mary E. Lease of Kansas and "Utopian Ike" Hascall of Omaba drew a crowded house at Exposition hall last night. There were many ladies in the audience and a large number of populist candidates on the stage.

Shortly after 8 o'clock Mrs. Lease entered the hall and was at once greeted with cheers, while a drum corps, stationed in a far away corner of the room, pounded out "America," with all of the variations.

Saving the big guns for the final attack on the enemy, Mrs. O'Neil, the populist candidate for superintendent of public schools, was introduced, and in a pleasant and catching manner she discussed the political issues dwelling at some length upon what women had accomplished in war, peace and politics.

Mrs. Lease followed with a characteristic address, in which she opined that the time had come when a "woman's age" was dawning upon the land. Woman during the past quarter of a century had found her way into all of the walks of life, into all of the profes sions, and also into politics. They were standing shoulder to shoulder with man and were rapidly winning fame and laurels. There was but one place, Mrs. Lease opined, woman would not be found, and that was on election day parading the streets with a bottle of liquor in her pocket, swearing that she could lick any man in town. When a few men in New York and Boston could send twenty-one banks to the wall in one day; when the wheat, pork and produce market could be controlled by a combine; when the senate of the United States could be controlled by a Wall street lawyer, it was time for the American people to think, and it was time to call a halt all along the line. There was a mighty uprising of the peo-ple, said Mrs. Lease, and they were eagaged in a struggle between the bread win ners and the English bondholders, with the chances in favor of the former. Treason and Tyranny Discussed

The same tyrannical foe that has enslaved Ireland for 800 years has attacked America and aided by democrats and republicans had struck down the money that was good enough for the early fathers. The treason of Jefferson Davis was conspicuous patriotism as compared with the treason of the democrats in congress acting in collusion with their republican atlies who struck down the American dollar and repealed the silver purchasing clause. The trouble was that the old robber parties had fused on everything from finance to whisky, and even Grover Cleveland, through Wall street lawyers, was carrying out the financial policy of the republican party.

Touching the liquor question, Mrs. Lease said that she always knew where to find the democrats, but the republicans would pray with the elders and drink with the boys. With the church people they would sing "Nearer My God to Thee," while with the saloon men they would hum "We Won't Go Home Till Morning."

Mrs. Lease then paid her respects to con-gress, and said that during the extra session nothing had been accomplished aside from taking away from the people $36,000,000 of their money, but there would be a change some day, as the old parties were going to the wall. She said that there was no republican party west of that there was no republican party west of the Missouri river, and east of there it was only a wing of the democratic party. Among important questions the money question was the important one. The decreasing volume of money had been responsible for panics and all of the selfish instincts of life. America had turned a deaf ear to history and had not profited thereby, while the rich and had not profited thereby, while the rich were growing richer and the poor man became poorer.

Denounced the Old Parties.

The speaker furthermore said that the democratic and republican parties had been guilty of fraud and getting votes by false pretenses; they had both declared for silver, and by those declarations secured vote a few days ago Mrs. Lease said the repudiated all of their promises and struck down the American dollar. Getting back to first principles, the indy declared that the business men of the city should e with the populists and work with them, for when the farmers raised good crops usiness men , ot their pay and their goods did not become shopworn upon the shelves. The country, however, was not realizing this matter, but was drifting and would soon be classed with Ireland, Rome and India. No tonger was it the "land of the free and the home of the brave," but was "land of the rich and the home the slave." People of America no desire for the repeal of the silver purchasing clause; what was needed was the repeal of Grover Cleve-land, the repeal of the Shylocks of Wall street and a few of the millionaires. The west would keep right on raising corn wheat and cattle, and if necessary it could raise the hemp to stretch the necks of the men who voted for the repeal of the Sherman bill. It was tradition that members of congress represented the people; they did at one time, but it had come to pass that they represented the Rothschilds and had handed their heritage, bathed in the blood forefathers at Bunker Hill, over to the English bankers, thus obtaining stronger foothold than could be secured the sword, bullet and bayonet.

Sentiment of Suffrage. Those who wanted the Sherman law repealed were the tories, the money loaners and the usurers, that they might sap the blood out of the poor, continued Mrs. Lease but the toilers had not been heard from They would speak, however, and when they did it would be by the ballots, which would bury both of the old parties so deep that they could not hear the blowing of the horn on the resurrection morn. Preachers, Mrs. Lease observed, had gone into politics; they prayed 364 days each year and then on the remaining day they went out and voted to of the wings which John the Baptis sessed, nor did they care what colored coat St. Peter wore. What they wanted was to know how they were going to get their daily bread. Hascall's Same Old Howl.

