

POLITICAL BOSSES TO BE IGNORED

Those Best Informed on the Sulject Inclined to Think that the Measure Can Never Pass the House.

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE BEE, ) 513 FOURTEENTII STREET, WASHINGTON, NOV. 11.

There is trouble among the leading demo tratic members of the ways and means committee. Four of the most prominent ones held a long and exciting session last night in a private room at the Arlington. Chairman Wilson of West Virginia, Clifton R. Breck-Inridge of Arkansas, Byaum of Indiana, and Stevens of Massachusetts put their heads together and tried to straighten out the difficulties that have arisen in the pathway of committee in the preparation of the new tariff hill

The four members remained at the hotel until a late hour this morning, and so great were the problems they tried to solve that they were finally obliged to give them up and adjourn to another date. The trouble is that the elections have had their effect upon the democratic members of the ways and means committee, and they are all torn up and at war with each other. The committee will not, it is seen, have this tariff bill ready by the first of December, as expected, and congress will be in session many lays again before the ways and means committee will be ready to report. In fact, January 1 will likely come and go before the democratic tariff bill is in shape to be presented to the country.

Object to the Bosses.

Chairman Wilson before the elections thought his committee in full accord with thought his committee in full accord with him and the bill drawn up and presented by the administration. But within the last three or four days a number of the democrats have acted like the people did on Tuesday—they have kicked against the bosses. There is great doubt in the minds of the democratic members of the committee as to the fate of the bill in the committee as to the face of the only in the house. Some democratic members of con-gress who have returned to Washington are talking in an entircly different strain in regard to the tariff from what they did before the elections.

The result of the change of heart of some of the strongest tariff revisers is making the committee exceedingly uneasy, and what is furthermore strengthening the kickers is the appearance here just now of large delegations representing interests affected by the proposed bill. They come to protest against and fight any reduction whatever. Each day brings new delegations and new complications and the future promises to be "rocky" for the democrats.

Paralyzed the Populists,

The fact is being commented upon by men in all parties here that disintegration has begun with a rush among the populists. While the republicans in Washington are finding much in the elections of Tuesday to congratulate themselves upon, and demo-crats are ready with explanations and as-surances for the future, the populists here are paralyzed. They expected to win victor-les in Virginia and a number of other states and made a great effort in that direction. Two or three populist members of the house who are in the city, have received informa-tion through the headquarters of their party that there can be found nothing in the elections this week from which to take en couragement.

Where the populist vote increased the republican vote increased also, and the lat-ter's increase was out of all proportion to that of the former. Whereas it was be-lieved by some a week ago that the populist representation in congress might be in-creased next year it is now believed that it will not be able to hold its own.

Cleveland Not Attending Church

It is being remarked that President Cleveland has not been much of a church-goer lately. in his former administration he was somewhat noted for his regularity. Nearly every Sunday morning his carriage used to drive up in front of the First Presbyterian church door. In fact, the church had few more regular attendants of those days than President and Mrs. Cleveland. But since the beginning of his present term he can hardly be said to have been setting an example of piety to the people of the land by his unbroken regularity as a church-goer, nor has his carriage rolled out of the white house grounds a little before 11 just like clockwork. The last time he was at the bisst Deephytoman church was some time First Presbyterian church was some time in midsummer.

has been made, by application to the com-missioner. He holds that this act was curative in intent and construed linerally, and that, therefore, any period of four years shall be regarded as compliance, providing there is no adverse claimant.

BUSINESS AHEAD. Topics that Will Fugage Congress in Regu

Inr Session, WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.-There are many hopeful indications that the coming session may last as far into next summer as has been feared by those who dread the ordeal of a

Washington summer climate. There is quite a rivalry between the appropriations and the ways and means committees as to which will get first consideration, and in the house, while party policy may dictate the preference to the ways and means commaittee and give practically the entire months of December and January to the consideration of the tariff bill, the appropriations committee will certainly have its bill in the house for consideration much earlier than has been the custom in the past. Mr. Sayers of Texas, the new chairman on appropriations, has remained in the city since the adjournment and is to be found daily in his committee room, poring over the estimates and collecting data upon which to base the forthcoming appropriation bills. He is determined that the opening of the regular session in December shall find the committee ready to present its important appropriation bills to the house, and calls have been issued to the subcommittee on sundry civil bills to meet in this city on the 20th inst, and at once enter upon the preparation of these bills the statements having now been mostly received from the committee

A similar call has been issued to the sub-committee on the legislative bill to meet November 27, and Chairman Sayers expects that all of these bills will be ready for pres-entation on the opening bill day in the session

It is now quite definitely settled that the tariff bill will be ready by the opening of the regular session; with the committees on ways and means and appropriations both ready for action, it is probable the opening month of the session will offer little of the monotony of the previous session, when the work of congress had been so frequently delayed by the tardiness of committees. Chairman Springer of the banking and currency committee, on which also devolves much of the important work of the coming session, is in constant communication with his colleagues. He announces that no tardiness of the banking and currency committee will prolong the coming session.

