in a humpbacked attachment in the repealing clause declaring for bimetallism, but it meant pothing, as they never intended to rehabilitate silver until an outraged people unmistakubly declared themselves. Senator Voorhees was not overlooked, the speaker declaring that the Indiana senator had stultified a record of thirty years in congress.

The idea of intrinsic value in money was ridicules, and characterized as the grandest humbug ever invented. He insisted that inside of nine months interest-bearing bonds to the amount of from $100,000,000 to $300. 000,000 would be issued unless the people expressed themselves at the polls.

The tariff was then given a whirl, and the protected manufacturers of the east were placed on the senatorial gridiron, but the money question was so popular with the speaker that he couldn't keep away from it, feit constrained to once more tell how much good would folhow general happiness would come, everybody would have work and all the wheels would be in motion, whether in politicians' heads or out of them, when the populists were able to put their financial ideas into practical operation.

Carnegie was not overlooked, and a few stones were knocked off the iron king's Scottish castle. The speaker said it was getting to be a vulgar thing to live in the United States, and the president had found It advisable to name a running mate of the prince of Wales as the representative of this country on Italian soil. Judge Maxwell's Defeat Deplored.

"Strange things," said the senator, "have been seen in the last nine months. After twenty-one years of honored service on the bench, Samuel Maxwell, a man who said the foundation of our jurisprudence, was turned down because he refused to be a tool. He was branded begause he was an honest man. It has been argued that the election of Judge Holcomb would keep capital out of the state. If a declaration in favor of honesty in public officials will keep out capital, then we had better get along without that kind of capital."

The senator said he had been charged with assailing his own state and read from the Record to show that he had said that a part of the mortgages retired in this state last year were retired by foreclosure, and that was all.

"If it is assailing the state," said the senator, "to tell the truth, it will be assailed several times in the next five or six years if I

He concluded with a word picture of the decline of Rome and the grandeur and decay of Nineveh, applying it with the statement that if the elective franchise was conscientiously exercised mind could not picture the possibilities of this country in the near future, but if the yeomanry knuckled under to the corporations and money power it was not impossible that in fifty or 100 years the condition of the country would be no better than that of kome today, with a nation of serfs laboring for the lords of the manor. "In the words of an aggient author," said the senator, "my adjuration is, "To your tents, O, Israel."

The address lasted considerably over an hour and a half, and the senator was frequently interrupted with enthusiastic applause. Colonel Kincheloe's Address.

Colonel G. W. Kincheloe was next introduced, and the Missouri campaigner told of the landslide that is booked for today, putting in an odd word in behalf of universal suffrage.

He espoused the cause of the lonesome Mr. Bryan, who, he declared, was to be placed in the shoes of Senator Manderson He sympathized with the First district congressman, insisting that he wept when he saw that misguided young man so severely sat on at the state convention. He also stated that the republican convention was just as bad, and would drive 20,000 Maxwell republicans to vote for Holcomb today.

Ike Hascall offered what he knew or the financial question, including something about Stephen A. Douglas and the "per petudity" of the union, but it didn't take him long. He then reached "the subject that is nearest your hearts, the local campaign and the contest for mayor." He said he knew that he would be charged with unloading the same old howl, and then-proceeded to unload it. He promised a few more life passes to proscenium boxes in the hereafter, and agreed to write sight drafts for colossal fortunes for any who might call at the mayor's office after he

He told how great things he could do for a suffering and burdened people, and how little it would be possible for any of his opponents to accomplish in case they were elected to the office to which he aspired. He eulogized Paul Vandervoort, who nad just returned from Ohio and who was sitting in one corner ready and anxious to "bloviate."

Another Speech on Silver. Paul at once strode penderously forward

ately proceeded to tap the pitcher, and was seemingly disappointed to find that it contained water. He said he had been stumping the state of Ohio all summer, having been assigned to that work by the national committee, but he neglected to tell what the Buckeye state had done to incur the committee's displeasure. He then began to talk silver with a great deal of noise and vehemence, saying that 75 per cent of the wholesale trade of Omaha is done with the mining towns and cities and done with the mining towns and cities, and that this trade has threatened a boycott because of the attitude of Omaha's two repre sentatives in congress, but he had written the mining camps that these two votes mis-represented Omaha. He said he was going to try to prevent such a calamity to Omaha, as the great public benefactor said th a halo seemed to settle about his head, but it turned out later to be the steam of a very profuse perspiration.