At 10 o'clock Mrs. Lease issued a chalenge for any individual to meet her on the stage in joint debate. There was no person who wanted to pick up the glove, so Isaac Hascall was called out, and for nearly an hour he howled calamity and told how oom for mayor was being smothered by the

The audience wanted more speeches and to satisfy that desire the local candidates were given a chance to stretch their oratorical pinions and crow for themselves.

It is stated on good authority that a concerted action is being taken to secure the registration of a lot of mythical voters in the various precincts of this city for the purpose of allowing the voting of a lot of repeaters next Tuesday. It is also understood on equally good authority that some of the candidates, and the corporation interests be hind them, are figuring on the voting of quite a colonized vote from South Omaha, which is being registered in several of the preciacts. There are indications that mem bers of certain of the registration boards are concerned in this illegal procedure, and if such proves to be the case, there are lively times in store for the guilty parties. The names of parties who have thus far registered are publicly posted at the various booths, as required by the registration law, and copies of them have been taken and are being verified by a personal canvass in order to conclusively establish just what fraud is

It has been ascertained that one of the methods that is being pursued is to register an alleged voter and fix his place of resi dence at a house that is unoccupied. The Eighth Ward Republican club held rousing meeting last night at Goodrich hall, I'wenty-fourth and Paul streets. Mr. J. W.

Judge Ambrose was the first speaker. The speaker said that he did not think that it was becoming in a candidate for judicia honors to resort to the usual methods of politicians and that in this campaign he had efrained from making long speeches. After irging those present to vote the straight licket the judge called the attention of the audience to the fact that last year nearly 3,000 tickets found in the ballot boxes did not nave a mark after the names of constable and justices of the peace. He urged the voters to pay more attention to such officers and be careful to elect only good men to those positions.

John L. Webster was next introduced He remarked that he "did not intend to make a speech, but would talk for a few moments." Mr. Webster said that he was in favor of supporting the republican ticket from one end to the other. He did not be-lieve in all of this talk about a nonpartisan judiciary. Then Mr. Webster told about the rousing republican meetings being held in Iowa and predicted that Iowa would elec Frank Jackson governor by 20,000 majority. The speaker hoped Nebraska would elect Judge Harrison and the whole ticket by an equally large majority. Colonel Webster told some funny stories and drifted off onto national politics, which he discussed for a few moments. Several candidates were present and ad-

Personal Discomfort of Political Enthusiasts at an Open-Air Meeting.

1 to-SHERIFF BENNETT'S BOOM BURIED IN ICE

JCHO T Beer as Substitute for Bonfires-"Great Bennett Raily" on Manderson Street
-Yells for Eder Were in Vain -Sandy Knight's Battallon.

There are political meetings and political neetings, but the kind that was held last evening at 1714 Manderson street does not grow in every campaign. It was announced as a republican rally, and was concocted by 'Dave Christie and Jack Crofts, who acted as the self-constituted representatives of the city and county candidates, whose legs had been enthusiastically pulled for $180 to defray the expense of providing accommodations and furnishing necessary enthusiasm. It was whispered that it was to be a "big Bennett meeting.

Christie's dooryard was the scene of the demonstration, and the Sun Vapor Lighting company had been induced to plant eight poles, and set that number of street lights in a circle around the corner of the front porch. It was decidedly frosty weather for an open-air meeting, but three kegs of beer that had been located with especial reference to immediate use, assisted in keeping the temperature within bounds.

Whether the meeting had been insuffi ciently advertised, or whether it was be cause of many counter attractions, certain as had been counted on by the moving spirits, but the lack in numbers was more than made up by the enthusiasm that was manifested. Bennett and Bachelor Defended.