There is a well concerted determination among the chairmen of all the important committees" to conclude their work at the earliest practical date and democratic leaders generally hope for an adjournment of the regular session at a day not later than June 30. The work of the special session having facilitated the organization of the two houses, and enabled all committees to proceed with their work, an early adjourn-ment should surely be possible.

REPLYING TO THE STRICTURES.

John L. Stevens, Ex-Minister to Honolulu,

Makes Answer to Gresham. AUGUSTA, Mc., Nov. 11 .- John L. Stevens late minister to Hawaii, read Secretary Gresham's letter and said: "The position to which Secretary Gresham has seen fit to commit himself is so extraordinary, so void of real foundation of truth, so calumnious of the living and the dead, that I have no extended reply to make at this time. I prefer to let time and events and history decide the issue the secretary has raised against the provisional government and the aspersions he sees fit to inflict on the dead captain of the Boston, the officers under his command and myself. The way the officers of the Boston discharged their responsibilities in Honolulu in January last was more than covered by Secretary Bayard's instructions, approved by President Cleveland on July 12, 1887. Sec-retary Gresham has acknowledged his party prejudices and animosities to raise an issue which congress, after a full sifting of the facts and an intelligent public opinion will CRANKS AT THE WHITE HOUSE Oleveland Surrounded by Guards and an Army of Detectives.

REASONS FOR THE EXERCISE OF CAUTION

Demented Individuals Swarming Around the Excentive Mansion Anxious to See the President and Probably Take His Life. WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 .- [Special to THE BEE. ]-"Can I see Mr. Cleveland ?"

The question was asked by a medium sized, rather shabby looking individual as he entered the white house the other day. As the great door closed behind him and he stood in the vari-colored vestibule he peered about in a rather wild way, so as to excite the attention of the doorkeepers.

"Well," replied one of the doorkeepers hesitatingly, "I think the president is busy just now; but you can look around the house and amuse yourself until we learn if he is accessible.

As the stranger, who wore a soiled shirt and no collar, strolled around through the corridors, the great east parlor, and back through the blue and green rooms and out toward the conservatory, a couple of detectives in the plain garb of private citizens might have been seen wandering aimlessly about one in froat and the other following in the rear of the visitor. "Can I see the president now?" inquired the stranger, returning to the main en-trance, and looking abstractedly into the face of the doorkeeper. "Not yet," was the reply. "The president is not receiving today." -"But I must see him, and I must see him now," said the stranger, his eyes showing for the first time that he had a diseased mentality.

Taken in by Detectives. Suiting his words by action, the stranger strode over to the stairway in the center of the corridor leading from the vestibule to the cast parlor and the upper rooms. As he placed his foot upon the first step of the stairway another detective, or policeman in citizen's clothing, laid his hand gently upon the crank's arm and exclaimed : "Excuse me, but do you wish to see any one upstairs?"

"I want to see the president," came the reply, in a firm voice. "Have you sent up your card?" "No, I have not. I want to see him without a cara. "The president is not receiving today, and before any one can see him he must send in his card and make an appointment for an interview." The wild eyed stranger protested until he became a little boisterous and he was gently led out of the executive mansion. Incidents of this character and experi ences with various grades of cranks have occurred at the white house almost crery day since the assassination of Mayor Carter Harrison at Chicago. Little is said of the epidemic of cranks about the premises of the president. The doorseepers, policemen and detectives and other employes at the white house are forbidden to take about such things.

Reason for Caution.

The reason is manifold. It would be dangerous to have the impression go out to the country that the president's premises were ridden with pestiferous persons and danger-ous cranks. It would put into the heads of otherwise harmless individuals the idea that notoriety could be achieved by bulleting or knifing the chief magistrate of the United States.

It is not an easy matter to see President Cleveland, either at the white house or in his private residence out at Woodley, a few miles west of the city's center. A crank may easily gain admission to the white house, but it is almost as easy for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle as it is for an absolute stranger without proper credentials to gain admission to the pres-ence of Mr. Cleveland. It has been published ence of Mr. Cleveland, it has been published broadcast that the present occupant, of the white house was "scared of his life," was "afraid of cranks," and all that sort of thing. It has been stated in every quarter that there never were half so many detec-

Realizes His Danger.