He declared that the election of Hascall as mayor would go out as a practical repudia-tion of the course of the city's representa-tives in congress, and then roasted the Board of Trade and Chamber of Commerce as the nearest to an Egyptian mummy of anything that God ever let live. He lauded Hascall to the skies, in return for the good things that the populist nominee for mayor had said about him. He said Hascall had been lied about and abused, and he had been given a touch of high life himself, but he "had the satisfaction of knowing that down under the heel of public opinion would soon go the liars and thieves who had traduced him."

Paul as a Prophet.

And then he dropped his chin a couple of otches and said that doubt, want, poverty and affliction would walk in every street in Omaha this winter if something wasn't done to start public work. He remarked that the same quartet would perambulate the high-ways in all the cities he had visited, but ald offer no valid excuse for having brought the affliction upon the places where he had an hospitably cutertained.

He said that both the old parties were nowing Mosher around, one trying to get nim to tell all he knew, and the other afraid that he would tell. He said that both the present d States marshal and his predecesse something from personal experience t Mosher's methods while around legi halfs in days gone by, but he was discreetly silent about his own experience around those same halls last winter. Neither did he say anything about his sudden departure, when he packed his conscience and a pair of socks in a collar box and left for the national capital, taking the same train with $6,000 that had been paid to a notorious telephone and telegraph lobbyist by the corporations, but which was wanting when the expected time came. Paul might have said that he wanted to keep the money from being diverted to corrupt uses in influencing legislation, but he didn't.

When he concluded Paul was puffing like a porpoise, and in order that he might be exeditiously transferred to the op-secting was hurriedly adjourned.

REPUBLICAN ENTHUSIASM.

Mass Meeting at Exposition Hall to Hear J. L. Webster and Others. The republican end of the political cam paign closed last night amid a blaze of enthusiasm. The last gun was fired in Exposition hall, where an unusually large crowd of voters were gathered. The speech of Ben S, Baker was the first event on the card and in starting out he discussed national politics, after which he got down to local affairs. Mr. Baker in the strongest terms declared that he liked re-publicans who would support the nominees of the conventions, regardless of whom they were or v hat moral principles they repre-

The nominees of the bar convention were touched up by the speaker observing that no class of men should be allowed to dictate who should be nominated for justices of the district court. That convention, at which the bar nominees were endorsed, was full o trickery, as full as any political convention ever heid. Leaving this matter Mr. Baker said that he regretted that Omaha did not have a republican newspaper that would support a yellow dog.

The little play seemed to please some of the people in the audience, so much so that Mr. Baker was induced to spread it on thicker. He said that he had investigated the charges against George Bennett and his connection with Bank Wrecker Mosher and had found that the sheriff was one of the best of men, with a reputation as pure as snow.

There was a vocal selection by a quartet, after which W. J. Connell was introduced.

He said republicans had their differ-ences in primaries and conventions, but always presented a solid front when confronted by a common enemy. Mr. Conneil thought that it was time to pull the hidden daggers from the boot legs and get ready for the next presidential campaign. The speaker insisted that he was in line for the entire state. county and city republican ticket, and coulendorse all of the candidates.

George P. Bemis, he said, had made good and loyal mayor, and that his election was assured. He was a mayor who believed in sixteen ounces to the pound, and 2,000 pounds to the ton, instead of a lesser weight, as was advocated by another candi date for the same office.