J. W. Carr was the first speaker, and he talked on national politics until compelled to go inside and thaw out, after which he de-voted his time to a defense of Sheriff Bennett, County Judge Eller and Treasurer Irey He insisted that no one but Rosewater was opposing any of the republican nominees, and he wanted to see each and all of them elected. He was followed by Judge Bartlett, candidate for justice of the peace, who continued the defensive course, by espousing the cause of I Cheat Bachelor, who, he declared, was most unjustly accused of stealing a piano. He said he had talked with a man "from the same county in lows where the plane was stolen," and that gentleman had informed him that Bachelor was guilty of nothing of the kind. The judge announced on his nonor as a lawyer that Bachelor was "a rising genius" and should by all means

He was intro duced as another candidate for justice of the peace, but he denied it, and admitted that it was better for the ticket that he was not candidate. He preferred to pose as the at-torney who had defended Bachelor, and he was prepared to say that the crime for which Bachelor was arrested was committed in Boone county, Nebraska, instead of lowa, and that the stolen property was an organ and not a piano, matters which he deemed of the utmost impertance, as it was worse to steal a piano than an organ, and a crim ommitted in Iowa could not properly be considered relevant in Nebraska, or reason ing to that effect. He then took up the case of Bennett and Eller, both of whom he de clared to be worthy of election to any offic within the gift of the people. He said that all that could be said about Bennett by his enemies was that he had allowed Moshe a few liberties while a prisoner in the county fail.

The doors were closed, so that the music was heard with difficulty by those outside. Be nett said that he was opposed by only one man and that was Rosewater. The auditors were getting very uncomfortable, and at frequently recurring intervals Colonel Knight found it necessary to give the order, "Come on thoons," whereat the audience would silently march out into the middle of the street, leaving less than half a dozen individuals in the vicinity of the speaker. This exercise would suffice to start the blood of the saldiers to flowing through its accustomed channels and the "troops" would then be, wheeled and coun-termarched back to their places. Too Siberian for Eller.

What the troops seemed to want more than anything else except a stove was a sight of the county judge, and when it was found that this could not be had they contented themselves with a series of unearthly yells for "Eller and his howing whiskers."

Crofts was the last speaker and he said it was shameful that it was so cold. He said that the entertainment would conclude with was snameful that it was so cold. IN THE SENATE.

Much Debate on the Chinese Exclusion Law Induiged In. WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.- The house joint resolution amending the act of April 25, 1889, relating to the admission of articles intended for the World's Columbian exposition, was taken up in the senate today. It was advocated by Mr. Cullom of Illinois, and after the amendment of the committee on finance was adopted, limiting the articles to be released from all customs duties to those acquired and purchased by the Columbian museum of Chicago for its own use, was passed. The house joint resolution donating abandoned cannon to the committee in charge of the national encampment of t Grand Army of the Republic at Pittsburg in 1894 was reported and passed. Senate bill, to authorize the Missouri River

The house bill to aid the World's fair prize winners' exposition, to be held in New York, was laid before the senate and referred to the committee on finance

Spoke for Chinese Exclusion. Mr. White, democrat, of California then spoke on the Chinese bill, referring to the highbinders, a criminal organization whose members killed men for pay. He said the Chinese empire stood today, not as the indication of progression, but as a nation incapa ble of absorbing more than it had already taken into its confines. When confronted with a situation which meant ruin to his people, when he had to choose between his people or an ation race, then Mr. White said he would stand by his hearthstone and guard Mr. Squire (whose amendment was the pending one appropriating $100,000 to execute the law) withdrew his amendment in order that the bill might become a law durin this session. All the other amendments offered yesterday and today were rejected and the house bill was passed without amendment.

Senate bill, granting to the state of California 5 per cent of the net proceeds of the cash sales of public lauds in that state to aid in the support of a public or common school of mines and making appropriation for that purpose, was, on motion of Mr. White of California, taken up and passed. The senate then, at 5:10 p. m., went into executive session, and at 5:45 p. m. adjourned

LEWELLING'S EXPLANATIONS

Kansas Governor Tells About that Famous Compromise.

FACTS FROM THE LAST LEGISLATURE

How Peace Was Restored at the State Capital Through the Good Offices of a Ratiroad Attorney-His Story.

WICHITA, Kan., Nov. 2.-After making a political speech here tonight, Governor Lewelling read the following statement in regard to the terms of settlement of the legislative controversy, made and signed on the night of February 16 last, which was referred to by Speaker Douglass in his speech in this city Tuesday night.: "The populists always sought a compromise. The situation becoming more strained every hour, but on this particular night a truce was arranged with the sheriff. It was un-derstood that the sheriff's forces, which numbered about 1,200, should make no at ack under the cover of darkness, and, or the other hand, no attempt should be made to eject any person from the Douglass house. After this truce had been entered into for the first time in forty-eight hours I went home to my family (we were boarding at the Chesterfield hotel), near midnight. I was about to retire when Colonel Selis, the hote proprietor, sent for me and stated that George F. Peck desired an audience with me and that a carriage was waiting.

