PLAN OF SENATOR MATEOS

Diag and His Cabinet Discussing a Proposed Addition to Mexican Revenues.

INTEND TO TAX THE CATHOLIC CHURCH

How a Patriotic People is Responding to Its Nation's Need-War Between the America Lines forces vil the Bull Fighter.

CITY OF MEXICO, Nov. 7 .- [Special by Pan-American Press Association. |- A proposi tion to tax the property of the church is being seriously considered just now by the leading legislators of Mexico. In a late speech in the Mexican senate Don Juan A. Mateos, the most eloquent debater of the republic, was roundly applauded when he expressed himself at length on the subject of making the church pay tribute to the state, the same as any other business institution holding property and receiving and dispensing money is required to do. There are 120 Catholic churches in the City of Mexico alone, the receipts of which, according to Senor Mateos, are about $1,000,000 in hard cash every year. Why the clergy should be allowed to accumulate this vast sum with no return to the government the Mexican lawmakers profess to be unable to explain, and it is probable a clerical tax bill will be introduced shortly before the Mexican congress. The proposed bill would in all likelihood include the holdings of American Protestant misslops, and of course will engender much opposition from Catholics and Protestants

Death of an Aztec Prince.

There is one less of the ancient stock of the Moctezumas on earth. There has just died in this city, still in his childhooi, the thirteenth grandson, in succession, of the Emperor Moctezuma and the fourteenth of the famous Aztec warrior ruler. Cuitlahuac. The deceased youth, whose name was Ron-erto Luis Cuauhtemoc, was the sen of Don Luis Sierra Horcasitas and Donna Dolores Abadiano de Sierra, a direct descendant of the old stock. The living representatives of the Moctezumas make up a large and still powerful contingent in Mexico.

Contrasting Patriotism. A Texas paper in commenting on the

A Texas paper in commenting on the praiseworthy way in which Mexico is trying to extricate itself from its burdening encumbrances and the points of difference in a few little matters of pure patriotism between the average Mexican and the average American has the following to say: can, has the following to say:

the average Mexican and the average American, has the following to say:

The Mexican people have contributed of their means, the Mexican officials of their salaries, the Mexican local governments of their resources to help pay the interest on the national debt. The very prisoners have voluntarily taken up collections for that purpose—to maintain the credit of a government that is punishing them and which has doomed some of them to death. Be they rich or poor, proud official or condemned prisoner awaiting the deadity volley, the honor of the Republica Mexicana is dear to every Mexican heart.

How is it with us? We never allow an opportunity to bleed the federal treasury to passunimproved. We elect congressmen with the view of securing "appropriations," and when they fail to do so we feel that they have proven unworthy of our confidence. We demand the enactment of laws that will put uncarned money in our purses. We besiege Uncle Sam for sulventions and for pensions. No matter what the old gentleman's necessities may be, our cry is still, "Give, rive," and we would regard as a fit candidate for the lunatic asyluma a man who declined a bounty he did not need, refused a salaryhe had not carned, or asked that his pay be reduced that the public treasury might not be depleted. And as we act toward the state, county and musicipal government. The state must provide for us. We loggoil for lobs that are simply since ure, packet money for which we have returned no just equivalent, and are not ashamed.

Suppressing a National Privilege.

Suppressing a National Privilege. The officials of the Mexican capital are on North Alabama street, by shooting him-honor has been an unusually prolific one of late, and a prohibitory law has been passed which resembles in a general way the regulations regarding arms in force in the United States. The police of the city have orders to search for concealed weapons the in-mates of drinking places, taverns, the more disreputable cafes and other resorts where they have occasion to believe such weapons are worn. They are having a hazy time of it in carrying out this rider to the regulation, for if there is any one thing which the Mexican regards as one of his most cherished privileges it is to carry a thirteen-inch knife, pistol, sword, cane or whatever he pleases, about with him for company's sake. He considers this as one of the features of the liberty which he enjoys, and as there is no more reckless or deadly knifer than the Mexican peon, especially when in a state of pulque saturation the gendarmes are having an altogether open defiance of the law. Restrictions on Alien Land Owners.