John L. Webster, who was billed as the principal orator of the evening, spoke in

John L. Webster's Speech

"We are assembled this, the last night pre ceding election, to take counsel together. The result of the issue tomorrow is one that mpresses me as of the profoundest impor tance. A year agoithe 65,000,000 people of the United States were enjoying unlimited pros-. The channels of commerce were with trade; the millions of wage earners had ample employment; forced idle ness did not exist anywhere; the skilled me chanic and the artisan were continuously employed, and at wages as high as had ever been paid in the history of the country. The rich soil of Nebraska, that needs only to be disturbed by the plow to produce abundant wheat crops and to be tickled with the hoe to yield its millions of bushels of corn, produced a vast crop of cereals of every kind, and in the markets they commanded the highest price. It was the rosy day of republican prosperity. democratic and independent parties, which are always disturbing elements, went about finding fault. A false prophet rose up in New York. He promised great things to the people. The doubting Thomases called him a stuffed prophet. The rock-ribbed democrats thought he was a new Moses. They believed that like Moses of old all things would give way before him, as the waters of the Red sea gave way before Moses and the children of Israel. But, lo! and behold! he proved a Pharaon and the whole country became plunged in the midst of the returning waters and here we are standing to our eyes in the darkest period of financial depression that the oldest living man ever saw. Labor is the Loser.

"During the summer thousands of idle en with strong arms and brawny muscles have been walking the streets searching for employment. The city council appropriated $50,000 to be expended for street improvements to give the laboring men something Public notice was given that all per sons desiring to work should come to a place of appointed rendezvous. I am told that at an early hour of that morning there were as sembled 1,000 men with picks and shovels and 300 men with teams and wagons. 400 of this vast number could be profitably put to work. The rest, crestfallen and dis couraged, returned to their homes.
"The last democratic national platform contained two threats that paralyzed the industries of the country. One was a threat of the free coinage of silver to catch the votes of the mining district; and the other was a threat of free trade, to catch the votes of unthinking men. These two threats have turned thousands upon thousands of laboring men out of employ ment. These two threats have de neut. These two threats hav all the crops. These two threats have entered the domain of live stock and destroyed every vestige of profit in that ne of business; have eaten up half the value of the farm lands extending over 3,000,000 square miles of farming territory; have shut down factories, broken banks and ruined thousands of the brightest business men of the country; bave brought more suffering than all the wars and all the famines since the plagues of Egypt. The time is ripe for the people of Nebraska to sound the war cry of a political revulsion by voting the republican ticket. Beginning with Judge Harrison at the top and for every other republican on the ticket down to justice of the peace."

Mr. Webster ridiculed the attitude of The BEE in regard to the state ticket, made an appeal for Judge Harrison, whom he char eterized as a great man worthy the support of republicans.

The speaker referred to the editorial in THE BEE of last evening which was directed to him, asking the reasons for his support of Harrison. But the speaker steered clear of the questions propounded by The Bee, and disposed of them by asserting that he was for Harrison because he was a republican Mr. Webster then attempted to ridio the editorial utterances of THE BEE in its appeal to railway employes to vote their convictions and not act like serfs and permit themselves to be driven to the polls like cattle. He asked railway employes to resent the imputation that they were not men, and believed every one of them would exhibit manhood enough to vote for Harrison. Mr. Webster closed with a wholesale endorsement of the county republican ticket without exception, because the nominees represented the principles of Farragut, Hooker, Sherman and Grant. Charles J. Greene, the B. & M. attorney.

was spied in the audience and was called upon the stare to give testimony in behalf of the republican party.

Short speeches were made by George A. Bennett, Theodore Olsen and others, all of whom promised that today they would take their medicine straight and without any adulteration.

LOOK OUT FOR ROORBACKS.

Campaign Canards that Will Be Sprung by Leaders of Fortors Hopes. The town was placarded last night by Bennett and his strikers. Dodgers were printed by them, announcing in bold letters the withdrawal of Bemis on the republican ticket and Fowler, the independent nominee for sheriff. The intention of Beanett is to but one of these flyers on the doorstep of every voter in Omaha, too late for the falsehood to be denied by the republicans and independents.

This capard will not deceive many voters, but a few may be confused by it. It is absurd to think that Bemis will withdraw from the race when he is positive that his absurd to think that Bemis will withdraw from the race when he is positive that his re-election is an accomplished fact. Mr. Fowler was seen and declares that he has no intention of withdrawing from the race for sheriff. He is making a splendid fight.

Who is Jack Evans?

Jack Evans, the democratic nominee for comptroller, was formerly county auditor. His name must not be confounded with that of John Evaus, the real catate man, or J. H. Evans, the laundryman. Jack has no busi-ness. He is simply a candidate.