"I told Colone: Sells that I was not suf ficiently acquainted with Mr. Peck to war-rant my going out with him, that I did not understand the nature of his mission and re-garded him and the interest he represented is hostile to the administration Sells construed my hesitation as fear of per-sonal violence and urged me to consent to the interview. Notwithstanding the tears and entreaties of my wife and daughter. who were alarmed for my safety. I consented to go.

"Mr. Peck then reminded me there was imminent danger of bloodshed and destruc-tion of property, and that he had called me to this conference to see if a way could not be devised to avert a dreadful confusion of this legislative controversy. I told him I had offered everything which was reasona-ble; that I was hoping for a compromise. and willing to do all in my power to bring it

"He asked me what I would propose. then stated and he wrote the terms proposed in the paper read by Douglass. These terms were the same in substance that had been repeatedly proposed and as often rejected by the Douglass house. Mr. Douglass says now the hall was all they contended for. Not so with the population lists. They contended for principle. They were willing to yield the hall, but they con tended for a chance to legislate for the peo ple. There was a studied attempt to deci mate the populist strength by arrests and otherwise until they should have no quorum then their power to legislate would be destroyed "By the terms of the conference the pledge was extorted from the republicans that the Dunsmore house should not be interfered This was what was sought at times by the populists, and, as evidence that this is what they contended for, I cite the proposition which was sent to the Douglass house by Private Secretary Close on the 16th of February, the day before the final agree ment. It is identical with the proposition dictated by me to Mr. Peck, and finally signed by myself and the Douglass house committee on the following day, which was

APPEAUS TO THE DEMOCRATS.

Wade Hamilton of South Carolina Fear the Populists. COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 2.-Recently the farmers' alliance of South Carolina voted that as a prerequisite to receiving alliance votes all candidates in the primaries next year must pledge themselves to support the Ocala platform endorsed by the populists at Omaha against the platform of any political party, and 'in the silver debate Senator Irby, who is the state democratic chairman, declared that if un-conditional repeal should prevail he and his people (the alliance men) would refuse to national administration. A probable result of this policy is indicated in a letter from General Wade Hampton, federal commis-sioner, to the editor of the Columbia State: "My own judgment is clear that the time has come when the line should be drawn between those who stand on the Ocala platform and those who stand on that of the national democratic platform. No man who uphoids the former can claim properly to be a democrat, and unless our people choose to support the fallacies of the Ocala adherents, or to be led into the populist party, the true democrats should organize to maintain the

and that he would vote against any tariff reform measure introduced in behalf of the principles of the democratic party as set forth in the Chicago platform.

follow the democratic leadership

"If my fellow democratic citizens agree with me that this is the true policy to be adopted, I shall at once proceed to organize democratic clubs throughout the state and I shall exert my utmost efforts to keep the state where it properly belongs, for other people will proceed now in the hour of victory, to forsake the fing they followed so steadfastly and so faithfully when that flag went down in defeat. scrupulous demagogues have by false promises misled many of our finest men and they have brought shame upon our proud state.

"If I can once more give aid to my state I shall again gladly enlist in her service an I shall gladly join those who seek to main tain her welfare to protect her honor, and to save her from shame and disgrace.

American Cotton seed Oil Company. GUTTENBURG, Nov. 2 .- The stockholders of the American Cotton Seed Oit company held their fourth annual meeting here today The directors elected the following officers: Chairman of the board o directors, Edward D. Adams; finance con mittee, Edward D. Adams, chairman; George A. Morrison and Mayor Lehman; president, Thomas R. Cheney; vice president, Robert P. Munroe; secretary, Robert P. Munroe; treasurer, J. E. Ralph. Secretary Munroe reported the payment of $224,000 par value of the deber-ture bonds. Three crude oil mills have bee established and a European market opened at Rotterdam. An interesting detail of the latter is the construction of a tank steamer with a capacity of 4,200 tons.

Another Ocean Record Broken, NEW YORK, Nov. 2 .-- The Cunarder Campania, from New York to Liverpool, has broken the record by three hours and forty-nine seconds. She passed Browhead at 11:35

this evening.