lively time of it, and are constantly met with President Diaz desires to officially deny through the medium of the foreign press, recent publications regarding the forfeiture of land, other than mines, held by aliens in Mexico. The statement made was that an Mexico. The statement made was that an alien property holder would lose his Mexican possessions by absenting himself with his family from the country for more than two years without previous permission of the government by residing permanently abroad without leaving a repermanently abroad without leaving a representative or attempt to look after his resentative or attorney to look after his property and represent him, or by transfer ring the little to real estate to any nonresi-dent of the republic. There was such a law at one time in force in Mexico, but it has interesting question of a sportivemoral nature which is agitating the public mind in the City of Mexico just at present, is the proposed revival of bull fighting in the capital. The leading Spanish daily of the city urges that license be granted for the winter's tournament on the ground that bull fighting helps to diminish crime. The paper does not state its reasons, however, in advancing this rather startling theory. The management of the fights is willing to pay to the municipality the sum of $50,000, if the season is a successful one, and this is proving a very tempting factor in favor of the fights, on the part of the authorities. Just how popular bull fighting could again become in the increasingly cultured Mexican metropolis is hard to foretell. The President and Mrs. Diaz are greatly opposed to these bloody exhibitions and carry with them a constantly increasing following of the lead-ing society people, who will not give their supporting presence to such brutality. But the main thing which is working against the revival of the ancient and popular Spanish recreation is the inauguration by northern horsemen of a regular season of winter races, beginning with the Derby December 3. The sporting world and society in general cannot successfully pursue more than one fad at a time, and as the City of Mexico is on the qui vive of interest regarding this imported American innovation, the appearance is that the horse race will supersede the bull fight, and the aglic matador step down and out forever in favor of the jockey.

was at his office at 26 Broadway this morning and confirmed the news that he made a conditional gift of $500,000 toward the general fund of the University of Chicago. The condition imposed is the subscription of $400,000 more as the amount required to secure M. A. Richardson's gift of $100,000, which swells the total to $1,000,000. Mr. Rockefelier declined to discuss the matter at length.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.-John D. Rockefeller

He Was Despondent. INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 11 .- Robert Reynolds, one of the best known young men in the city, committed suicide at the home of his father making a sturdy effort to successfully wrestle with the troublesome practice of carrying concealed weapons. The harvest of shooting affairs, duels and other debates of a like fatal nature between gentlemen of himself and his wife occurred several years ago, and it is thought his suicide was the resuit of despondency.

Propetters on Lake Michigan Collids and the Thomas Smith Goes Down. MILWAUKEE, Nov. 11. - Another serious

marine disaster occurred in the fog on Lake Michigan early this morning. At noon today the steamer Lehigh arrived here and her captain reported when off Racine at 9 o'clock, the steamer sailed through a mass of wreckage consisting of pails, pail racks, etc. A boat was lowered and the surface of the lake was thoroughly examined. A boat marked Thomas Smith, containing an old plush cap was found and taken on board the Lehigh. Two other boats, one bottom up and the other sunk to the gunwales, were sighted. Life preservers were also found drifting about. They were marked the same as the boat. The Lehigh brought in the boats. The fog prevented the Lehigh's crew from pursuing the investigation as far as it desired. Telegrams of inquiry to Chicago brought the news that the Thomas Smith had been sunk by the Arthur Orr about 3 o'clock this morning and that the crew was rescued. The Smith was owned by Messrs. Latham & Smith of Sturgeon Bay and was bound to Menomine, Mich., for lumber.

Farmer.

PLATISMOUTH, Nov. 11 .-- [Special Telegram to THE BEE.] -Some sensational facts have recently come to light in regard to the early history of Matthew Akeson, the Cass county farmer whose murder last week created such a furore. It is alleged that when Akeson left Sweden some thirty years ago for the United States he left behind him a young wife, whom he promised to send for as soon as he secured a means of making a livelihood. Akeson prospered from the very day of his arrival, but he forgot all about the wife in Sweden, for when he came to Cass county over twenty-five years ago he took unto himself a new wife, with whose aid he reared a fair-sized family of children. He was a thrifty farmer and his possessions at the time of his murder were fully $25,000.

The first the Akeson family knew of a

That the woman means business is evident by the fact that she has secured an attorney to push her claims. The late Mrs. Akeson, and the mother of the murdered man's children, is closely related to several of the most preminent people in Class county.

They Simply Talked.

The Jacksonian club held a meeting in Pabst hali last night to discuss the probable outcome of the contest for election to the office of county clerk between Messes. Sackett, republican, and Tracey, democrat. Many of the members were in favor of taking the matter into the courts, alleging that Mr. Sackett, the present incumbent, had made a mistake in arranging Tracey's name on the ballots. They claimed that Tracey's name should have been followed by a bracket, instead of being printed in two places as a candidate of two parties. The club also discussed preliminary arrangements for their annual banquet, which

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 11.-George S. Jones. 50 years of age, whose home is in Minneapolis, was arrested here today when about to close a deal for a hotel, on the charge of to close a deal for a notel, on the charge of having swindled Charles E. Johnson and wife of Kausas City, Kan., out of $29,099 worth of real estate. Jones traded a piece of property on Fourth street near Fifth avenue in Minneapolis for the property in Kausas City, Kan., owned by Johnson. An investigation, it is said, has shown that Jones did not own the Muneapolis property.