"Cupid" Eller's Pernicious Activity. A casual caller at the county court room during the past two days would be forced to wonder whether the clerks in that department drew their salary from Judge Eller or from the county. Nearly all the regular business of the court has been suspended and all hands have been put to work in carrying out Judge Eller's campaign methods. Even the lady cierks have been pressed into service, and as they were unable to get out and hustle votes, have put in their time in folding and sending out the numerous campaign documents which have been evolved from the judge's fertile brain during the past few weeks. The tables are piled high with this litereature, which the clerks have been drawing pay from the county for sending out to the voters. Judge Eller continues to send out letters to newly married men asking for their votes.

BENNETT'S TREACHERY.

Forms a Combination to Knife Mayo Stems' Political Chances.

It was stated at an early hour this morn ing, upon excellent authority, that Dr. Mercer and Sheriff Bennett had formed a combination to "scratch each other's backs," politically speaking, and that Bennett and his followers would knife Mayor Bemis at the polls today.

ANOTHER ONE ON ELLER.

Story of August Carstens, a Gardener on West Leavenworth Street.

August Carstens is a gardener residing at 4410 West Leavenworth street, who is willing to make afficavit that J. W. Eller, aspirant for re-election to the office of probate judge, is guilty would disgrace a real estate shark.

By never ceasing toil and frugality Carstens and his wife, who are Germans, have succeeded in amassing a little competence which would put them above want but Judge Eller has been seeking to deprive them of at least a considerable portion of their hard earned gains. The family has resided in Omaha for twenty-two years and Carstens is considered an honest and respectable man by his neighbors. In 1886 he owned blocks 25 and 16 on Fortieth and Leavenworth streets. In the spring of that year Eller and au-other party purchased this property for $12,000, paying $1,000 in cash with a second payment of $2,000 and the balance to be in notes and mortgages payable after several years. The first-difficulty Carstens encounyears. The first-difficulty Carstens encoun-tered in his dealings with Speculator Eiler was when the second payment came due, but in time this was satisfactorily arranged.

On April 26, 1890, according to the diary kept by Carstens, when the mortgage upon the property became due, a stranger calling himself Wilson appeared at the domicile of the Carstens, after having previously had a short interview. short interview with the head of the house hold in the city, during which he confided to him that several railroad men had been see looking over Eller's property the day be fore. Wilson hinted at mysterious moves that the corporations were making in that section of the city.

Having evidently failed to create the de strea impression upon his intended victim. Wilson resorted to other tactics. He informed Carstens in a very confidential manner that he had looked over the records in the court house and had chanced to see his name as the holder of a mortgage or blocks 25 and 16. This property his people were and had been desirous of purchasing for a year or so. There was an obstacle in the way in the shape of the owner. Eller, who wanted a higher price for the property than his people east were willing to give. Eleven thousand five hundred dollars had been offered for eleven lots in block 25, but Elier had asked $13,500. If Carstens would have the kindness, his position as holder of the mort-gage would enable him to obtain a deed at a much lower figure than that asked for. land was to be used for the erection of a large four-story brick factory, plans of which were presented. Carstons folt in-clined to accommodate the stranger, especially since it was evident that he would have to foreclose on Eller in order to get his Next day Eller appeared on the scene asking for advice as to selling the property, because he had just purchased a factory in Chicago which was to be used for the manu-facture of a patent article that would make Eller a three time millionaire. Eller also told the story of a man offering him $11,500 for only eleven lots. He was now sorry that he had not sold at the time. The same party he knew was around yet, but where to would be $7,500 and he thought that Carstens ought to take it for that. Frequent consultations were held and Eller and his bogus real estate agent tried by every means known to the profession to in-duce Carstens to sign a contract for the purchase, the real estate agent making alluing offers and contending that he would have to see the contract signed first before he could pay over the $7,500, which his people were willing to give. When the swindle, to which Eller and a man named Eaton were a part, was finally exposed, Eller had the supreme audacity to sue Carstens for nonfulfillment of contract, alleging that his intended victim had agreed to sign a contract which the latter says he never saw. When the case was tried before Judge Irvine judgment was rendered in favor of Carstens, who, as the vidence disclosed, was to be made a victim of Eller's snares so artfully laid.

"He could not run the public sales of 1892 to his own selfish personal benefit and to the detriment of all others present, and because I sat down on him for his insults applied to me he stated to those present that he proposed to do all in his power to do me up at the coming election, and set about distributing his lies at once.