London, Nov. 2.—The Cunard line steamer
clearing the bar at Sandy Hook at 3:49 a. m., arrived off Browhead at 11:05 p. m. last evening, making the passage in five days, nine hours and thirty minutes. This beats all previous records. Her own best record prior to this voyage was five days, fourteen hours and fifty-five minutes, while that of the sis ter ship, the Lucania, was five days, twelve hours and thirty minutes. Rto Grande Directors.

AMUS TOLA

"Shenandoah," with its locale in the historic valley of the same name, brought an audience face to face with the awful carnage of interneeine strife, when the shot on Sumter echoed round the worl.
Alabama, with the breath of the magnol a permeating every line and every incident, was cast in the sunny soutbland, odorous with the scent of orange biossoms, but "The Girl 1 Left Behind Me" brings one pearer tome. It is a play of the present, a war drama of the northwest.

The merits of the "Girl I Left Behind Me" are not those of the rivet, hammer and scissors. They reside not in the tramp of the passing regiment, but in the suspiration of a war creek that is were real to this genof a war epoch that is very real to this ceneration. There were many in the audience last night at Boyd's who have gone through such Indian campaigns, who were our of the army at Pine Ridge, who served with Crook in 76 in that hard struggle against Sitting Bull. It is not the motion of armed losts that makes this latest of the war dramas so intensely interesting but the calm agony of human hearts, the wreck of hones and the welling up of loves that hold the attention until the atmosphere clears and the Indian campaign is at an end. The play is one of those stage stories which holds an audience interested throughout its development, dealing as it does with the brave soldier boys who are honelessly fighting against thousands of bloodthirsty Blackfeet Indians to save the garrison in which they are surrounded and in which which they are surrounded and in which courageous and beautiful American girls are in deadly peril. It has its distinct types of character, its blending of tears and smiles. It has an almosphere as wholesome as the story of the lovers, succeity and honesty of the characters presented can make it. Its sentiment is deep and strong its language terse and there is a fine, fresh, open-air fragrance about the play that is thoroughly narming. The master hand of David Belasco is seen in its dramatic situations and realistic climaxes, while the lines given to the actors in the main are those of Franklin Fyles, dramatic editor of the New York Sun. Between these two men, one of the strongest dramas of the generation, thoroughly American in every line and thought, is now being presented at Boyd's. There are technical errors, however, that while immaterial, should not have been made by these elever dramatists. The play lacks a captain and the grouping of the relief squad in the southeast portion of the stockade is an error of the stage management although it makes an effective picture. But these are hardly faults, and the dramatist must be allowed a certain license

In the main, the play is in the specially be-excellent company, the women especially be-In the main, the play is in the hands of an ing strong in their several characters. Mr. Arbuckle as General Kennion looks the part perfectly, but does not always realize the ines. Mr. Helsey plays the hearted major with a dash that carries everything before him. The lieutenants are fairly played by Mr. Russell and Mr. Hermen, while Harry Mills plays the juvenile role of Dr. Penwick most acceptably. Harry G. Carleton made a hit in the role of Scar Brow. looking execedingly picturesque in his Indian costume. Mrs. Berlan-Gibts makes a lovable herolae, as fragile as a prairie rose, but with a beart as brave as beats under the blue jacket of any man in the post. Miss Irene Everett as Lucy was an immense favorite, playing the pretty part with a charm that made the men in the audience feel like going on the stage and giving a lesson to Private Jones in his lovenaking. Miss Belie Bucklin is the Wilber's Anu of the play and a jolly little thing she is, full of cute ways. a genuine product of the prairie. Miss Violet Rand plays the Indian girt, Fawn Afraid, with ability.

"Hoss and Hoss." "Hoss and Hoss." written up to date began short engagement last evening at the Fifteenth Street theater. Mr. Willie Collier, who heads the list of funmakers, is a very here has broadened his art considerably? The company is very capable and the play went with a "go" that pleased a big audi-

Great Guns. SANDY HOOK PROVING GROUNDS, Nov. 2 .-

The Brown segmental five-inch wire gun broke the world's record today. During the trial at the proving grounds, Captain Frank Heath being in charge, with thirty pounds of Leonard smokeless powder and a sixty and a half pound shot, a muzzle velocity of 3.130 feet per second, with a breech pressure 53,500 pounds per square inch was ob-