Lincoln, who used to prowl around Wash-ington at all hours of the day and night, alone, in the most dreadfal days of the re-public, or Harrison, who had the nerve to himself throw one crank gut of the white house, and who almost daily walked over any portion of Washington, were in the white house now he would there the change in conditions and either were a coat of mail or have a care about exposure to the new army of insame vullations which is terrorizing army of insane villains which is terrorizing the country.

Sad-Eyed Re ofm.

So common has become " the violation of both the letter and the spirit of the civil service law that it is never noticed here. In one day last week about fifty republican clorks in one department were reduced in rank and salary and as many democrats pro-moted to fill the vacancies. It was all done to punish representatives of one party and favor partisans in the other party. It is es-timated that there have been dismissed from the classified service since the 4th of last March over 400 republicans and not a single democrat. In none of these viola-tions of the civil service law have there been appeals to the civil service commission, as that body is as impotent as a last year's bird's nest.

Another Disaster Expected.

Every day there is expected to occur a duplicate of the old Ford's theater catastro-pue of last July, wherein a number of clerks in the adjutant general's office were killed and a large number severely injured by the collapse of a weak old building where compared of a weak old building where hundreds of clerks were employed upon gov-ernment records. The government printing office, an old shamble of a three-story build-ing in the eastern part of the city, is ex-pected to collapse. If it fails it will likely kill many times more persons than were carried to death by the Ford's theater accident. There are employed in the government printing office nearly 3,000 persons. Upon every noor there are hundreds of tons of heavy materials and machinery. There are few exits. Every time a heavy truck is run over the floors the building shakes like an aspen leaf. The other day the employes thought the building was about to fall and there was a scene which in itself threatened many lives. Congress has been quarreting for five years over the selection of a site for a new government printing office building.

Work of a Washington Judge.

Washington has a police judge who should have a counterpart in every city in this country. Judge Miller has no friends to favor and no enemies to punish. The conse favor and no enemies to punish. The conse-quence is a model court. He probably has, more horse sonse than any judge of his rank in this country, and it will be strange if his good sense and humanity and decency are not rewarded by promotion. But the judge of a court in the District of Columbia can afford to be an example, a model for other tribunals of justice. He is appointed for life, and he realizes that the protection guaranteed him is for the purpose of in-suring usefulness. Judge Miller has resuring usefulness. Judge Miller has re-solved to stop the practice of wearing firearms. He gives offenders the limit of the law-ninety days-and the trial of the guilty person is swift, the sentence sure and

Its enforcement prompt, Judge Miller has also started in to put a stop to reckless shooting by polleamen. It has been the custom in Washington when a prisoner attempts to escape for the policeman in charge to open a fusilate in the pub-lic street. There will be no more of this reckless artillery work. Judge Miller is giving the limit of the law to every person who carries a razor, and there being 90,000 darkies in the District of Columbia he manages to keep the large work farm well cultivated by razor bearers. Without being a reformer or pretender Judge Miller is strik-ing terror to the popular offenses to public decencies. It took him about two weeks to rid Washington of the vulgar annoyances of a large army of dudes who stood around the eutrances to theaters and other public places, smoking cigarettes and ogling women Of Interest to Farmers.

Three or four important reports from in cestigating committees are expected shortly after congress convenos next month. One will be from the senate committee on agri-culture, and it will attempt to explain the culture, and it will attempt to explain the growing depression magricultural products, which has been noticed during the past ten years. Chairman George of Mississippi originated the idea, and his primary inten-tion was to simply ascertain what had caused the depreciation in the price of cot-ton. Inasmuch as a decided majority of the committee, including its chairman, favor the unlimited coinsee a silver and contend that unlimited coinage o. silver and contend that the use of that metal as money has always fixed prices for farm produce, it is likely that there will be some silver solution in the second spring to examine the pine on the ceded Chippewa ands in Minnesota. They are Robert M. Hall of Georgia, D. F. Stacey of Minnesota and Peter Melin of Wisconsin. Others will be appointed to succeed them when Secretary Smith returns.

IRED CRAFTON'S LUCK.

Slaver of Mabel Swartz Has His Penitentiary Sentence Reduced.

DES MOINES, Nov. 11.-[Special Telegram to THE BEE.]-Fred Crafton, who was convicted of the murder of his mistress, Mabel Swartz, in 1891, and has already served twenty months of a fifteen years sentence in Fort Mudison penitentiary, appeared in the district court here today and pleaded guilty to manshaughter. Judge Conrad sou-tenced him to serve one year in addition to the time already served.

About a month ago the supreme court inquired into the case and found that the testimony given in the trial in the district court was not sufficient to warrant the jury in finding such a severe verdict, hence the court overruled the decision of the lower court and intimated that manslaughter was the extreme charge warranted by the evi