"Also later, in the presence of some of my clerks, he demanded of me that instead of clerks, he demanded of me that instead of allowing the taxpayers to pay their taxes, where he had bought them, at the same rate of interest as though they were not sold, until the tax sale certificate was issued; that I make them wait until the certificate of sale was made, and make them redeem it from said sale in order that he might get the 20 per cent interest allowed by law, and which he was entitled to.

"To this domand I absolutely refused, and stated that I was working in the interest of the tax payers and not the tax puyer, and when I had favors to donate they would not by any means be given to the latter and to the detriment of the former.

I also allow them to pay their tax after it #8 3 sold, and until tax sale certificate is issued at the same rate of interest as though they had not been sold, although the law gives me the right to do otherwise. Cobbey's Consolidated Statutes of 1891; said certificate bearing date of day of sale, as nearly all treasurers do in this state, I only include the one year, and after certificate is issued I then make out all prior taxes and date the receipt the day it is made, and not the day of sale, as the law

COUNTY JAIL METRODS.

Statement of an Ex-Prisoner Named Wilham H. Frahm William H. Frahm called at THE BEE office last evening and made a bitter complaint over his treatment in the county jail

Frahm was serving a sixteen-day sentence in default of his ability to pay a fine of $25 and costs for fighting. He is an aceman and was employed by the F. L. Cotton Ice com pany last summer. His statement, as made to a Ber representative last night, was as

"After I had been in the fall two days I was sitting at the dinner table cating, who Squires, the train robber, who is also an in mate of the prison, struck a 15-year-old boy and knocked him to the floor. I had a broken arm at the time, but this was more than I could stand. I hauled off and struct Squires. For this offense Theodore Be nett grabbed me and was going to put me it rons, notwithstanding the fact that I had a broken arm. I protested and he finally de cided not to do it, but he put me in solitar confinement for twelve days on bread and water and did not punish Squires at all. Squires is a sort of floor boss there and does about as he pleases, being allowed to punch prisoners with impunity. He was McCiure's accomplice. My time expired Sunday, but I had threatened to make a 'kick' on the treatment I received, so they held me until tonight at 6:30 o'clock. I know it to be a fact, too, that James Corrigan was released last Saturday to go and register, with the understanding that he would 'vote the right way.' The grub at the county jail is right way.' The grub at the county jall is horrible and the sanitary conditions of the closets are almost unbearable. Inspection will prove the truth of my remarks. statement in the Figure that all the pris oners in the jail signed affidavits upholding Sheriff Bennett's administration is false The prisoners did nothing of the sort.

OMAHA, Nov. 6 .- To the Editor of THE BEE: Can it be possible that the voters of this city can be persuaded into voting $1,700. 000 more in bonds, to be entered up as that much of an additional mortgage upon their rapidly depreciating real estate? Is money flowing into their purses so rapidly that they will not miss this trifling amount? Will they stop a moment and think how much that is? Why sir, thousands of the people of Omaha are on the verge of being ruined through special and other taxation. Nor is it the owner of real estate alone that is suffering, but, most of all, overtaxation falls, in the end, most heavily upon the poor man, who unsuspectingly votes the bonds, hoping thereby to get work, when in fact he is depriving himself of that which he covets most.

Prosperity for the owner of real estate means prosperity for the wage earner. Does not the experience of the last two or three One million and a half is asked in bonds to appropriate or purchase water works and an electric plant. Now can any voter be so blind as to be led to believe that the money can be taken out to Fremont or Elknorn and used to construct a canal? Has this country become so an-American that the wool is to be pulled over voters eyes in this way? Is this the high estimate that is placed on the intelligence of the men who by their ballots wield the destinies of have a care about the little matter of proaway $1,500,000 for something else. We are asked for $200,000 in bonds to build a market house. This is ill-timed to say the least. I am told the working people want this done. I have talked with many workingmen and they are, if anything, more market house bonds than I am myself. Buying out the water works or electric plant will not give the laborer an hour's work. Purchasing a block of ground for $150,000 to $190,000 and paying the owner therefor will not put a nickel in the pocket of the laborer. Mechanics would probably get work for a short time next summer in putting up a or $8,000 market house, the interest they would pay on the bonds would more than absorb these earnings. There is one advantage to be gained in vot-ing bonds, it will so depreciate the value of real estate that everybody can have all they want, at their own price, if they care to keep up the taxes.

If the voters of this city think of remainmg here and caring for their property then they must call a halt on bond voting. If they are merely going to cut for shore, get what they can and walk out, then they will just keep on voting all the bonds that any-body might happen to want. For my own part I hope and believe there are thinking men enough among the vot-ers of this city to vote down the water works and electric plant bonds, and also the market house bonds, until we can at least ascertain to an absolute certainty just what they are to be used, for, cutting off all chance for the misappropriation of a single

Would any voter be satisfied to locate a market house at any point between Twen-tieth street and the river, south of Cuming and north of Leavenworth street? Does the market house proposition mean what it says? If so, by voting the bonds we permit its location at any point within the boundaries named. Can it be possible that any voter would favor placing it down on the river front or in the burnt district? Yet that is exactly the privilege to gives the council if it choses to do say.

Are we to get, under this proposition, a $50,000 block of ground and a $150,000 market house, or a $15,000 market house and a $185,000 block of ground! Hadn't we better find out what we are voting for before voting Reasons enough have been stated in THE BEE as to why the water works and electric plant bonds should not be voted. There are still many more. I will not repeat them. I will however, appeal to every tax payer, be he rich or poor, banker or hodearrier, to throttle not only this, but every bond scheme that may hereafter come up, unless surrounded by such proper safeguards as common business prudence demands.

Let the verdict be "No" on these bonds.

tial Bohemians and a respectable citizen:

West Point, Nov. 2, 1893.—From an article in The Omara Bee I see that my son-in-law, Ira Bachelor, has succeeded in obtaining the nomination for councilman from the Second ward. It will be doing him no injustice to view this bird in a true light, inasmuch as the undersigned has sufficient grounds to be justified in taking such a step. One ought not to render the voters a service, the character of the man should be exposed to public position and one of trust.

For fourteen years I lived happily with my family. About a year ago there appeared in our little city of West Pointa "dude" possessed of all the aris of pleasing that arise from an overimaginative brain, and with like manners. He sought and made the acquaintance of my eleest stepdaughter. After a week's stay and courtship he married her. From that time my days of sorrow and difficulties date, not only for myself but my three innocent children. The first plan of this rascally son-in-law was to gain possession of the entire property. He endeavored to carry this out exactly in the same manner as that by which he gained possession of Widow Johnson's money. But, thanks to the honesty of our judges and the justice of our courts, this plece of thievery failed of success.

Being in his way to the carrying out of his failed of success.

Being in his way to the carrying out of his schemes, by his surve manners and a glit tongue he persuaded my wife and the entire family to remove to Omaha, where he intro-duced her as a widow in order to stop any in dalries.

As long as there was plenty of money every thing went on well there, but when the last of twas swallowed up he drove my wife away with empty pockets, of course. She had gainer experience, however, and returned to West Polot. But to the appearance of the second seco experience, however, and returned to We Point. But to the present day my three inn cent children have suffered the loss of father.

The cause of all this disruption is solely this would-be councilman, Ira Bachelor, shyster, who pushes himself into respectable families. And such a disreputable party wants to become councilman! Boodle is in his very eyes. From the aforesaid every voter who has Omaha's prosperity at heart can see that his vote should never be cast for Ira Bachelor, Respectfully.

ENDORSED FOR THE SWEDES. President Helin Explains the Issuance of circles because of the circulation among the members of the Swedish-American Repubtions club of sample ballots, endorsing three democratic nominees for position. Inquiry has been made as to who is responsible for the ticket and the mailing of the same to the members. Last evening John F. Helin, president, and Albert Johnson, vice president of the club, called at The Bee, and Mr. Helin made the following statement:

"It has been charged that the officers and members of the executive committee had prepared the tickets and had them printed and mailed. This is untrue. Neither officers or executive committee have anything to do with the same. mailed to the members contains the names of three democrats and the remainder are republicans. The three democrats are John Drexel for sheriff, J. E. House for surveyor and G. W. Thompson for city treasurer. Personally Mr. Johnson and myself believe that it will be for the best interests of the people to have those three candidates elected. We had nothing what ever to do with the preparation of th ticket, however, and only voice our personal views in endorsing the candidates named. Those who believe in good government will also endorse those named, and the ticket will meet the approval of the majority of the members. We make this statement because of the fact that the action of the inviduals is being criticised by the wielder of the party lash to prejudice republican voters against our candidate for the Board of Education, C. A. Elmen. Mr. Elmen is a good man and we desire to see him elected and the circulation of the ticket referred to should not be used against him."

BEFORE THE BATTLE.

Preparations Completed for a Shower of Public Contempt for Bennett. The office of the city clerk bore the resemblance last night to the warehouse of a box factory. Ballot boxes were piled high in all parts of the room, and were in readiness for the battle of bailots today. At the closing hour the preliminary work of getting the vast election machinery in readi ess was completed.

The force in the clerk's office had ar ranged the boxes which will re-ceive the ballots for the city offi-cers, and the supplies were locked in them. During the afternoon County Clerk Sackett carted over the eighty county boxes and Secretary Gillan eight brought down those for the Board of Educa-

At 6 o'clock this morning fifty wagons will back un to the clock will back up to the clerk's office and 100 special police officers will be on hand to load and assist in delivering the 264 ballot baxes to the eighty-eight voting booths. The boxes and supplies for the districts lying farthest from the center of the city will be started first. Deputy Clerk Balcombe will be on hand at 6 o'clock and will superintend he work.
During the day Mr. Balcombe and W. M.

Wappich will remain on duty in the office for the purpose of swearing in voters who have failed to register. Each voter who neglected to register must be accompanied by two registered voters who will take an oath as to the competency of the nonregis During the night Deputy Balcombe will hold down a sofa in the office so as to be on hand to receive the returns as rapidly as they come it. He will not, however, keep open

WORKS BETTER NOW.

Weighing on City Scales Results in Getting The plan now being carried out by the Board of Education of weighing on its own scales all coal furnished the city schools seems to be giving great satisfaction to the members of the board and to the principals and janitors. The method was put in operation for the first time a few weeks ago, the weighing being done by the custodian of schoolsupplies at the warehouse on Jackson street. The general impression is that the plan means more coal for the schools according to the nominal weight than ever before. The principal of one of the schools said to Secre-tary Gillan Saturday that in the forty tons delivered at her school recently she believed there was as much coal as in any fifty tons eccived heretofore. Reports to similar effect have come in from many other schools.

The Bee Election Returns. Tonight Tux BEE will post the latest reurns of the elections upon a canvas placed opposite Tue Baz building. By means of a stereopticon election returns from Ohio, Iowa and other states, and from the state, county and city elections will be given to the multitude. THE BEE's facilities for getting election returns promptly and from trustworthy sources are unrivaled. If the weather fulfills the promise of the local observer a vast throng will read THE BEE election returns at Seventeenth and Farnam streets tonight. She's Still Rooming.

Mrs. O'Neill asks Tuz Bez to state that she is still a candidate for the position of county superintendent.

Repudiating His Bills. It now looks as though George A. Bennett was hedging, in expectancy of a defeat at the polls today. A short time before the republican primaries were held Bennett ordered a balfbarrel of beer from Frank Frantzue, a school man at 1502 Williams street. Yester-day the bill for the liquid was presented and the sheriff refused to settle

ELECTION DAY WEATHER.

Captain Bunt Predicts that There Will Be a Change Today. "Very unusual" is the brand that Captain Hunt of the local weather bureau places on the weather which has been prevailing in this vicinity for the past week. Turning over the weather maps, he explains that the cause of it is a low barometer in the northwest, causing warm winds from the hi barometer section in the southeast. As ic as this condition exists he says Omaha's fall weather will be spring weather, but he pre dicts a change in the next thirty-six hours. Captain Hunt has just received a letter from the acting chief of the weather bureau asking if there is room at the Omaha station for the storing of the property from the Leavenworth station, soon to be abandoned and which has been made unnecessary by the establishment of the station at Kansas y. Sergeant Welsh, formerly in charge the Omaha office, has been conducting the Leavenworth station since leaving her two years ago.

HOT FIGHT AT SLOUX CITY.

Ed Bennett All but Beats the Head Of Aleck Chapin in Eight Rounds. Stoux City, Nov. 6 .- | Special Telegram to THE BEE. |- Ed Bennett, champion lightweight of Ohio, defeated Aleck Chapin of Minneapolis in a terrible eight-round fight here last night for a club purse of $200 and added purse of $500. Chapin was out-classed, but full of pluck. When he went out his eyes were swollen shut, his no broken, lips and cheeks cut and swollen and body bruised. Bennett was only slightly injured. Both men broke their right hands during the fight.

Fire and Police Board. The Board of Fire and Police Commissioners met last evening and listened to charges against Officers Donn, O'Gorman, Evans and Holman for alleged violations of the rules of the department. No action was taken and the cases will be settled next week.

J. M. Vaughn, an alleged detective who draws a salary from the city, was "on the carpet" again, charged with releasing a prisoner to allow him to get married. The case was referred to the next neeting of the board. Officer Ellis' resignation was accepted. Leave of absence granted to several officers and firemen. was decided to have linemen on duty at all hours to take care of the wires belonging to the fire alarm system. Chief Scavey recom-mended the dismissal of Officers Evans and Holman.

Badly Brussed and Cut.

Harry Wade, a grandson of W. R. Bennett, living at Twenth-seventh and Leavenworth streets, was thrown from his pony yesterday afternoon and badly braised and cut.
The boy was riding oast Chris Hartman's house on west Farnam street when the pony became frightened and threw him to the ground. The lad clung to the reins and was struck by the horse's hoofs reins and was struck by the horse's hoots several times. His head was gashed, the right hand broken and it is thought that his left leg is fractured. Mr. Hartman witnessed the accident, but it was all over before he could reach the unfortunate boy. He was taken into Mr. Hartman's house, where his wounds were bandaged and he was sent home.

Methodist Bishops. St. Paul, Nov. 6 .- The Methodist bishops today took up the work of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Educational society, whose object is to educate and Christianize the negroes and poorer whites of the south. The society has educated 100,000 and sent out 12,000 teachers and expended $3,607,102. The receipts for the year were $361,759. For the coming year $350,000 is asked, although there is much doubt expressed whether it can be reised.

Cutcago, Nov. 6 - Mayor Harrison's assas sin, Prendergast, appeared for trial today. but on the request of an alterney secured for him by his brother, a letter carrier, the case was continued by Judge Danne until November 27. The lawers for the defense stated that they desired time to study the case.

Prendergast's attorneys are S. A. Wade of Chicago and Robert Essex of St. Joseph, Mo. Wade, the principal counsel for the defense, is the claim attorney for the Pennsylvania ratiroad, but there is no rea-son to suppose the coincidence has anything to do with Prendergast's alleged motive for his crime, that having been Mayor Har-rison's supposed anti-railroad track elevation policy. Mr. Wade is also attorney for Hawthorne race track. In court today Mr. Wade admitted that the defense would be a plea of insanity. The chief ground on which the court granted a continuance was that it would be necessary to send to distant state for witnesses regarding the early life and habits of the defendant.

As a drawing attraction Prendergast is a failure. The public seems to take little interest in him. It was well known that his case was to be called for trial before Judge Dunne today, but only a comparatively meager crowd was in attendance. The assassin does not take a hold on public interest like other criminal celebrities, and today's proceedings, which lasted perhaps half an hour, were utterly devoid of the features dear to sensation lovers.

A Wonderful Shake.

At the club house at Saratoga, Bwas shaking dice with a wealthy man from the Pacific coast. He lost constantly, and finally found that he was $5,000 loser. The time agreed upon to quit had come The wealthy man was about to leave the table when B- said: "I'll shake you double or nothing, one dash and quit sure."

"Agreed," said the other. "Shake," said B-. He shook, and five aces appeared upon the board. B- scratched his head and said:

"How can I beat that? The very best can do is to tie you. Give me a show,' "What show do you want?" the 'Frisco man asked. "Let me put six dice into the box and see if I can beat you." "Agreed," says the western man. "Boys," B- adds, "you may believe it or not, but I put six dice into the box, shook, and out came six deuces, and I was even!"
